PRIVACY ACT ISSUANCES, 1989 COMPILATION

This multivolume biennial compilation contains:

—descriptions of systems of records maintained on individuals by Federal agencies which were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER as required by the Privacy Act of 1974;

—rules of each agency which set out the procedures that agencies will follow in helping individuals who request information about their records.

AUTHORITY

This compilation of Privacy Act Issuances is published by the Office of the Federal Register in compliance with the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a).

CUTOFF DATES

This compilation reflects rules and notices of systems of records in effect as of December 31, 1989, unless otherwise noted.

TITLE AND FORM OF CITATION

The official title of this publication is "Privacy Act Issuances, 1989 Compilation". To cite a system of records or rule in this publication, the form of citation would be:

Privacy Act Issuances, 1989 Comp., Volume ..., p....

HOW TO USE THIS COMPILATION

Identify the system you think may contain information about you and the agency that maintains those records.

Read the agency's regulations following its systems of records to determine the procedures you must follow to obtain information from that agency.

INFORMATION YOU CANNOT GET

There are limitations to the kind of information you can get. The agency may refuse to let you see information that—

—Relates to national security;

—Could reveal a confidential source; or —Could be used to give people an unfair advantage on a government examination.

Generally, an agency's system notices (description of its systems of records) and its regulations will describe that agency's limitations on release of information.

SOME GENERAL REQUIREMENTS

How To Make a Request

In most cases you can inquire in person or by mail. It will be easier for the agency to help you, and your request will be handled more quickly, if you follow these procedures:

1. Give your full name and address, and sign your request.
2. Specify the system(s) of records you believe contain information about you.
3. Provide the relevant information required by the system you are interested in. For example, if you are inquiring about any contract you have had with the Government (loan application, contract, grant application, etc.), give the date and subject matter, and any identifying numbers that appear on documents you received.
4. Address your request to the official or person and address given in the system entry.
5. Print the words "PRIVACY ACT REQUEST" on the front of the envelope.

Proof of Identity

The agency will need some proof of your identity such as—

1. A document with your full name and address;
2. A document that has your signature and/or your photograph such as a passport, medicare card, or unemployment insurance book.
3. Any other identification specified in the system entry or regulations. If your request is by mail, you should include copies of whatever documents the agency requires to prove your identity. There is a penalty for making false statements.

Fees

The agency may charge you a fee for a copy of your records, but they may not charge you for the time and expense of locating them. The agency's rules usually state how much the fee is.

GENERAL INQUIRIES

USDA/AMS—5

System name: Court cases brought by the Government pursuant to the following Acts, as amended: Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, Agricultural Fair Practices Act, Cotton Research and Promotion Act of 1966, Egg Research and Consumer Information Act of 1974, or the Potato Research and Promotion Act, USDA/AMS.

System location: Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250 and Milk Market Administrator's Offices at the locations listed in USDA/AMS-3.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who are regulated by the subject Acts and who may be investigated for possible violations of the Acts and/or against whom the Department recommends that an enforcement action be brought by the Government.

Categories of records in the system: The system consists of investigatory material which may include intra- and interdepartmental recommendations pertaining to an alleged violation of the subject Acts.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 7 USC 601 et seq, 2101 et seq, and 2301 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (1) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, or local or foreign charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing a statute, law, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.(2) Presentation or disclosure to a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, of any record within the system as evidence in a proceeding or which is sought in the course of discovery including disclosure to opposing counsel in the course of settlement negotiations. (3) Presentation, as needed, in the course of presenting evidence, to the appropriate Government officials charged with the responsibility of defending the Government before a court, magistrate, or administrative tribunal. (4) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in the file folders at the applicable address listed above.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name of the individual.

Safeguards: Government office buildings, locked offices or locked file cabinets.

System manager(s) and address: Cotton, Dairy, Fruit and Vegetable, and Livestock, Poultry, Grain, and Seed Division Directors and each Milk Market Administrator at the addresses cited in the System location.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 USC 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 USC 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f) because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

(4) Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained in the file folders at the applicable address listed above.

Retrievability:

Records are indexed by name of the individual.

Safeguards:

Government office buildings, locked offices or locked file cabinets.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained in conformance with appropriate General Services Administration destruction schedules.

System manager(s) and address:

Poultry Division Director at the address cited in the System location.

Notification procedure:

This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(g), (h), and (f) because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action to escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

USDA/AMS-11

System name:

AMS Office of Compliance Review Cases.

System location:

U.S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Marketing Service, Office of Compliance, Room 3529-S, 14th and Independence Ave., Sw, Washington, DC 20250.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

AMS employees, such as commodity graders, inspectors, supervisors; various industry Committee or Board members and/or managers; employees of various industry organizations; and any other individuals involved in a review or investigation as an alleged violator or otherwise the subject of a review or investigation.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of investigatory files regarding cases involving the AMS Office of Compliance. These files contain reports by AMS Compliance and other investigative entities such as the Office of the Inspector General, USDA. They also contain evidence gathered in the course of reviews and investigations, as well as intra and interdepartmental recommendations. The records system also includes a tracking system maintained by computer which provides current status reports on all cases involving the Agency.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The Office of Compliance is responsible for compliance activities pertaining to programs administered by AMS authorized by the legislation listed in 7 CFR 2.50.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system, when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regualtory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto;

(2) Referral to the Department of Justice when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(3) Disclosure in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(4) Records may be disclosed in response to a request for discovery or for the appearance of a witness, to the extent that what is disclosed is relevant to the subject matter involved in a pending judicial or administrative proceeding.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are stored in file folders and in computer data files at the address listed under "System location."

Retrievability:

The records filed in this system are issued a primary name and case number specifying the appropriate division in AMS to which they pertain. A secondary name stating the subject being investigated is also issued. The records are filed in order of occurrence. Files are retrieved by identifying the division, subject, and case number.

Safeguards:

Records are stored in file folders and computer data files. The computer data base in accessed through a procedure used by the Compliance Staff. Offices containing these records are locked during nonbusiness hours and when offices are otherwise vacant. All records are accessible to AMS Compliance Staff.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained and destroyed in accordance with AMS Directive 270.1 "Files Maintenance and Records Disposition Handbook." Records are maintained for a period of three years at the system location, after which they are to be disposed of by authority of the National Archives and Records Service.

System manager(s) and address:

Questions or requests regarding this system can be sent to the Associate Deputy Administrator for Compliance at the address listed under "System location."

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), material in this system of records is exempt from the rquirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f), because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) requires that an individual be given access to and the right to amend files pertaining to him or her. Individual access to these files could impair investigations in progress and alert subjects involved in the investigations that their actions are under scrutiny, which may allow them the opportunity to alter their actions or prevent detection of any illegal actions to escape prosecution. Release of these records would also disclose investigative techniques and procedures employed by AMS and other agencies, which would hamper law enforcement activities.

5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) requires that an accounting of disclosures be made available to an individual. This would impair investigations by alerting subjects of investigations to the existence of those investigations. Release of the information could result in the altering or destruction of documentary evidence, improper influencing of witnesses, and other activities that could impede or compromise the investigation.

5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) requires that only such information as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required by statute or Executive Order can be maintained. Exemption from this provision is required because relevance and necessity can be determined only after information is evaluated. Evaluation at the time of collection is too time consuming for the efficient conduct of an investigation. Further, determining relevance or necessity of specific information in the early stages of an investigation is not possible.

5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f) provide for notification and access procedures. These requirements, if followed, would necessarily alert subjects of investigations to the existence of the investigation which could impair the investigation. Access to the records likewise could interfere with investigative and enforcement proceedings; disclose confidential informants and information; constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of others; and reveal confidential investigative techniques and procedures.

5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(I) requires that categories of sources of records in each system be published. Application of this provision could disclose investigative techniques and procedures and cause sources to refrain from giving such information because of fear of reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentially. This would compromise the ability to conduct investigations.

(4) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office at the request of the individual. (5) Referral of delinquent commercial debt information, which is filed in the system, to a commercial credit reporting agency for it to make the information publicly available. Only that information directly related to the identity of the debtor and history of the claim will be released. Debtor information will consist of the following: The debtor's name, address, taxpayer identification number, and other information necessary to establish the identity of the debtor; the amount, status, and history of the claim, and the program under which the claim arose. (6) Referral to a collection or servicing contractor, or a local, State, or Federal agency, when ASCS determines a referral is appropriate for servicing or collecting the debtor's account or as provided for in contracts with servicing or collection agencies. (7) Referral to the Internal Revenue Service to enable it to offset and satisfy past-due, legally enforceable debts owed to USDA against Federal income tax refunds. (8) Referral of information regarding indebtedness to the Defense Manpower Data Center, Department of Defense, for the purpose of conducting computer matching programs to identify and locate individuals receiving Federal salary or benefit payments and who are delinquent in their repayment of debts owed to the U.S. Government under certain programs administered by ASCS/CCC in order to collect debts under the provisions of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 (Pub. L. No. 97-365) by voluntary repayment, administrative or salary offset procedures, or by collection agencies. (9) Referral of information regarding indebtedness to the United States Postal Service for the purpose of conducting computer matching programs to identify and locate individuals receiving Federal salary or benefit payments and who are delinquent in their repayment of debts owed to the U. S. Government under certain programs administered by ASCS/CCC in order to collect debts under the provisions of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-365) by voluntary repayment, administrative or salary offset procedures, or by collection agencies.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Disclosures pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12):

Disclosures may be made from this system to "consumer reporting agencies" as defined in the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681a(f)) or the Federal Claims Collection Act (31 U.S.C. 3701(a)(3)).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Claims Data Base records are stored on disk files.

Retrievability:

Records can be accessed by producer identification number (if available), farm number or State, county and claim number.

Safeguards:

On-line access to data in the Claims Data Base (Automated) is controlled by password protection. The data base is duplicated on magnetic tape files.

Retention and disposal:

Claim records remain on the data base for four months after a claim has been zero-balanced, at which time the data is transferred from disk to tape files. The data is retained on tape files for one year. Data on magnetic tape files is then written over for disposal.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Kansas City Management Office, ASCS, USDA, 8930 Ward Parkway, Kansas City, Missouri 64114.

Notification procedure:

An individual may request information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to such individual from the Director, Kansas City Management Office, ASCS, USDA, 8930 Ward Parkway, Kansas City, Missouri 64114. A request for information regarding an individual should include: Full name, address, ZIP code, producer identification number (if available), farm number or claim number, and any other pertinent information to help identify the file. Before information about any record is released, the System Manager may require the individual to provide proof of identity or require the requester to furnish an authorization from the individual to permit release of information.

Record access procedures:

Same as notification procedure. An individual who wishes to request access to records in the system relating to that individual or who wishes to request correction of records believed to be in error should submit a written request to the System Manager. (The regulations governing access to records and contesting contents of records are set forth at 7 CFR 1.110-1.123).

Contesting record procedures:

Same as record access procedures.

Record source categories:

Records in this system come primarily from documents submitted by the ASCS county office maintaining farm records on the individual producer. Information in these records is obtained directly from the individuals in the system.

USDA/APHIS—1

System name:

Plant Protection and Quarantine—Regulatory Actions, USDA/APHIS.

System location:

Plant Protection and Quarantine Program, USDA/APHIS, Room 643 Federal Building, Hyattsville, MD 20782.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Violators and alleged violators of plant protection and quarantine laws and regulations.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of case files on violators and alleged violators and contains copies of violation report forms, compliance agreements, employee or other witness statements, warning notices, Office of the General Counsel (OGC) recommendations to the Department of Justice and court disposition documents. Complaints, consent decisions, and decisions and orders in relation to civil penalties assessed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

7 U.S.C. 150gg, 163.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. (2) Disclosure to the Department of Justice for use in litigation when the agency, or any component thereof, or any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, or any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation; provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (3) Disclosure in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when the agency, or any component thereof, or any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, or any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee, or the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation; provided, however that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (4) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained in file folders in metal file cabinets.

Retrievability:

Records are manually retrieved by case numbers assigned to individual violators and alleged violators.

Safeguards:

Records are maintained in locked files with APHIS employees in attendance during working hours.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Deputy Administrator, Plant Protection and Quarantine, USDA/APHIS, 14th & Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Notification procedure:

All inquiries should be addressed to:

APHIS Privacy Act Coordinator, Office of the Administrator, USDA/APHIS, Room 732 Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, MD 20782.

Record access procedures:

All inquiries should be addressed to the APHIS Privacy Act Coordinator.

Contesting record procedures:

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f). See 7 CFR 1.23. Individual access to these records would impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action to escape prosecution. Any individual who feels, however, that he has been denied any right, privilege or benefit for which he would otherwise be eligible as a result of the maintenance of such material may request access to the material. Such requests should be addressed to:

USDA/APHIS—2

System name:

Veterinary Services—Records of Accredited Veterinarians, USDA/APHIS.

System location:

Veterinary Services Program, USDA/APHIS, Room 828AA Federal Building, Hyattsville, MD 20782.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Private veterinary practitioners who are accredited by the Federal and State governments to issue health certificates for the interstate and international movement of livestock and participate in cooperative State/Federal animal health programs.

Categories of records in the system:

(1) Record includes name of accredited veterinarian, social security number, mailing address, phone number, type of practice, State in which accredited State license number, college and date of graduation, and score on accreditation examination. (2) Record also includes material pertaining to alleged violations of accreditation standards. If allegations are proven true the record includes the disposition of the case which may be revocation of accreditation.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

21 U.S.C. 105, 111-114a-1, 116, 125, 134b, 134f.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) Referral to State Animal Health officials to certify that a particular individual is indeed accredited. (2) Referral to State veterinary examining boards to certify that a particular individual is indeed accredited. (3) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. (4) Disclosure to the Department of Justice for use in litigation when the agency, or any component thereof, or any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, or any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation; provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (5) Disclosure in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when the agency, or any component thereof, or any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, or any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee, or the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation; provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (6) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are electronically stored at the Washington Computer Center.

Retrievability:

Records are electronically retrieved by alphabetized names and social security numbers.

Safeguards:

The computer files and tapes are kept in a safeguarded environment with access only by authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained for the individual's lifetime or until no longer licensed.

System manager(s) and address:

Deputy Administrator, Veterinary Services, USDA/APHIS, 14th & Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, DC 20250.

USDA/APHIS-6

System name:

Veterinary Services—Brucellosis Information System and Brucellosis Recording and Reporting System, USDA/APHIS.

System location:

The Brucellosis Information System—U.S. Department of Agriculture, Fort Collins Computer Center, Colorado, and each of the various States. The Brucellosis Recording and Reporting System—Federal and State area offices; Federal Regional Offices; and Hyattsville, Maryland.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Herd owners whose animals or herds are tested, studied, or restricted because of brucellosis; livestock markets; slaughter establishments; and livestock dealers (including agents and brokers) handling livestock covered by the program; milk processing plants receiving milk or cream from dairy farms; laboratories conducting brucellosis program tests or procedures; State, Federal, and contractual personnel engaged in program activities.

Categories of records in the system:

Information on herds and individual animals tested, studied, or restricted under the brucellosis program; epidemiologic studies; animals, specimens, or premises sampled, identified, inspected, tested, handled, or restricted under the brucellosis program by State, Federal or contractual personnel; animal identification, health and movement data of animals covered under program activities for traceback of disease from livestock markets, slaughter plants, and livestock dealers or livestock brokers or commission firms; milk and cream samples and related identification data for brucellosis testing from milk processing plants receiving fresh farm milk; and brucellosis test data from laboratories approved to do brucellosis program testing.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

21 U.S.C. 111, 112, 114, 114a-1, 115, 120, 121, 125, 134a-134f and Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 51 and Part 78.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records maintained in the computer system will be routinely used by the Federal and State government personnel for: (1) Detecting the foci of infection to reduce the rate of spread of infection to new herds; (2) evaluating brucellosis program activities of State, Federal, and contractual personnel; (3) preparing mailing labels and preaddressed forms to enhance field activities; (4) evaluating program effectiveness; (5) detecting factors of epidemiologic importance in containing or eliminating foci of infected herds; (6) assuring that brucellosis indemnities are promptly and properly paid; (7) notification of livestock owners with the animals at high risk of exposure to brucellosis because of livestock movements or an outbreak of disease or presence of quarantined premises in a community; (8) referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign, charged with responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law concerning animal disease control and eradication, or of enforcing or implementing a statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law concerning animal disease control and eradication, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and either arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation, or court order issued pursuant thereto; (9) litigation by the Department of Justice when the agency, or any component thereof, or any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, or any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation; provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected; (10) use in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when the agency, or any component thereof, or any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, or any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee, or the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation; provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected; (11) response to a request from a congressional office from the record of an individual made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The Brucellosis Information System's records will be maintained on on-line disk storage and magnetic tapes. The Brucellosis Recording and Reporting System's records will be maintained on floppy disk storage and/or magnetic tapes.

Retrievability:

Under this system, data may be retrieved and organized by any of the categories which have been recorded. This will greatly improve the ability to retrieve existing records and to serve the livestock industry in the eradication of brucellosis.

Safeguards:

The only individuals with access to this system are Federal and State government employees with a need to know. The data base is secured on a State-by-State basis. The brucellosis program planning staff has access to all information in the computerized system without restrictions. The computer files, tapes, and disks are kept in a safeguarded environment with access only by authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal:

(1) Herd records are maintained in the data base as follows: (a) Infected herds not depopulated or sold out are always on-line. (b) Depopulated or sold out herds are archieved. (c) Herd tested but not infected are kept on-line for 6 months after testing and then archived on a fiscal year basis. Archived data are kept for 15 years. (2) Records pertaining to animals, specimens, or premises sampled, identified, inspected, tested, handled, or restricted by State, Federal, or contractual personnel are kept on-line as long as the individual is working in brucellosis programs. Once employment or accreditation is terminated, the information is archived by fiscal year for 15 years. (3) Livestock market, slaughter, establishment, livestock dealer, milk processing plant, and laboratory records pertaining to animal or herd information are retained as described under (1) above.

System manager(s) and address:

Deputy Administrator, Veterinary Services, USDA/APHIS, Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, MD 20782.

Notification procedure:

All inquiries should be addressed to: APHIS Privacy Act Coordinator, Office of the Administrator, USDA/APHIS, Room 732 Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, MD 20782.

Record access procedures:

All inquiries should be addressed to the APHIS Privacy Act Coordinator.

Contesting record procedures:

All inquiries should be addressed to the APHIS Privacy Act Coordinator.

Record source categories:

(1)Epidemiologic information for herds and animals is obtained from documents and reports completed by Federal and State employees or contractual personnel as a part of testing a herd or animal(s) or as a part of investigating the source and spread of brucellosis within the livestock population. (2) Information for work related activities is made available by the appropriate State or Federal office for personnel and contractual employees paid from its funds. (3) Livestock market, slaughter establishment, livestock dealer, milk processing plant, and laboratory information is acquired in the course of obtaining other program activity information such as where samples were collected, where animals identification was applied, where samples were tested, and how the samples or animals were handled or processed prior to or following collection of testing.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Present and former FmHA applicants/borrowers and grantees including members of associations.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of files containing applicant's/borrower's or grantee's characteristics such as gross and net income, sources of income, capital, assets and liabilities, net worth, age, observed race, number of dependents, marital status, credit report, reference material, and operating plans. In addition, a running record of observation concerning the operations of the person being financed is included. A record of deposits in and withdrawals from a person's supervised bank account is also contained in those files where appropriate or, in some County Offices, maintained in a separate folder containing only information relating to activity within supervised bank accounts. Some items of information are extracted from the person's file and placed in a card file for quick reference.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

7 U.S.C. 1921 et. seq., 42 U.S.C. 1471 et. seq., 42 U.S.C. 2706.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing a statute or a rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

Information not identified with any individual borrower(s) may provide the basis for statistical reports and news releases citing borrowers' progress.

Referral to employers, businesses, landlords, creditors and others to determine repayment ability and eligibility for FmHA programs. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Referral to a collection or servicing contractor, or a local, State, or Federal agency, when FmHA determines such referral is appropriate for servicing or collecting the borrower's account or as provided for in contracts with servicing or collection agencies.

Referral to a court, magistrate, or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, of any record within the system which constitutes evidence in that proceeding, or which is sought in the course of discovery, to the extent that the information disclosed is relevant and necessary to the proceeding.

Referral of commercial credit information, which is filed in a system of records, to a commercial credit reporting agency for it to make the information publicly available.

Referral to financial consultants, advisors, or underwriters, when FmHA determines such referral is appropriate for developing packaging and marketing strategies involving the sale of FmHA loan assets required by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986, Pub. L. 99-509.

Referral to private attorneys under contract either with FmHA or with the Department of Justice for the purpose of foreclosure and possession actions and collection of past due accounts in connection with FmHA loans.

USDA/FCIC-2

System name:

FCIC Compliance Review Cases, USDA/FCIC.

System location:

Office of Compliance, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Room 4068, South Building, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250, and Branch Offices of the Office of Compliance located in strategic cities throughout the United States. Addresses of each Branch Office may be obtained from the Assistant Manager for Compliance, Office of Compliance, FCIC, at the address listed above.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

FCIC employees, Insurance Companies under an Agency Sales and Service Contract, Insurance Companies whose policies of crop insurance are reinsured by FCIC under a Reinsurance Agreement, Insurance Industry Committee or Board Members, agents, loss adjusters, or other employees, and any other individuals alleged to be violators of program or contractual provisions or who are otherwise the subject of a compliance review.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of compliance review files containing evidence gathered in the course of Office of Compliance reviews. These files also contain reports by other entities including the Office of Inspector General, USDA, as well as intra and interdepartmental recommendations. The records system also includes a tracking system maintained by computer which provides current status reports on all cases involving FCIC including reports and conclusions by other entities.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The Office of Compliance is responsible for compliance activities with respect to programs administered by FCIC under the authority of 7 U.S.C. 1501-1520 and 7 CFR 2.23(h).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(2) Records contained in this system may be referred to the Department of Justice when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(3) Records from this system may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(4) Records from this system may be disclosed in response to a request for discovery or for the appearance of a witness, to the extent that the agency determines that the information sought is relevant to the subject matter involved in a pending judicial or administrative proceeding.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are stored in file folders and in computer data files at the addresses listed under "System location."

Retrievability:

The records filed in this system are issued a primary individual name or company name and a case number. A secondary name indicating the subject under compliance review is also issued. The records are filed in order of occurrence. Files are retrieved by identifying the individual or company name, subject, and case number.

Safeguards:

Records are stored in file folders and computer data files accessible only to authorized personnel. The computer data base is accessed through a secure system procedure by Office of Compliance Staff and by the FCIC ADP Security Officers. Offices containing these records are locked when not in use during nonbusiness hours and when offices are otherwise vacant. All records are accessible to Office of Compliance Staff and FCIC ADP Security Officers.

Retention and disposal:

Magnetic tape records are maintained indefinitely. Hard copy records are maintained subject to the Disposal of Field Records retention schedule (FCIC Issuance System-M5-P2-C8, Exhibits 1, 2, and 5).

System manager(s) and address:

Manager, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, USDA, Washington, DC 20250.

Assistant Manager for Compliance, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, USDA, Washington, DC 20250.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), material in this system of records is exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f) because it contains investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123.

5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) requires that an accounting of disclosures be made available to an individual. This would impair compliance reviews by alerting the subject of the review to the existence of those compliance reviews.

The release of information from these files could result in the destruction or alteration of documentary evidence necessary to prosecution, improper influencing of witnesses, and other activities which could impede or compromise the review. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) permits the maintenance of only such information as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required by statute or Executive Order. Exemption from this provision is required because determination of relevance and necessity can be made only after information is evaluated. Evaluation at the time of collection is too time consuming for the effective conduct of a compliance review. Further, the determination of relevance or necessity of specific information at the early stages of the compliance review is not possible.

5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) (G) and (H), and (f) provide for notification and access procedures. If these requirements are followed it would necessarily alert subjects of the compliance review to the existence of the review and could impair the outcome of the review. Similarly, access to the records could interfere with compliance review and ultimate law enforcement proceedings; disclose confidential informants and information; constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of others; and, reveal confidential investigative techniques and procedures. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(I) requires that categories of records in each system be published. Application of this provision could disclose investigative techniques and procedures employed by compliance reviewers and result in sources not giving information because of fear of reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity or confidentiality resulting in a compromise of the ability to conduct a compliance review.

Safeguards:

Government office buildings, locked offices, or locked file cabinets.

Retention and disposal:

Records for basic investigations are retained for 5 years, unless the investigation involves licensee conflicts of interest, then records are to be retained for 10 years. Records are maintained in accordance with General Services Administration disposal schedules, as implemented by FGIS Instruction 251.1, Records Management Program.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Compliance Division, USDA, Federal Grain Inspection Service, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20250.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The system has been exempted under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirement of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f) because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

Files on violations and other enforcement actions are indexed alphabetically by name and by year of violation. Printouts and microfilm records are alphabetically arranged with unique number identifiers assigned as well.

Safeguards: Records are maintained in locked offices.

Retention and disposal: Active records are maintained indefinitely. Closed cases are retired to records storage centers after 3 years unless reopened. Microfilm and computer records are maintained indefinitely. Computer printouts are destroyed after 6 months.

System manager(s) and address: Privacy Act Coordinator, USDA/FSIS, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20250.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I), and (f). See 7 CFR 1.23. Individual access to these records would impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action to escape prosecution. Any individual who feels, however, that he has been denied any right, privilege or benefit for which he would otherwise be eligible as a result of the maintenance of such material may request access to the material. Such requests should be addressed to: Privacy Act Coordinator, USDA/FSIS, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20250.

USDA/FSIS—2

System name:

Common On-Line Reference for Establishments (CORE), USDA/FSIS.

System location:

Food Safety and Inspection Service, USDA, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals responsibly connected with the applicant for Federal meat, poultry, or import inspection: All owners, partners, officers, directors, holders or owners of 10 per centum or more of voting stock, and employees in a managerial or executive capacity in the business; regional, area, and circuit personnel of Meat and Poultry Inspection Operations; Import Inspection Office personnel of International Programs; FSIS headquarters personnel.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of: Names and addresses of applicants for Federal meat, poultry or import inspection and descriptive information about their business establishments (plants). The system includes the name, title, social security number, date of birth, place of birth and stock ownership (if 10 per centum or more) of all persons listed as responsibly connected with the applicant. It also includes types of operations, slaughter and processing categories, export restrictions, other names under which business will be conducted, plant types, numbers of authorized inspectors, dates of grants of inspection, types of inspection, and import information. In addition, the system contains mail management data necessary to mail USDA literature to non-establishment organizations (FSIS headquarters and field personnel) and to provide for the production of mailing labels and publication of the Meat and Poultry Inspection Directory.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

21 U.S.C. 451 et seq., and 601 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) To a contractor for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining or processing records in this system or for developing, modifying and/or manipulating ADP software. Data would also be disclosed to contractors incidental to consultation, programming, operation, user assistance, or maintenance for ADP or telecommunications systems containing or supporting records in the system.

(2) In the event that material in this system indicates a violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records may be disclosed to the appropriate Agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order, issued pursuant thereto.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained on computer disks, magnetic tape, FSIS Form 5200-2, "Application for Federal Meat Poultry, or Import Inspection" and in computer printouts.

Retrievability:

Records are arranged by establishment number and alphabetically by name of applicant. Records are also retrievable by names of persons responsibly connected with the applicant. Establishment data in the computer are indexed by establishment number, Region, Area, and circuit; export data by country; personnel data by Region/Area/circuit; mail data by access code, literature code, or recipient code.

Safeguards:

Records are maintained in password-protected minicomputers, microcomputers, magnetic tape or locked file cabinets with attendants on duty during normal operating hours. Offices are locked after normal operating hours.

Retention and disposal:

Active records are maintained indefinitely. Computer records for withdrawn plants are retained for 3 years. Computer printouts are destroyed after use.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Information Systems Development and Support Section, FSIS, Room 4906, South Building, 14th Street and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250.

Notification procedure:

A request for information should be addressed to the FSIS Privacy Act Coordinator, 14th Street and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250.

Record access procedures:

Individuals who wish to gain access to or amend records pertaining to themselves should submit a written request to the Privacy Act Coordinator at the above address.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301, and E.O. 9397.

Purpose(s):

The Department of Agriculture uses information in this system of records to identify pilots who have performed unsatisfactorily while working under a federal contract for services.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) The Department of Agriculture (USDA) may disclose information in this system of records to the Department of Justice (DOJ) for use in litigation, if USDA, or any component thereof, determines that the use of such records by DOJ is relevant and necessary to the conduct of the litigation and that disclosure of the information to DOJ is compatible with the purpose(s) for which the records were collected where any of the following are parties to the litigation or have interests that would be affected by the litigation.

(a) USDA, or any component thereof;

(b) Any USDA employee acting in an official capacity;

(c) Any USDA employee acting in an individual capacity whom DOJ has agreed to represent; or

(d) The United States, if USDA determines that the litigation is likely to affect USDA or any of its components.

(2) USDA may disclose information in this system of records in a proceeding before a court or other adjudicative body before which USDA is authorized to appear, if USDA or any component thereof determines that disclosure of the records to the court or other adjudicative body is a use that is compatible with the purpose(s) for which the records were collected, where USDA determines that the information is relevant and necessary to the conduct of the litigation and any of the following are parties to the proceeding or have interests that would be affected by the proceeding:

(a) USDA, or any component thereof;

(b) Any USDA employee acting in an official capacity;

(c) Any USDA employee acting in an individual capacity whom USDA has agreed to represent; or

(d) The United States, if USDA determines that the litigation is likely to affect USDA or any of its components.

(3) When available information indicates a violation or potential violation of civil, criminal, or administrative law arising by statute or rule, regulation, or order, USDA may refer any record within this system to the appropriate Federal, State, local, or foreign agency charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law or of enforcing or implementing a statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

(4) USDA may disclose information from the record of an individual contained in this system in response to an inquiry from a congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(5) If USDA deems it desirable or necessary in order to determine whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, the Department may disclose the records to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice.

(6) USDA may disclose information from this system of records in response to a request for discovery or for the appearance of a witness, to the extent that what is disclosed is relevant to the subject matter at issue in a pending judicial or administrative proceeding.

(7) USDA may refer information from this system of records to the appropriate officials of the Department of the Interior, Office of Aircraft Services, for their use in monitoring pilot proficiency.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Authority for maintenance of the system: 16 U.S.C. 559.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (1) Referral to appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, or local, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto; (2) referral to a court, magistrate, or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, of any record within the system which constitutes evidence in that proceeding, or which is sought in the course of discovery; (3) referral to the Department of Justice for the defense of suits against the United States or its officers, or for the institution of suits for the recovery of claims by the United States Department of Agriculture; (4) referral to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Data is stored on magnetic media and vertical file folders.

Retrievability: Files are maintained under 5340 designation, identified by the individual's name.

Safeguards: Staff are instructed to allow access to authorized persons only. The files are kept in locked file cabinets.

Retention and disposal: Files are retained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Fiscal and Accounting Management Staff, USDA—Forest Service, Washington, D.C., 20250 or the appropriate Regional Forester or Forest Supervisor at the address specified above.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (3)(4)(G), (H), (I), and (f). See 7 CFR 1.23. This exemption will only be used to maintain the efficacy and integrity of lawful investigations, and to prevent access to certain law enforcement files which would alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Any individual who feels, however, that he has been denied any right, privilege or benefit for which he would otherwise be eligible as a result of the maintenance of such material may request access to the material. Such requests should be addressed to the appropriate system manager.

Safeguards: Records are kept in either locked filing cabinets or in computer files which are accessible only by special code.

Retention and disposal: Records will be maintained on individuals in the Forest Service or organizational units which elect to have a Placement Availability System. Records may be maintained on employees who have voluntary applications or file for lateral reassignment to organizational units which elect a Placement Availability System. Records will be destroyed on individuals who leave organizational units which have a Placement Availability System.

System manager(s) and address: Director of Personnel Management, Forest Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Room 910 RP-E, P.O. Box 2417, Washington, D.C. 20013, or the appropriate Regional Personnel Officer or the appropriate Research Station Assistant Director for Administrative Support Services.

Notification procedure: Any employee may request information regarding the system of records, or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to him or her from the system manager. A request for information should contain the individual's name and social security number and organizational unit.

Record access procedures: Use same procedures as for requesting notification.

Contesting record procedures: Individual records may be amended or updated at any time, as the individual employee desires. Any part of an employee's record may be contested by that individual. The servicing personnel office will provide procedural advice.

Record source categories: The information in the records is furnished by the individual employee, the employee's immediate supervisor and/or unit supervisor.

USDA/FS—48

System name: YCC Long-term Benefit Evaluation, USDA/FS.

System location: Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station, 240 West Prospect Street, Fort Collins, CO 80521.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Former YCC enrollees and their parents or guardians, unsuccessful applicants to the YCC program and their parents or guardians, and individuals in communities local to YCC camps.

Categories of records in the system: Name and address of above persons, signed statement of person's willingness to participate in the study, identification number for each person (not social security number), responses on questionnaires completed at each phase of the study by respondents. Questionnaires will solicit information from respondents on the benefits of the YCC program to the enrollees, to the parents to the community, and to society in general. This information will pertain to the following broad classes of benefits:

a. Increased awareness and appreciation of the environment.
b. Improved work habits and work skills.
c. Improved ability to get along with others.
d. Increased self-confidence.
e. Improvement in the enrollee's basic orientation to life (greater awareness of and direction toward life goals, more physically fit, etc.).
f. Other related benefits of lesser significance.

Questionnaires will also solicit demographic information (race, sex, age, education, etc.) from enrollees.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 16 U.S.C. 1701–1706.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made to Colorado State University and the U.S. Department of the Interior. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional Office from the records of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional Office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Information will be kept on keypunch cards or data tapes.

Retrievability: Names and addresses of respondents will be kept for the purpose of mailing questionnaires only. An ID number will be assigned to each individual and will be used to determine who has or has not returned the questionnaire and to trace the changes in responses. Names and/or addresses of the respondents will not be associated with the responses on the questionnaires in any way.

Safeguards: The information on respondents obtained in the study is not potentially damaging, but all information will be kept in a small locked room. People who will have access to the information will be those directly involved with the evaluation study; the two principal investigators, the project director, two research assistants and the computer programmer and keypuncher. All personnel involved with the study will be instructed on the proper handling of the data.

Retention and disposal: The names and addresses will be destroyed by December 30, 1983. The remaining statistical data will be maintained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Human Resource Programs, USDA, Forest Service, 12th and Independence, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Notification procedure: Any individual may request information regarding the system of records, or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to him by contacting the system manager.

Record access procedures: To obtain information on the procedure for obtaining access to the records, write to system manager using the above address.

Contesting record procedures: Use the same procedures as for record access.

Record source categories: Names and addresses of enrollees from lists of enrollees at each camp; parents of enrollees from the enrollees whose names are obtained from the camp lists; unsuccessful applicants maintained by YCC administrators in Washington, D.C. and from lists of unsuccessful applicants maintained by agencies in those states not included in the Washington, D.C. list; parents of unsuccessful applicants from the unsuccessful applicants; individuals in communities near YCC camps from those involved in the YCC program and others who would be aware of the people in the communities local to YCC camps who are knowledgeable about the program and could provide valuable information on the program's benefits; other categories are self-explanatory.

USDA/FS-49

System name:

USDA/FS-49, Roster of Forestry and Natural Resources Expertise.

System location:

The records in this system are maintained at the office of the USDA, Forest Service, International Forestry Staff, P.O. Box 96090, Washington, DC 20013-6090.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The system includes records of individuals from local, State and Federal agencies, the private sector, and the university community who are seeking international assignments in forestry or natural resources with the Forest Service, the United States Agency for International Development, the United States Peace Corps, or other cooperating agencies and organizations.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of a summary of each applicant's qualifications, a resume or other documentation providing detailed information relative to education and/or experience, and related correspondence. The system will also contain the addresses and phone numbers where individuals can be contacted.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 1302; 7 U.S.C. 1736; and 22 U.S.C. 2386–2388, 2392, 2513.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(2) Disclosure to the Department of Justice for use in litigation when USDA, or any component thereof; or any employee of USDA in his or her official capacity; or any employee of USDA in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or the United States, where USDA determines the litigation is likely to affect USDA or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by USDA to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, USDA determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected;

(3) Disclosure in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which USDA is authorized to appear, when USDA or any component thereof; or any employee of USDA in his or her official capacity; or any employee of USDA in his or her individual capacity where USDA has agreed to represent the employee; or the United States, where USDA determines that litigation is likely to affect USDA or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation and USDA determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, USDA determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected;

(4) Referral to the appropriate agency, where Federal, State, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or, prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto;

(5) To answer congressional inquiries made at the request of the individual from whose record information is disclosed.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained in file folders at the agency address listed above; qualification summaries are maintained in an automated database for easy retrieval.

Retrievability:

Paper records are indexed alphabetically and/or by identification number. Automated records may be retrieved by experience, education, language capability, employment status or other criteria required for the successful conduct of proposed assignments or acquisitions.

Safeguards:

All records containing personal information are maintained in secured file cabinets and in secured computer systems.

Retention and disposal:

Until the National Archives and Records Administration determines an appropriate retention and disposal schedule for these records, they will be retained indefinitely in accordance with Forest Service Handbook 6209.11, Records Management Handbook.

System manager(s) and address:

Special Projects Coordinator, Forestry Support Program, International Forestry Staff, USDA Forest Service, P.O. Box 96090, Washington, DC 20013-6090.

Notification procedure:

Individuals may request information regarding this system of records, or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to them from the Special Projects Coordinator, Forestry Support Program (address above). A request for information should contain name, address, and particulars involved (for example, the date of action giving rise to the inquiry or complaint).

Record access procedures:

Individuals who wish to gain access to or amend records pertaining to themselves should submit a written request to the Special Projects Coordinator, Forestry Support Program (address above). The envelope and letter should be marked "Privacy Act Request."

Contesting record procedures:

Same as record access procedures.

Record source categories:

Information in this system comes from applicants for agency acquisition or Federal employees interested in international forestry or natural resources development assignments.

USDA/FS-50

System name: Skills Bank Data Base, USDA/FS.

System location:

USDA/FS, Pacific Southwest Forest and Range Experiment Station (Station), 1960 Addison Street, Berkeley, California 94704.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All FS permanent employees assigned to the Pacific Southwest Region and to the Pacific Southwest Forest and Range Experiment Station.

Categories of records in the system:

A skills bank data form, containing the name, social security number, position title, series, grade, career goals and aspirations, knowledge, skills, abilities, work history, and education of FS employees.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301, 7 U.S.C. 2201, and 42 U.S.C. 2000e-16, et seq.

Purpose(s):

Assistance in eliminating underrepresentation of women within each General Schedule job series represented within the regional workforce and at each grade level therein and assistance in effective human resource management by encouraging more qualified applicants for vacancies and certain details.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

There are no routine uses for this system of records.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Skills Bank Data Base records are stored for computers on disks, magnetic tape, and other electronic media accessible only by password.

Retrievability:

Records can be accessed by data entry number; computer address, name, social security number (obtained voluntarily and used for purposes of verification only), position title, current pay plan, series and job grade; career goals; education; work experience, and knowledge, skills and abilities.

Safeguards:

On-line access to Skills Bank Data Base data is controlled by password protection, and is limited to those names entered into a controlled pool of names of persons with designated access authority in the Region. These are either the persons who have been assigned to access the Skills Bank data base or those supervisors who have agreed to do so. At the Station, access is limited to the Director, Assistant Directors, Project Leaders, Group Leaders, Administrative Officer or Business Management Assistant.

Retention and disposal:

Until the National Archives and Records Administration determines an appropriate retention and disposal schedule for these records, they will be retained indefinitely in accordance with the FS Handbook 6209.11, Records Management Handbook.

System manager(s) and address:

Group Leader of Statistics and Computer Services, Pacific Southwest Station, 1960 Addison Street, Berkeley, California 94704.

Notification procedure:

An individual may request information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to him or her by signing on to a locally-based computer terminal and viewing his or her own record. The employee can then print out the data. Individuals not employed in the Pacific Southwest Region or Station may obtain this information by written request to the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

Same as notification procedure.

Contesting record procedures:

See notification procedure, above. An employee, having obtained and printed his or her own record, may make corrections on the printed record and forward the corrected record to the appropriate Personnel Office for correction of the record in the data base. Further information may be obtained by making a written request to the system manager. USDA regulations on contesting contents of records and appealing initial determinations are set forth at 7 CFR 1.100-1.123.

Record source categories:

Information in these records is obtained directly from the individuals in the system.

USDA/OFM-1

System name:

Drug-Free Federal Workplace Records.

System location:

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), Office of Finance and Management, Safety and Health Management Division, 14th and Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20250; USDA Agency headquarters offices; and offices of contractors who perform functions such as collection of urine specimens, laboratory analysis, and medical review of confirmed positive laboratory findings.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

USDA employees, Farm Credit System Assistance Board employees, and persons who have applied to USDA for employment.

Categories of records in the system:

Records relating to the selection, notification, and testing of covered individuals; collection and chain of custody of urine specimens; urine specimens; drug test results information.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

E.O. 12564, dated September 15, 1986, "Drug-Free Federal Workplace"; Pub. L. No. 100-71, section 503, July 11, 1987.

Purpose(s):

The system is established to maintain records relating to the selection and testing of Federal employees and applicants for Federal employment for use of illegal drugs. The records will provide the basis for taking appropriate action in reference to employees who test positive for use of illegal drugs.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records other than drug testing results may be disclosed:

(1) To drug testing laboratories under contract with USDA or other U.S. Government agencies to perform tests on urine specimens provided by selected USDA employees and applicants for employment;

(2) To the Medical Review Officers under contract with USDA or other U.S. Government agencies for verification of the results received from the testing laboratories; or

(3) In a judicial or administrative proceeding where required by the United States Government to defend against any challenge against any adverse personnel action.

Disclosures of Drug Test Results. Pursuant to Pub. L. No. 100-71, section 503, July 11, 1987, the results of a drug test of a Federal employee will be disclosed only:

(1) To the employee's medical review officer;

(2) To the administrator of any employee counseling services program in which the employee is receiving counseling or treatment or is otherwise participating;

(3) To any supervisory or management official within the employee's agency having authority to take the adverse personnel action against such employee; or

(4) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction where required by the United States Government to defend against any challenge against any adverse personnel action.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained on magnetic disk and in paper form.

Retrievability:

Records are retrieved by name of agency, name of employee or applicant, position title, Social Security Number, employee ID number, date of birth, or any combination of these.

Safeguards:

Records are maintained in a secured area or on automated media with access limited to authorized personnel whose duties require access.

Retention and disposal:

Generally, records are retained for two years and then destroyed by shredding, burning, or erasure in the case of magnetic media.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Safety and Health Management Division, Office of Finance and Management, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250.

Notification procedure:

Individuals wishing to inquire whether this system contains records about them should contact their USDA Agency Headquarters Office or the Chief, Safety and Health Management Division, Office of Finance and Management. Individuals must provide the following information for their records to be located and identified:

a. Name.
b. Date of birth.
c. Social Security Number.
d. Identification number (if known).
e. Approximate date of record.
f. USDA agency and position title.

Record access procedures:

Individuals should contact the Chief, Safety and Health Management Division, Office of Finance and Management, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250.

Record source categories:

Records in this system are obtained from:

a. The individual to whom the records pertain.
b. Agency employees involved in the selection and notification of individuals to be tested.
c. Laboratories that test urine specimens for the presence of illegal drugs.
d. Supervisors, managers and other agency officials.

None.

USDA/OFM-2

System name:

Employee Counseling Services Program Records.

System location:

U.S. Department of Agriculture, Office of Finance and Management, Safety and Health Management Division, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250, and USDA agencies.

Note. In order to meet the statutory requirement that agencies provide appropriate prevention, treatment, and rehabilitaiton programs and services for employees with alcohol or drug problems, and to better accommodate establishment of a health service program to promote employees' physical and mental fitness, it may be necessary for an agency to negotiate for use of the counseling staff of another Federal, State, or local government, or private sector agency or institution. This system also covers records on USDA employees that are maintained by another Federal, State, or local government, or private sector agency or institution under such a negotiated agreement.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Current and former USDA employees and Farm Credit System Assistance Board employees who have been counseled or otherwise treated regarding alcohol or drug abuse or for personal or emotional health problems.

Categories of records in the system:

Records in this system include documentation of visits to employee counselors (Federal, State, local government, or private) and the diagnosis, recommended treatment, results of treatment, and other notes or records of discussions held with the employee made by the counselor. Additionally, records in this system may include documentation of treatment by a private therapist or a therapist at a Federal, State, local government, or private institution.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 7361 et seq., 5 U.S.C. 7901, and 42 U.S.C. 290dd-3 and 290ee-3.

Purpose(s):

These records are used to document the nature of the individual's problem and progress made and to record an individual's participation in the results of community or private sector treatment or rehabilitation programs.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records and information in these records may be disclosed:

1. To the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States, when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of USDA (and, with respect to Farm Credit System Assistance Board employees, because of activities of the Farm Credit System Assistance Board) in connection with the individual.

2. To qualified personnel for the purpose of conducting scientific research, management audits, financial audits, or program evaluation, but such personnel may not identify, directly or indirectly, any individual patient in any report or otherwise disclose patient indentities in any manner (when such records are provided to qualified researchers employed by USDA, all patient identifying information shall be removed).

Note: Disclosure of these records beyond officials of USDA or the Farm Credit Assistance Board having a bona fide need for them or to the person to whom they pertain, is rarely made as disclosures of information pertaining to an individual with a history of alcohol or drug abuse must be limited in compliance with 42 CFR Part 2, Confidentiality of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Patient Records. Records pertaining to the physical and mental fitness of employees are, as a matter of policy, afforded the same degree of confidentiality and are generally not disclosed.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are maintained in file folders.

Retrievability:

These records are retrieved by the name of the individual subjects of the records.

Retention and disposal:

Employee records are maintained for 3 to 5 years after the employee's last contact with USDA's Employee Counseling Services Program or, if the employee leaves the agency, until the Employee Counseling Services Program Annual Report for the fiscal year in which separation occurred is prepared. Records are destroyed by shredding or burning.

Safeguards:

These records are maintained in locked file cabinets labeled confidential with access strictly limited to employees directly involved in USDA alcohol and drug abuse prevention function (as the term is defined in 42 CFR Part 2) and the Employee Counseling Services Program.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Safety and Health Management Division, Office of Finance and Management, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20250.

Notification procedure:

USDA employees wishing to inquire whether this system of records contains information about them should contact the USDA Employee Counseling Services Program Manager or their Agency Counseling Services Program Coordinator who arranged for counseling or treatment. Individuals must furnish the following information for their records to be located and identified:

a. Name.

b. Date of birth.

c. USDA agency for whom employed.

An individual must also follow the Privacy Act regulations regarding verification of identify and access to records (7 CFR 1.112 and 1.113).

Record source categories:

Information in this system of records comes from the individual to whom it applies, the supervisor of the individual if the individual was referred by a supervisor, the Employee Counseling Services Program Staff member who records the counseling session, and therapists or institutions providing treatment.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

USDA/OFM-3

System name:

Administrative Billings and Collections, USDA/OFM.

System location:

National Finance Center, OFM, USDA, New Orleans, Louisiana 70160.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals (including current and former USDA employees) who are indebted to the Department for any reason.

Categories of records in the system:

This automated system establishes a master file containing the debtor's name, address, social security number of assigned vendor number, amount of indebtedness, amount of current collection, and amount of total billing. Eventually, these records are transferred to a history file for inquiry use. Information regarding debts subject to IRS offset, claims on travel advances, and delinquent debtor names and social security numbers used in computer matches with the Department of Defense and the United States Postal Service are kept separate from the administrative billings and collections data base in a manually updated claims data base.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

31 U.S.C. 3711 through 3719; 4 CFR Chapter II.

Purpose(s):

The records in this system are used to issue bills and collect funds due to the Government in compliance with the Debt Collection Act of 1982, Pub. L. No. 97-365, 96 Stat. 1749, as amended by Pub. L. No. 98-167, 97 Stat. 1104.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(2) Referral to the Department of Justice when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her indvidual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to the litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, providing, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records of the Department of Justice is a use of the information that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(3) Disclosure in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to the litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, providing, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(4) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made on behalf of the individual.

(5) Information will be forwarded to another Federal agency when a USDA employee accepts employment with another Federal agency.

(6) Referral of information regarding indebtedness to the Defense Manpower Data Center, Department of Defense, and the United States Postal Service for the purpose of conducting computer matching programs to identify and locate individuals receiving Federal salary or benefit payments and who are delinquent in their payments of debts owed to the U.S. Government in order to collect debts by voluntary repayment, administrative or salary offset procedures under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 5514, or through collection agencies under the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 3718.

(7) Information contained in this system of records may be disclosed to a debt collection agency, when USDA determines such referral is appropriate for collecting the debtor's account as provided for in U.S. Government contracts with collection agencies executed pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 3718.

(8) Where prior collection efforts have failed, the USDA will refer to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) information from this system of records concerning past-due legally enforceable debts for offset against tax refunds that may become due the debtors for the tax year in which referral is made, in accordance with IRS regulation at 26 CFR 301.6402-6T, Offset of Past-due Legally Enforceable Debt Against Overpayment, and under the authority contained in 31 U.S.C. 3720A.

Purpose(s):

Information contained in this system of records may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency in accordance with 31 U.S.C. 3711(f).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained on magnetic tape files, disk files, and in file folders at the National Finance Center addressed above.

Retrievability:

Records in the administrative billings and collections data base are retrieved by social security number and by name of individual; equivalent identifying number in case of non-USDA employees. Records in the claims data base are retrieved by claim number.

Safeguards:

Magnetic tape files and disk files are kept in a locked computer room and tape library which can be accessed by authorized personnel only. File folders are maintained in secured areas with access by authorized personnel only. Disk files are password protected to limit access to authorized personnel only. On-line access by National Finance Center and other agency personnel is password protected.

Retention and disposal:

Master history magnetic tapes are retained in accordance with a tape library management schedule. Manual records are transferred to the Federal Records Center for storage and disposition in accordance with General Services Administration regulations.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, National Finance Center, OFM, USDA, P.O. Box 60,000, New Orleans, Louisiana 70160.

Notification procedure:

Any indivdual may request information regarding this system of records, or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to him/her from the System Manager. A request for information pertaining to an individual should be in writing and should contain: Name, address, social security number and particulars involved (i.e., dates of claims, copies of correspondence, etc.).

Record access procedures:

Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for gaining access to a record in the system which pertains to him/her by submitting a written request to the System Manager.

Contesting record procedures:

Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for contesting a record in the system which pertains to him/her by submitting a written request to the System Manager.

Record source categories:

Information in this system comes primarily from USDA employees, former USDA employees, non-USDA employees, agency claimants, and USDA or other investigative personnel.

System location:

National Finance Center, OFM, USDA, New Orleans, Louisiana 70160.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All USDA imprest cashiers and alternates and USDA employees designated as chiefs of field party.

Categories of records in the system:

This automated system establishes master files containing the name, social security number, employment address and telephone, and amount of advance for each cashier, alternate cashier, and chief of field party. It also includes records of disbursements, reimbursements, accountability reports and verification, and audit of funds.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

31 U.S.C. 3322, and 3321; I TFM 4-3000.

Purpose(s):

The records in this system are used to process advances and reimbursement vouchers for imprest fund cashiers and chiefs of field parties.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(2) Referral to the Department of Justice when (a) the agency, or any component thereof, or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to the litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, providing, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(3) Disclosure in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to the litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, providing, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(4) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to any inquiry from the congressional office made on behalf of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained on microfilm cartridges, magnetic tape files, disk files, and file folders.

Categories of records in the system: The system consists of investigatory material which may include intradepartmental recommendations, and interdepartmental recommendations pertaining to an alleged violation of the subject Acts.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 21 U.S.C. 601 et seq., 21 U.S.C. 451 et seq., and 7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (1) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing a statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (2) presentation or disclosure to a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, of any record within the system as evidence in a proceeding, or which is sought in the course of discovery including disclosure to opposing counsel in the course of settlement negotiations; (3) presentation, as needed, in the course of presenting evidence to the appropriate Government officials charged with the reponsibility of defending the Government before a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal; (4) disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in file folders at the applicable address listed above.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name of the individual.

Safeguards: Records are kept in a locked office or file cabinet.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained until file is closed or no longer needed or as otherwise provided in agency directives and disposed of or sent to appropriate records centers in accordance with such directives.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Regulatory Division, OGC, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f) because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

Addresses of each field office are listed in the telephone directories of the respective cities listed above under the heading "United States Government Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel."

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Primarily applicants for FmHA financial assistance and FmHA borrowers and grantees; in some regional offices also parties to litigation, purchasers of FmHA security property, vendors to FmHA borrowers, contractors and builders of FmHA financed projects, packagers of FmHA loan dockets, real estate salesmen and brokers dealing with FmHA property applicants or having a security interest in property owned or financed or to be financed by FmHA or to whom FmHA notes are assigned, present and former owners and holders of an interest in real property serving as security for FmHA loans, third party converters, and individuals who file claims against FmHA.

Categories of records in the system: Records on individual applicant, borrower or grantee cases, sometimes including FmHA loan dockets, copies of promissory notes and security instruments, title evidence, legal opinions, correspondence, investigation reports, contracts, pleadings, legal documents covering foreclosures and loan or grant making or servicing, title opinions, contracts, closing instructions, notices, and related documents.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301, 42 U.S.C. 1471-1490, 4401-19; 4453-55 and 7 U.S.C 1921-92.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (1) Referral of certain records to trustees for reconveyance or foreclosure of deeds of trust, or correction of errors, to appropriate State and County officials for recording or filing of legal documents, to title companies or Bureau of Indian Affairs for title clearance, to appropriate agencies and individuals for institution of nonjudicial foreclosure and other loan servicing and liquidation actions, and to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. (2) Referral to a court, magistrate, or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, or any record within the system which constitutes evidence in that proceeding, or which is sought in the course of discovery. (3) Referral to Department of Justice for suits against the United States or its officers or instrumentalities concerning USDA activities. (4) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Retrievability: Records are usually indexed by the name of the individual on whom the file is maintained. In some instances records are maintained in numerical order corresponding to the FmHA account number. In some instances they are also cross-indexed by the names of individuals mentioned in the files.

Safeguards: Records are kept in locked offices. Secretive materials such as Office of Investigation reports are kept in locked drawers or file cabinets.

Retention and disposal: Records are usually retained for 12 to 18 months after the case is closed. In some Regional Offices certain records are maintained indefinitely, primarily for research value.

System manager(s) and address: Appropriate Regional Attorney or Attorney-in-Charge.

Notification procedure: Any individual may request information regarding this system of records, or information whether the system contains records pertaining to him from the appropriate System Manager. A request should contain the name and address of the individual involved and as much other identifying information as possible.

Record access procedures: Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for gaining access to a record in the system which pertains to him by submitting a written request for same to the appropriate System Manager at the above address.

Contesting record procedures: Same as Records Access Procedures.

Record source categories: Information in this system comes primarily from applicants, borrowers, grantees, FmHA or other USDA employees, attorneys, credit reporting agencies, title companies, and State and Federal government agencies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: Those records in this system which consist of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes have been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), and (f). See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

USDA/OGC—13

System name: Claims by and Against USDA under the Food Assistance Legislation, USDA/OGC.

Addresses of each field office are listed in the telephone directories of the respective cities listed above under the heading "United States Government, Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel".

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who seek to participate in the Food Stamp Act of 1964; National School Lunch Act, or Child Nutrition Act of 1966, and individuals reported to be in violation of one or more of these acts.

Categories of records in the system: The system consists of files on all individual cases, including investigation reports, pleadings, transcripts, legal correspondence, statements of witnesses, and related documents.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 7 U.S.C. 2011-2026; 42 U.S.C. 1751-1763; 42 U.S.C. 1771-1786.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (1) Referral to a court, magistrate, or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, of any record within the system which constitutes evidence in that proceeding, or which is sought in the course of discovery. (2) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. (3) Referral to the Department of Justice for defense of suits brought against the United States or its officers, and for institution of suit for recovery of claims by USDA. (4) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in file folders at the applicable locations listed above.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by the name of the individual involved.

Safeguards: Records are kept in a locked office file cabinet.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained for a length of time left to the discretion of the Director of the Food and Nutrition Division or Regional Attorney or Attorney-in-Charge, after legal action has been concluded.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Food and Nutrition Division, OGC, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. Each Regional Attorney or Attorney-in-Charge at the locations specified above.

Notification procedure: Any individual may request information regarding this system of records, or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to him from the Director, Food and Nutrition Division, OGC, USDA, Washington, D.C., telephone 202-447-4631, or the appropriate Regional Attorney or Attorney-in-Charge at the locations specified above. A request for information pertaining to an individual should contain his name, address, and the particulars involved (i.e. the date of any action complained of, date a claim was filed, correspondence, etc.).

Record access procedures: Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for gaining access to a record in the system which pertains to him, by submitting a written request to the appropriate official referred to in the preceding paragraph.

Contesting record procedures: Any individual may obtain information concerning the process for contesting a record in the system that pertains to him by following the procedures referred to directly above.

Record source categories: Information in this system comes primarily from claimants, witnesses, agency employees, and investigative personnel.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The portions of the system consisting of investigatory material that has been compiled for law enforcement purposes have been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I), and (f). Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert the subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action. Disclosure of investigative technique and procedures, and of the identity of confidential sources of information, would hamper law enforcement activity.

USDA/OGC—14

System name: Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, USDA/OGC—disciplinary proceedings to deny issuance of a license to an applicant thereunder or to suspend or revoke a license already issued, or to publish the facts and circumstances of violations of the Act.

System location: Office of the General Counsel, Food and Nutrition Division, USDA, Washington, D.C., and offices of Regional Attorneys and Attorneys-in-Charge, OGC, USDA, at the following locations: Albuquerque, New Mexico; Missoula, Montana; Atlanta, Georgia; Ogden, Utah; Chicago, Illinois; Portland, Oregon; Denver, Colorado; Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; San Francisco, California; Santurce, Puerto Rico; Little Rock, Arkansas; Shawnee Mission, Kansas; Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Stillwater, Oklahoma; Temple, Texas.

Addresses of each field office are listed in the telephone directories of the respective cities listed above under the heading "United States Government, Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel."

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who apply for or who hold licenses to do business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry in their individual capacities, partners of partnerships which apply for or which hold licenses to do business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry; officers, directors and holders of 10 percent or more of the stock of corporations which apply for or hold licenses to do business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act of 1930, as amended, are included in this system of records.

Categories of records in the system: The system consists of reports of investigation, statements of witnesses, agency reports.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Use by the Office of the General counsel for (1) administrative proceedings pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act to deny the issuance of a license to an applicant therefor to do business in the perishable agricultural commodities industry; (2) administrative proceedings pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act to suspend or revoke an already existent license, or alternatively to have the facts and circumstances of violations published for violations thereof by the holder of such license; (3) disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name of individual license applicant or holder.

Safeguards: Records are kept in a locked office or file cabinet.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Food and Nutrition Division, OGC, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, or the appropriate Regional Attorney or Attorney-in-Charge at the addresses specified above.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I), and (f) because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or to escape administrative procedures to deny to them the issuance of a license or to suspend or revoke such license, or to have published the facts and circumstance of the violations. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

Record access procedures: Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for gaining access to and contesting a record in the system which pertains to him, by submitting a written request to the appropriate official referred to in the proceeding paragraph.

Contesting record procedures: Same as Record Access Procedures.

Record source categories: Information in this system comes primarily from witnesses, agency employees, and investigative personnel.

USDA/OGC—24

System name: Court cases brought by the Government pursuant to either the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 or the Tobacco Inspection Act, USDA/OGC.

System location: Office of the General Counsel, Marketing Division, USDA, Washington, D.C.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who are regulated by the subject Act and against whom the Department recommends that an enforcement action be brought by the Government.

Categories of records in the system: The system consists of investigatory material which may include intradepartmental recommendations, and interdepartmental recommendations pertaining to an alleged violation of the subject Act.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq. or 7 U.S.C. 511 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (1) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing a statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising in general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (2) presentation or disclosure to a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, of any record within the system as evidence in a proceeding, or which is sought in the course of discovery including disclosure to opposing counsel in the course of settlement negotiations; (3) presentation, as needed, in the course of presenting evidence, to the appropriate Government officials charged with the responsibility of defending the Government before a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal; (4) disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in file folders at the applicable address listed above.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name of the individual.

Safeguards: Records are kept in a locked office or file cabinet.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained until file is closed or no longer needed or as otherwise provided in agency directives and disposed of or sent to appropriate records centers in accordance with such directives.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Marketing Division, OGC, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I), and (f) because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

Contesting record procedures: Same as Record Access Procedures.

Record source categories: Information in this system come primarily from witnesses, agency employees, and investigative personnel.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The portions of this system which involve cases by the Department under the Virus-Serum Toxin Act have been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), (I) and (f) because they consist of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. See 7 CFR 1.123. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

System name: Personnel Irregularities, USDA/OGC.

System location: Office of the General Counsel, Research and Operations Division, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, and offices of Regional Attorneys and Attorneys-in-Charge, OGC, USDA, at the following locations: Albuquerque, New Mexico; Atlanta, Georgia; Denver, Colorado; Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; Little Rock, Arkansas; Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Missoula, Montana; Ogden, Utah; Portland, Oregon; San Francisco, California; Santurce, Puerto Rico; Shawnee Mission, Kansas; Stillwater, Oklahoma; Temple, Texas.

Addresses of each field office are listed in the telephone directories of the respective cities listed above under the heading "United States Government, Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel."

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Employees and former employees of USDA, members of local and county committees established pursuant to 16 U.S.C. 590h(b), employees of such county committees, and extension service agents performing duty pursuant to 7 U.S.C. 341-349.

Categories of records in the system: The system consists of investigation reports and other relevant documents pertaining to violations of criminal statutes.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Titles 5, 18 U.S.C.; 7 CFR 2.31.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Referral to (1) the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (2) a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, or any record within the system which constitutes evidence in that proceeding, or which is sought in the course of discovery; (3) Department of Justice for institution of suits to recover claims by USDA arising out of irregularities, (4) disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in file folders at the applicable address listed above.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name of individual employee.

Safeguards: Records are kept in a locked office.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained until case is closed or no longer needed or as otherwise provided in agency directives and disposed of or sent to appropriate records centers in accordance with such directives.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Research and Operations Division, OGC, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250, or the appropriate Regional Attorney or Attorney-in-Charge at the address specified above.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I) and (f) because it consists of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. Individual access to these files could impair investigations and alert subjects of investigations that their activities are being scrutinized, and thus allow them time to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action or escape prosecution. Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures and the existence and identity of confidential sources of information would hamper law enforcement activity.

USDA/OGC—76

Authority for maintenance of the system:

7 U.S.C. 3191.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information is made available to agency contracting officers to determine if Federal employees with required qualifications are available and, if not, to initiate development of an acquisition and to facilitate competitive selection in the issuance of agency acquisitions. Referral of information is made to (1) authorized individuals of other Federal agencies or international organizations seeking technically qualified individuals/firms in the field of agriculture; (2) accredited investigative agents of any Federal agency to carry out investigative functions; (3) current and former contractors to review their own records; (4) appropriate agencies, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when available information indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; and (5) a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal, or to opposing counsel in a proceeding before any of the above, of any record within the system which constitutes evidence in that proceeding, or is sought in the course of discovery.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained in file folders at the agency address listed above; qualification summaries are maintained in an automated database for easy retrieval.

Retrievability:

Paper records are indexed alphabetically and/or by identification number. Automated records may be retrieved by education, experience, language capability or other criteria required for the successful conduct of proposed assignments or acquisitions.

Safeguards:

All records containing personal information are maintained in secured file cabinets and in secured computer terminal rooms.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained indefinitely for active applicants. If an applicant is not selected for three (3) years after receipt of his/her application, the application will be destroyed in conformance with approved records schedules.

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (k)(5), this system has been exempted from the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a: subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I) and (f).

USDA/OIG–3

System name:

Investigative Files and Subject/Title Index, USDA/OIG.

System location:

In the Headquarters Office in the Agriculture Administration Building, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20250, and in the OIG Regional and Investigation Suboffices listed in the system of records designated USDA/OIG–1.

Except for inadvertent errors, all entries in regional office indexes are duplicated in the Headquarters index. Thus the Headquarters index is the only complete index in OIG. The Headquarters Files also contain a copy of every investigative report, but not the correspondence in all cases. Older investigative files may be stored in Federal Records Centers or on microfiche. Therefore, delays in retrieving this material can be expected.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The individual names in the OIG index fall into one or more of the following categories:

Subjects. These are applicants for OIG employment or individuals against whom allegations of wrongdoing have been made. In some instances, these individuals have been the subjects of investigations conducted to establish whether allegations were true. In other instances, the allegations were deemed too frivolous or indefinite to warrant inquiry.

Principals. These are individuals who are not named subjects of investigative inquiries, but may be responsible for violations. For example, the president of a firm alleged to have violated laws or regulations would likely be individually listed in the OIG index.

Complainants. These are individuals who allege wrongdoing, mismanagement, or unfair treatment relating to USDA employees and/or programs.

Others. These are all other individuals closely connected with a matter of investigative interest or whose names have been checked through the index to determine whether they were of record.

Categories of records in the system:

The OIG Subject/Title Index and Investigative Files consist of:

1. Index cards and/or a microfiche index filed alphabetically by the names of individuals, organizations, and firms with a separate card or line items for each; dates of entries made into the index or dates of materials containing information about the named subjects; and identification of the OIG file or files containing information on that subject.

2. Files containing bound sheets of paper or microfiche of such sheets from investigative and other reports, correspondence, and informal notes and notations concerning: (a) One investigative matter or (b) a number of incidents of the same sort of alleged violation or irregularity.

If such information was available when an index card or line item was made, the card or microfiche concerning an individual will include the individual's address, date of birth, and Social Security number.

3. Where investigation is being or will be conducted, but has not been completed, various case management records, investigator's notes, statements of witnesses, and copies of records. These are contained on index slips or cards and sheets of paper located in an OIG office or in the possession of the OIG investigator. Certain management records are retained after the investigative report is released as a means of following action taken on the basis of the OIG investigative report.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Pub. L. 95-452, as amended, 5 U.S.C. App.; 5 U.S.C. 301; 7 U.S.C. 2270; 7 CFR 2.33.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Routine uses (1) through (17) listed in the system of records designated USDA/OIG-1.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The OIG Subject/Title Index consists of 3 inch by 5 inch cards or microfiche line items stored in steel cabinets. The investigative files are stored in steel lektriever cabinets, on microfiche sheets, or in Federal Records Center.

Retrievability:

The subject cards or line items are arranged alphabetically, and each card or line item identifies one or more OIG investigative case files or administrative files arranged numerically by file number. Information in investigative or administrative files concerning individuals not indexed is considered irretrievable.

Safeguards:

These records are available within USDA and to others in the Executive Branch only upon proper identification and on a need-to-know basis. These records are kept in limited-access areas during duty hours and in locked offices at all other times.

Retention and disposal:

The cards or line items are kept indefinitely and investigative case files are maintained for 15 years. However, certain investigative case files of unusual significance are kept indefinitely. Administrative files are kept for five years.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Management and Budget Staff, Office of Inspector General, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

USDA/OIG-5

System name:

Management Information and Data Analysis System, USDA/OIG.

System location:

Computer files are maintained on the Computer Sciences Infonet System with main offices at 650 North Sepulveda, El Segundo, California. Source documents and printouts are kept in OIG Headquarters, U.S. Department of Agriculture, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20250 and in the OIG regional offices listed in the system of records designated as USDA/OIG-1 (with the exception of the New York Regional Office.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

OIG professional audit employees.

Categories of records in the system:

The Management Information and Data Analysis System provides audit management officials with a wide range of information on audit operations, including job performance of OIG professional audit personnel in grade GS-13 and below. The system identifies individual audit assignments of employees and provides information on their use of direct and indirect time; significant dates relating to each audit such as starting date, exit conference date, and report release date; the number and significance of audit findings and the identity of all the professionals who participated in the assignment.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Pub. L. 95-452, as amended, 5 U.S.C. App.; 5 U.S.C. 301; 7 U.S.C. 2270; 7 CFR 2.33.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Routine uses (1) through (17) listed in the system of records designated USDA/OIG-1.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Computer discs and/or magnetic tape.

Retrievability:

Information in the system can be retrieved by OIG Headquarters and regions. Information can be retrieved by audit report number, employee Social Security number, or geographic location.

Safeguards:

Normal computer security is maintained over access to discs and magnetic tapes. Printouts are available within USDA as necessary and are kept under lock and key when not in use. Source documents are kept in file cabinets in the offices listed above.

Retention and disposal:

Discs and/or magnetic tapes are cleared, retired, or destroyed, when no longer useful, in accordance with General Services Administration and USDA retirement and/or destruction schedules.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Inspector General for Audit, Office of Inspector General, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Notification procedure:

Any individual may request information regarding this system of records, or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to him/her, from the Director, Management and Budget Staff, USDA/OIG, Washington, D.C. 20250. A request for information pertaining to an individual should contain: Name, address, and particular information requested.

Record access procedures:

Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for gaining access to a record in the system which pertains to him/her by submitting a written request to the Director, Management and Budget Staff, OIG, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Contesting record procedures:

Same as access procedures described above.

Record source categories:

Information in the system comes entirely from OIG audit employees.

USDA/OIG—6

System name:

Audit Information System, USDA/OIG.

System location:

Records included in this system may be located at audit sites throughout the United States or at any of the Departmental Computer Centers. The Departmental Computer Centers are: (1) Washington Computer Center, 12th and Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20250; (2) New Orleans Computer Center, P.O. Box 29383, New Orleans, Louisiana 70189; (3) Kansas City Computer Center, P.O. Box 293, Kansas City, Missouri 64141; (4) St. Louis Computer Center, 1520 Market Street, Room 1624, Box 14153 Main Post Office, St. Louis, Missouri 63178; (5) Fort Collins Computer Center, Drake Executive Plaza, Suite 220, 2625 Redwing Road, Fort Collins, Colorado 80526.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

This system employs temporary data sets, computer printouts, and other audit records obtained from USDA agencies, non-Federal sources, and Federal agencies other than USDA. Individuals covered by these records are participants in programs adminsitered and/or funded by the Department of Agriculture; employees of USDA and other Federal, State, county, and municipal agencies; and officials and employees of contractors, grantees, and cooperators that conduct business related to USDA programs.

Categories of records in the system:

The system may contain, for short periods of time, various categories of records relating to administration of, or individual participation in, USDA programs. For example, the categories of records may relate to the Department's farm, food, loan and research programs and to payroll records of USDA or other governmental employees.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Pub. L. 95-452, as amended, 5 U.S.C. App., 5 U.S.C. 301; 7 U.S.C. 2270; 7 CFR 2.33.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Routine uses (1) through (17) listed in the system of records designated USDA/OIG-1.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information is stored electronically on computer direct access storage devices or magnetic tape and in computer printouts and other audit records.

Retrievability:

Electronically stored information may be retrieved using standard audit software analysis and retrieval packages and is limited only by the data elements maintained in the data set. This information may be transmitted and received using standard teleprocessing procedures. Data elements may include such information as an individual's name, address, social security numbers, employee identification, case or farm number, and specific information about the individual's program participation or employment. Information located in computer printouts and other audit records may be retrieved manually while audits are in process. After an audit is completed, information about individuals can only be retrieved by first identifying the audit involved (by type, location and time conducted) and then retrieving the information from audit work materials by mechanical or electronic search. If individual participation was investigated, personal privacy information about that individual may be retrievable, by name, from system USDA/OIG-3, described above.

Safeguards:

Normal computer security is maintained over access to electronically encoded data. Computer printouts and other audit records are protected in accordance with the sensitivity of data contained therein.

Retention and disposal:

Electronically encoded data is seldom retained for more than six months. It is then destroyed either by degaussing or overwriting the computer media. Computer printouts and manually prepared audit records may be incorporated into audit files where they are retrievable only by audit number of report title. Audit files are retained in accordance with General Services Administration retirement and/or destruction schedules. Computer printouts not incorporated into audit files are destroyed.

System manager(s) and address:

The system managers are the USDA Regional Inspectors General for Audit in whose geographical areas the audit sites and Departmental Computer Centers are located. These are as follows: (1) Regional Inspector General for Audit, North Atlantic Region, OIG, USDA, 26 Federal Plaza, Room 17-130, New York, New York 10278; (2) Regional Inspector General for Audit, Northeast Region, OIG, USDA, 6505 Belcrest Road, Room 422, Hyattsville, Maryland 20782 (Washington Computer Center); (3) Regional Inspector General for Audit, Southeast Region, OIG, USDA, 1447 Peachtree Street, NE., Room 900, Atlanta, Georgia 30309; (4) Regional Inspector General for Audit, Midwest Region, OIG, USDA, 165 North Canal Street, Suite 1400 S-C, Chicago, Illinois 60606; (5) Regional Inspector General for Audit, Southwest Region, OIG, USDA, 101 South Main Street, Room 324, Temple, Texas 76501 (New Orleans Computer Center); (6) Regional Inspector General for Audit, Great Plains Region, OIG, USDA, 935 Holmes, Room 210, Kansas City, Missouri 64131; Mailing Address: P.O. Box 293, Kansas City, Missouri 64141 (Kansas City, Fort Collins, and St. Louis Computer Centers); (7) Regional Inspector General for Audit, Western Region, OIG, USDA, 555 Battery Street, Room 514, San Francisco, California 94111.

Notification procedure:

Any individual may request information contained in this system of records or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to that individual by contacting the Director, Management and Budget Staff, OIG, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.The individual is reminded that this system of records is temporary and usually is accessible only while an audit of a particular program or activity is in process. The period of accessibility normally ranges from one month to approximately six months, depending on the type of audit and the use made of the information. Any request for information pertaining to an individual should contain that person's name, address, the USDA program the individual is participating in, any pertinent identification number such as a case number, and the particular information requested. Proof of identity and/or authorization to access will be required.

Record access procedures:

Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for gaining access to a record in the system which pertains to that person by submitting a written request to the Director, Management and Budget Staff, OIG, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Contesting record procedures:

These inquiries also should be sent to the Director, Management and Budget Staff, OIG, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Record source categories:

Information contained in this system of records is obtained mainly from USDA agencies and State and local governments that administer USDA programs on a cooperative basis and may be obtained from other grantees and program participants and other Federal agencies.

Information generally relates to a USDA program or activity which is being audited. Upon conclusion of the audit, the information is either destroyed, returned to the originator, or stored in an audit file from which information about individuals cannot be retrieved without manual and/or electronic search.

USDA/SEC—1

System name: Non-Career Applicant File, USDA/SEC

System location: Office of the Secretary, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW., Room 202A, Administration Building, Washington, D.C. 20250

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who have applied or have been referred to the Department for non-career appointments.

Categories of records in the system: Consists of resumes and correspondence regarding individuals who are generally interested in non-career appointments, who are candidates for specific appointments and those who have been appointed.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 3301-3302; 5 CFR Part 9.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Referred to agency heads in anticipation of or in the case of specific non-career vacancies. "Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual."

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records maintained in file folders in the Office of the Deputy Under Secretary, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Retrievability: Records indexed by name of individual.

Safeguards: Records kept in locked files with a pad locked security bar.

Retention and disposal: Records more than a year old are usually disposed of or if an applicant has accepted employment elsewhere, the files are discarded.

System manager(s) and address: Deputy Under Secretary, Office of the Secretary, United States Department of Agriculture, Room 202-E, Administration Building, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Notification procedure: Any person may request information regarding this system of records, or information as to whether the system contains records pertaining to him, from the System Manager. Such requests should include the name and address of the requester and a statement of his reasons for believing the system may contain records about him.

Record access procedures: Use same procedures as for requesting Notification.

Contesting record procedures: Use same procedures as for requesting Notification.

Record source categories: Information on this system comes from the individuals themselves, various federal, state and local governmental agencies, and persons having knowledge of the individual's character and capabilities.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: This system has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) from the requirements of 5 USC 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(l), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure of records contained in the system would reveal the identity of a source who had furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence (or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise the identity of the source would be held in confidence). See 7 CFR 1.123. If such promise of confidentiality could not be made, the Department's ability to obtain candid evaluations of persons being considered for appointment to non-career positions would be greatly impaired. This exemption enables the Department to obtain needed information when the source will not provide it unless he has promised that his identity will be kept confidential.

USDA-SCS-1

System name:

Program Cooperators—Soil Conservation Service, USDA/SCS

System location.

All field offices of the Soil Conservation Service, usually located in county seats of government. Addresses of each field office are listed in the telephone directories of the field office locations under the heading, "United States Government, Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service."

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Cooperators with SCS programs including soil and water conservation district cooperators.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of an automated retrieval system and file folders on individual cooperators recording the planning, development, and accomplishments of the plan on his or her land. These files contain personal and economic data.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

16 U.S.C. 590 a–f, q, q-1 and 42 U.S.C. 3271–3274

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) Records may be disclosed to cooperating Federal, State, and local agencies, as necessary for implementation of conservation programs. (2) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual. (3) Disclosure to Federal, State, and local agencies, when necessary to certify that a conservation plan is in effect for land users to qualify for other USDA program benefits. (4) Referral to the Department of Justice when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (5) Disclosure in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when (a) the agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (6) Referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law, or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Title 7, U.S. Code, Section 2272, authorizes USDA to utilize volunteers to carry out soil and water conservation work.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records and data may be disclosed, as is necessary: (1) To Members of Congress to respond to inquiries made on behalf of individual constituents who are record subjects; (2) to the Department of Justice when: (a) The agency, or any component thereof; or (b) an employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected; (3) in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear when: (a) The agency, or any component thereof; or (b) any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (c) any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee; or (d) the United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the court is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected; (4) in the event that material in this system indicates a violation of law, whether civil or criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records may be disclosed to the appropriate Federal, State, foreign or local agency charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained in an automated database retrieval system and in file folders in the offices in which volunteers work.

Retrievability:

Records are retrieved by name of volunteer, Social Security Account Number, and duty station.

Safeguards:

System access is restricted to authorized Soil Conservation Service employees. The automated data retrieval system is secured by a series of restricted user passwords. Manual files are maintained in file cabinets. Offices are locked during nonbusiness hours.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained in the system for as long as the individual volunteer works for the agency. Upon termination, records of hours worked are transferred to the National Finance Center in New Orleans, to provide the individual credit for the work experience.

System manager(s) and address:

The system is managed by the Coordinator of Volunteer Services, Judith K. Johnson, 7515 NE Ankeny Road, Ankeny, Iowa 50021.

Notification procedure:

Any individual may request information regarding this system of records by contacting the state volunteer program coordinator. For general information regarding the system or if the location of the record is not known with sufficient specificity, the individual should address his request to the Chief, Records Management Branch, Information Resources Management Division, USDA Soil Conservation Service, P.O. Box 2890, Washington, DC 20013, who will refer it to the appropriate office.

Record access procedures:

Any individual may obtain information as to the procedures for gaining access to a record in the system which pertains to him by submitting a written request to the above-named system manager or to the Chief, Records Management Branch, USDA-SCS, Washington, DC 20013.

Contesting record procedures:

All inquiries should be addressed to the Chief, Records Management Branch, USDA-SCS, Washington, DC 20013.

Record source categories:

Information in this system is supplied by the volunteers themselves, using application forms and interest and skills questionnaires approved for this use. Information on hours worked is provided by the volunteers through their direct supervisors.

USDA/SCS—3

System name: Federal Financed Cost-Sharing Information applicable to individual particpants in USDA—Soil Conservation Service (SCS) programs.

System location: Records in this system are maintained at the Soil Conservation Service. Headquarters in Washington, D.C. and in the ComputerCenters located at the National Finance Center, New Orleans, Louisiana, SCS Technical Service Center, Fort Worth, Texas, and USDA Computer Centers located in Washington, D.C., Fort Collins, Colorado, and Kansas City, Missouri.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Volunteer participants, namely landowners and operators in conservation programs administered by the Soil Conservation Service where federally financed cost sharing is involved. The programs are the Great Plains Conservation Program, Small Watershed Program, Rural Abandoned Mine Program, and Resource Conservation and Development Program.

Categories of records in the system: Computer data cards, tapes, computer printouts, and hard copies of records. these records include name, address, social security number, SCS program, and amount of payment by program.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Soil Conservation Act, Pub. L. 74-46, 49 Stat. 163, (16 U.S.C. 590a-f, q); Resource Conservation and Development Program, Pub. L. 87-703, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1010-1011); Small Watershed Program, Pub. L. 83-566, 68 Stat. 666, as amended (16 U.S.C. 1001-1009); Rural Abandoned Mine Program, Pub. L. 95-87, 91 Stat. 163 (16 U.S.C. 590 a-f, q); Great Plains Conservation Program, Pub. L. 84-1021, 70 Stat. 1115, as amended (16 U.S.C. 590 p(b)); and related laws 42 U.S.C. 3271-3274.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Report to Internal Revenue Service (IRS) of payments made to individual participants for income tax purposes. Also used by authorized USDA personnel for budget estimates and program cost data.

Disclosure of data to IRS is in accordance with the Internal Revenue Act of 1954 (26 U.S.C. 6041) as amended.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

By individual on keypunched cards or magnetic tapes for computers.

Retrievability: Names and addresses of the individuals are kept for reports to the Internal Revenue Service. Record material will be retrieved by name, social security number, and program applicable.

Safeguards: Locked file cabinets, locked computer storage rooms, and locked computer terminal rooms. Access to records is in accordance with USDA ADP security plan as supplemented by SCS.

Retention and disposal: Maintained indefinitely on a currently updated basis.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Management Systems Branch, Management Evaluation Division, Soil Conservation Service, P.O. Box 2890, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Notification procedure: Any Soil Conservation Service officer from which the individual participant has received technical assistance for implementation of a conservation plan required for Federal cost-sharing financial assistance will receive requests for information regarding the system of records. Identifying information should be made by individual names, social security number, address, contract or agreement number, and program involved.

Record access procedures: To obtain information for obtaining access to the system of records, write to the system manager listed above.

Contesting record procedures: Use the same procedures as for records access.

Record source categories: Participants voluntarily ask for Federal financial cost-share assistance to apply needed conservation treatment or practices to lands owned or operated by the individual particpant. Such cost-sharing data is needed for Federal income tax information as it applies to the year and income of the participant using the programs.

Subpart G—Privacy Act Regulations

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a.

Source: 40 FR 39519, Aug. 28, 1975, unless otherwise noted.

§ 1.110 Purpose and scope.

This subpart contains the regulations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) implementing the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a). It sets forth the basic responsibilities of each agency of USDA with regard to USDA's compliance with the requirements of the Act, and offers guidance to members of the public who wish to exercise any of the rights established by the Act with regard to records maintained by an agency of USDA.

§ 1.111 Definitions.

For purposes of this subpart the terms "individual," "maintain," "record," "system of records," "statistical record," and "routine use" shall have the meanings set forth in 5 U.S.C. 552a(a). The term "agency" shall mean an agency of USDA, unless otherwise indicated.

§ 1.112 Procedures for requests pertaining to individual records in a record system.

(a) Any individual who wishes to be notified if a system of records maintained by an agency contains any record pertaining to him, or to request access to such records, shall submit a written request in accordance with the instructions set forth in the system notice for that system of records. This request shall include:

(1) The name of the individual making the request;

(2) The name of the system of records (as set forth in the system notice to which the request relates);

(3) Any other information specified in the system notice; and

(4) When the request is one for access, a statement as to whether the requester desires to make a personal inspection of the records, or be supplied with copies by mail.

(b) Any individual whose request under paragraph (a) of this section is denied may appeal that denial to the head of the agency which maintains the system of records to which the request relates.

(c) In the event that an appeal under paragraph (b) of this section is denied, the requester may bring a civil action in federal district court to seek review of the denial.

§ 1.113 Times, places, and requirements for identification of individuals making requests.

(a) If an individual submitting a request for access under § 1.112 has asked that an agency authorize a personal inspection of records pertaining to him, and the agency has granted that request, the requester shall present himself at the time and place specified in the agency's response or arrange another, mutually convenient, time with the appropriate agency official.

(b) Prior to inspection of the records, the requester shall present sufficient identification (e.g., driver's license, employee identification card, social security card, credit cards) to establish that he is the individual to whom the records pertain. If the requester is unable to provide such identification, he shall complete and sign in the presence of an agency official a signed statement asserting his identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another individual under false pretenses is a misdemeanor punishable by fine up to $5,000. No identification shall be required, however, when the records are ones whose disclosure is required by 5 U.S.C. 552.

(c) Any individual who has requested access to records about him via personal inspection, and who wishes to have another person or persons accompany him during this inspection, shall submit a written statement authorizing disclosure of the record in their presence.

(d) Any individual having made a personal inspection of records pertaining to him may request the agency to provide him copies of those records or any portion thereof. Each agency shall grant such requests but may charge fees in accordance with § 1.120.

(e) If an individual submitting a request for access under § 1.112 wishes to be supplied with copies of the records by mail, he shall include with his request sufficient data for the agency to verify his identity. If the sensitivity of the records warrant it, however, the agency to which the request is directed may require the requester to submit a signed, notarized statement indicating that he is the individual to whom the records pertain and stipulating he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another individual under false pretenses is a misdemeanor punishable by fine up to $5,000. No identification shall be required, however, when the records are ones whose disclosure is required by 5 U.S.C. 552. If the agency to which this request is directed determines to grant the requested access, it may charge fees in accordance with § 1.120 before making the necessary copies.

§ 1.114 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.

(a) Any agency which receives a request or appeal under § 1.112 should acknowledge the request or appeal within 10 days of its receipt (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays). Wherever practicable, the acknowledgment should indicate whether or not access will be granted and, if so, when and where. When access is to be granted, the agency should provide the access within 30 days of receipt of the request or appeal (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal public holidays) unless, for good cause shown, it is unable to do so. If the agency is unable to meet this deadline, it shall inform the requester of this fact, the reasons for its inability to do so, and an estimate of the date on which access will be granted.

(b) Nothing in 5 U.S.C. 552a or this subpart shall be interpreted to require that an individual making a request under § 1.112 be granted access to the physical record itself. The form in which a record is kept (e.g., on magnetic tape), or the content of the record (e.g., a record indexed under the name of the requester may contain records which are not about the requester) may require that the record be edited or translated in some manner. Neither of these procedures may be utilized, however, to withhold information in a record about the requester.

(c) No agency shall deny any request under § 1.112 for information concerning the existence of records about the requester in any system of records it maintains, or deny any request for access to records about the requester in any system of records it maintains, unless that system is exempted from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) in § 1.123.

(d) If any agency receives a request pursuant to § 1.112(a) for access to records in a system of records it maintains which is so exempted, the system manager shall determine if the exemption is to be asserted. If he determines to deny the request, he shall inform the requester of that determination, the reason for the determination, and the title and address of the agency head to whom the denial can be appealed.

(e) If the head of an agency determines that an appeal pursuant to § 1.112(b) is to be denied, he shall inform the requester of that determination, the reason therefor, and his right under 5 U.S.C. 552a(g) to seek judicial review of the denial in federal district court.

(f) Nothing in 5 U.S.C. 552a or this subpart shall allow an individual access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

§ 1.115 Special procedures: Medical records.

In the event an agency receives a request pursuant to § 1.112 for access to medical records (including psychological records) whose disclosure it determines would be harmful to the individual to whom they relate, it may refuse to disclose the records directly to the requester but shall transmit them to a doctor designated by that individual.

§ 1.116 Request for correction or amendment to record.

(a) Any individual who wishes to request correction or amendment of any record pertaining to him contained in a system of records maintained by an agency shall submit that request in writing in accordance with the instructions set forth in the system notice for that system of records. This request shall include:

(1) The name of the individual making the request;

(2) The name of the system of records (as set forth in the system notice to which the request relates);

(3) A description of the nature (e.g., modification, addition or deletion) and substance of the correction or amendment requested; and

(4) Any other information specified in the system notice.

(b) Any individual submitting a request pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section shall include sufficient information in support of that request to allow the agency to which it is addressed to apply the standards set forth in 5 U.S.C. 552(e) (1) and (5).

(c) Any individual whose request under paragraph (a) of this section is denied may appeal that denial to the head of the agency which maintains the system of records to which the request relates.

(d) In the event that an appeal under paragraph (c) of this section is denied, the requester may bring a civil action in federal district court to seek review of the denial.

§ 1.117 Agency review of request for correction or amendment of record.

(a) Any agency which receives a request for amendment or correction under § 1.116 shall acknowledge that request within 10 days of its receipt (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal public holidays). It shall also promptly, either:

(1) Make any correction, deletion or addition with regard to any portion of a record which the requester believes is not accurate, relevant, timely or complete; or

(2) Inform the requester of its refusal to amend the record in accordance with his request; the reason for the refusal; the procedures whereby he can appeal the refusal to the head of the agency; and the title and business address of that official. If the agency informs the requester of its determination within the 10-day deadline, a separate acknowledgement is not required.

(b) If an agency is unable to comply with either paragraphs (a)(1) or (2) of this section within 30 days of its receipt of a request for correction or amendment, (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal public holidays), it should inform the requester of that fact, the reasons therefor, and the approximate date on which a determination will be reached.

(c) In conducting its review of a request for correction or amendment, each agency shall be guided by the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e) (1) and (5).

(d) If an agency determines to grant all or any portion of a request for correction or amendment, it shall:

(1) Advise the individual of that determination;

(2) Make the requested correction or amendment; and

(3) Inform any person or agency outside USDA to whom the record has been disclosed, and where an accounting of that disclosure is maintained in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(c), of the occurrence and substance of the correction or amendments.

(e) If an agency determines not to grant all or any portion of a request for correction or amendment, it shall:

(1) Comply with paragraph (d) of this section with regard to any correction or amendment which is made;

(2) Advise the requester of its determination and the reasons therefor;

(3) Inform the requester that he may appeal this determination to the head of the agency which maintains the system of records; and

(4) Describe the procedures for making such an appeal, including the title and business address of the official to whom the appeal is to be addressed.

(f) In the event that an agency receives a notice of correction or amendment to information in a record contained in a system of records which it maintains, it shall comply with paragraphs (d) (2) and (3) of this section in the same manner as if it had made the correction or amendment itself.

§ 1.118 Appeal of initial adverse agency determination on correction or amendment.

(a) Any individual whose request for correction or amendment under § 1.116 is denied, and who wishes to appeal that denial, shall address such appeal to the head of the agency which maintains the system of records to which the request relates, in accordance with the procedures set forth in the agency's initial denial of the request.

(b) The head of each agency shall make a final determination with regard to an appeal submitted under paragraph (a) of this section not later than 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) from the date on which the individual requests a review, unless, for good cause shown, the head of the agency extends this 30-day period and so notifies the requester, together with an estimate of the date on which a final determination will be made. Such extension should be utilized only in exceptional circumstances and should not normally exceed 30 days. The delegation of authority set forth in this paragraph may not be redelegated.

(c) In conducting his review of an appeal submitted under paragraph (a) of this section, the head of an agency shall be guided by the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e) (1) and (5).

(d) If the head of an agency determines to grant all or any portion of an appeal submitted under paragraph (a) of this section, he shall inform the requester and the agency shall comply with the procedures set forth in § 1.117(d)(2) and (d)(3).

(e) If the head of an agency determines in accordance with paragraph (c) of this section not to grant all or any portion of an appeal submitted under paragraph (a) of this section, he shall inform the requester:

(1) Of this determination and the reasons therefore;

(2) Of the requester's right to file a concise statement of his reasons for disagreeing with the agency's decision;

(3) Of the procedures for filing such a statement of disagreement;

(4) That such statements of disagreements will be made available to anyone to whom the record is subsequently disclosed, together with (if the agency deems it appropriate) a brief statement by the agency summarizing its reasons for refusing to amend the record;

(5) That prior recipients of the disputed record will be provided with a copy of the statement of disagreement, together with (if the agency deems it appropriate) a brief statement of the agency's reasons for refusing to amend the record, to the extent that an accounting of disclosures is maintained under 5 U.S.C. 552a(c); and

(6) Of the requester's right to seek judicial review of the agency's determination in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(g). The agency shall insure that any statements of disagreement submitted by a requester are handled in accordance with paragraphs (e) (4) and (5) of this section.

§ 1.119 Disclosure of record to person other than the individual to whom it pertains.

No agency shall disclose any record which is contained in a system of records it maintains, by any means of communication to any person, or to another agency outside USDA, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of, the individual to whom the record pertains, unless the disclosure is authorized by one or more provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(b).

§ 1.120 Fees.

Any agency which provides copies of records pursuant to a request under this subpart may charge fees for the direct costs of producing such copies in accordance with Appendix A to Subpart A of this part. No agency, however, shall charge any fee for searches necessary to locate records. Nor shall an agency charge any fees for copies or searches, when the requester sought to make a personal inspection but was provided copies instead at the discretion of the agency.

§ 1.121 Penalties.

The criminal penalties which have been established for violations of the Privacy Act of 1974 are set forth in 5 U.S.C. 552a(i). These penalties are applicable to any officer or employee of an agency who commits any of the enumerated acts. These penalties also apply to contractors and employees of such contractors who enter into contracts with an agency of USDA on or after September 27, 1975, and who are considered to be employees of the agency within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. 552a(m).

§ 1.122 General exemptions.

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j), and for the reasons set forth in 54 FR 11204–11206 (March 17, 1989), the systems of records (or portions thereof) maintained by agencies of USDA identified below are exempted from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, except subsections (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4)(A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i).

Appendix A—Internal Directives

Section 1 General Requirements. Each agency that maintains a system of records subject to 5 U.S.C. 552a and the regulations of this subpart shall:

(a) Maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required to be accomplished by statute or by executive order of the President;

(b) Collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's rights, benefits, and privileges under Federal programs;

(c) Inform each individual whom it asks to supply information, on the form which it uses to collect the information, or on a separate form that can be retained by the individual:

(1) the authority (whether granted by statute, or by executive order of the President) which authorizes the solicitation of the information and whether disclosure of such information is mandatory or voluntary;

(2) the principal purpose or purposes for which the information is intended to be used;

(3) the routine uses which may be made of the information, as published pursuant to paragraph (d)(4) of this section; and

(4) the effects on him, if any, of not providing all or any part of the requested information;

(d) Subject to the provisions of section 2 of this Appendix, prepare for publication in the Federal Register at least annually a notice of the existence and character of each system it maintains, which notice shall include:

(1) The name and location(s) of the system;

(2) the categories of individuals on whom records are maintained in the system;

(3) the categories of records maintained in the system;

(4) each routine use of the records contained in the system, including the categories of uses and the purpose of such use;

(5) the policies and practices of the agency regarding storage, retrievability, access controls, retention, and disposal of the records;

(6) the title and business address of the agency official who is responsible for the system of records;

(7) the agency procedures whereby an individual can be notified at his request if the system of records contains a record pertaining to him;

(8) the agency procedures whereby an individual can be notified at his request how he can gain access to any record pertaining to him contained in the system of records, and how he can contest its content; and

(9) the categories of sources of records in the system;

(e) Maintain all records which are used by the agency in making any determination about any individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination;

(f) Prior to disseminating any record about an individual to any person other than an agency, unless the dissemination is made pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(2), make reasonable efforts to assure that such records are accurate, complete, timely, and relevant for agency purposes;

(g) Maintain no record describing how any individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless expressly authorized by statute or by the individual about whom the record is maintained, or unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity;

(h) Make reasonable efforts to serve notice on an individual when any record on such individual is made available to any person under compulsory legal process when such process becomes a matter of public record;

(i) Establish rules of conduct for persons involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records, or in maintaining any record, and instruct each such person with respect to such rules and the requirements of this section, including any other rules and procedures adopted pursuant to this section and the penalties for noncompliance;

(j) Establish appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to insure the security and confidentiality of records and to protect against any anticipated threats or hazards to their security or integrity which could result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to any individual on whom information is maintained.

Sec. 2 Amendment of routine uses for an existing system of records, or establishment of a new system of records.

(a) Any agency which intends to add a routine use, or amend an existing one, in a system of records it maintains, shall, in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(11), insure that 30 days advance notice of such action is given by publication in the Federal Register and an opportunity provided for interested persons to submit written data, views or arguments to the agency.

(b) Any agency which intends to establish a new system of records, or to alter any existing system of records, shall insure that adequate advance notice is provided to Congress and the Office of Management and Budget to permit an evaluation of the probable or potential effect of such action on the privacy and other personal or property rights of individuals or the disclosure of information relating to such individuals, and its effect on the preservation of the constitutional principles of federalism and separation of powers. Such notice is required for any new system of records and for any alteration in an existing one which will:

(1) Increase the number or types of individuals on whom records are maintained;

(2) Expand the type or amount of information maintained;

(3) Increase the number or categories of agencies or other persons who may have access to those records;

(4) Alter the manner in which the records are organized so as to change the nature or scope of those records (e.g., the combining of two or more existing systems);

(5) Modify the way the system operates at its location(s) in such a manner as to alter the procedures which individuals can exercise their rights under this Subpart; or

(6) Change the equipment configuration on which the system is operated so as to create the potential for greater access (e.g., adding a telecommunications capability).

Sec. 3 Accounting of Certain Disclosures. Each agency, with respect to each system of records under its control, shall:

(a) Except for disclosures made under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b) (1) and (2), keep an accurate account of:

(1) The date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure of a record to any person or agency outside the Department; and

(2) the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made:

(b) Retain the accounting made under paragraph (a) of this section for the longer of a period of five years, after the date of the disclosure for which the accounting is made, or the life of the record disclosed;

(c) Except for disclosures made under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(7), make the accounting above available to the individual named in the record at his request.

Sec. 4 Government Contractors. When an agency within the Department provides by a contract for the operation by or on behalf of the agency of a system of records to accomplish an agency function, the agency shall, consistent with its authority, cause the requirements of this Subpart to be applied to such system. For purposes of 5 U.S.C. 552a(i) any such contractor or any employee of such contractor, if such contract is agreed to on or after September 27, 1975, shall be considered to be an employee of an agency and therefore subject to the criminal penalties set forth in that section.

Sec. 5 Mailing Lists. No agency within the Department shall sell or rent any individual's name and address unless such action is specifically authorized by law. This section shall not be construed to require, or to authorize, the withholding of names and addresses whose disclosure is required by 5 U.S.C. 552.

Sec. 6 Social security account numbers. (a) No agency shall deny, or permit any State or local government with whom it is involved in a cooperative venture to deny, to any individual any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because of such individual's refusal to disclose his social security account number.

(b) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this section shall not apply with respect to:

(1) Any disclosure required by Federal statute; or

(2) any disclosure to any agency relating to a system of records it maintained prior to January 1, 1975, if such disclosure was required under statute or regulation adopted prior to that date, to verify the identity of an individual.

(c) Any agency in the Department which requests an individual to disclose his social security account number shall inform that individual whether the disclosure is mandatory or voluntary, by what statutory or other authority the number is solicited, and what uses will be made of it. The agency shall also insure that this information is provided by a State or local government with whom it is involved in a cooperative agreement.

Sec. 7. Annual report. Each agency in the Department shall submit to the Office of the General Counsel prior to March 30 of each year (beginning March 30, 1976) a report containing the following information related to implementation of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(a) A summary of major accomplishments;

(b) A summary of major plans for activities in the upcoming year;

(c) A list of the systems which were exempted during the year from any of the operative provisions of this subpart pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k), whether or not the exemption was effected during that year, the number of instances with respect to each system exempted in which the exemption was invoked to deny access, and the reasons for invoking the exemption;

(d) A brief summary of changes to the total inventory of personal data system subject to this Subpart including reasons for major changes; and

(e) A general description of operational experiences including estimates of the number of individuals (in relation to the total number of records in the system):

(1) Requesting information on the existence of records pertaining to them;

(2) Refusing to provide information;

(3) Requesting access to their records;

(4) Appealing initial refusals to amend records; and

(5) Seeking redress through the courts.

Sec. 8. Effect of 5 U.S.C. 552. No agency in the Department shall rely on any exemption in 5 U.S.C. 552 to withhold from an individual any record which is otherwise accessible to such individual under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a and this Subpart.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), the head of any agency may exempt any system of records within the agency from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, if the agency or component that maintains the system performs as its principal function any activities pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws. The Inspector General Act of 1978, Pub. L. 95-462, mandates the Inspector General to recommend policies for, and to conduct, supervise and coordinate activities in the Department and between the Department and other Federal, State and local government agencies with respect to all matters relating to the prevention and detection of fraud in programs and operations administered or financed by the Department, and to the identification and prosecution of participants in such fraud. Under the Act, whenever the Inspector General has reasonable grounds to believe there has been a violation of Federal criminal law, the Inspector General must report the matter expeditiously to the Attorney General. In addition to these principal functions pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws, the Inspector General may receive and investigate complaints on information from various sources concerning the possible existence of activities constituting violations of law, rules or regulations, or mismanagement, gross waste of funds, abuses of authority or substantial and specific danger to the public health and safety. The provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 from which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are as follows: 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4); 5 U.S.C. 552a(d); 5 U.S.C. 552a(e) (1), (2) and (3); 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); 5 U.S.C. 552a(e) (5) and (8); 5 U.S.C. 552a(f); 5 U.S.C. 552a(g).

Provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 from which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(1), (k)(2) and (k)(5) are as follows: 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); 5 U.S.C. 552a(d); 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1); 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); 5 U.S.C. 552a(f).

Reasons for exemptions: In general, the exemption of this information and material is necessary in order to accomplish the law enforcement function of the Office of Inspector General, to prevent disclosure of classified information as required by Executive Order 12065, to prevent subjects of investigations from frustrating the investigatory process, to prevent the disclosure of investigative techniques, to fulfill commitments made to protect the confidentiality of sources, to maintain access to sources of information, and to avoid endangering these sources and law enforcement personnel. Detailed reasons follow: Reasons for exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2);

(1) 5 U.S.C. 552a(C)(3) requires that upon request, an agency must give an individual named in a record an accounting which reflects the disclosure of the record to other persons or agencies. This accounting must state the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure of the record and the name and address of the recipient. The application of this provision would alert subjects of an investigation to the existence of the investigation and that such persons are subjects of that investigation. Since release of such information to subjects of an investigation would provide the subjects with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation, it could result in the alerting or destruction of documentary evidence, improper influencing of witnesses, and other activities that could impede or compromise the investigation.

(2) 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(4), (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (f) and (g) relate to an individual's right to be notified of the existence of records pertaining to such individual; requirements for identifying an individual who requests access to records; the agency procedures relating to access to records and the contest of information contained in such records; and the civil remedies available to the individual in the event of adverse determinations by an agency concerning access to or amendment of information contained in records systems. This system is exempt from the foregoing provisions for the following reasons: To notify an individual at the individual's request of the existence of records in an investigative file pertaining to such individual, or to grant access to an investigative file could interfere with investigative and enforcement proceedings, deprive co-defendants of a right to a fair trial or other impartial adjudication, constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of others, disclose the identity or confidential sources, reveal confidential information supplied by these sources and disclose investigative techniques and procedures.

(3) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(I) requires the publication of the categories of sources of records in each system of records. The application of this provision could disclose investigative techniques and procedures and cause sources to refrain from giving such information because of fear or reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentiality. This would compromise the ability to conduct investigations, and to identify, detect, and apprehend violators.

(4) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(I) requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual that is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required by statute or Executive Order. An exemption from the foregoing is needed:

a. Because it is not possible to detect relevance or necessity of specific information in the early stages of a criminal or other investigation.

b. Relevance and necessity are questions of judgment and timing. What appears relevant and necessary when collected may ultimately be determined to be unnecessary. It is only after the information is evaluated that the relevance and necessity of such information can be established.

c. In any investigation the Inspector General may obtain information concerning the violations of laws other than those within the scope of his jurisdiction. In the interest of effective law enforcement, the Inspector General should retain this information as it may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity, and provide leads for those law enforcement agencies charged with enforcing other segments of criminal or civil law.

d. In interviewing persons, or obtaining other forms of evidence during an investigation, information may be supplied to the investigator which related to matters incidental to the main purpose of the investigation but which may relate to matters under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. Such information cannot readily be segregated.

(5) 5 U.S.C. 552(e)(2) requires an agency to collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's rights, benefits, and privilege under Federal programs. The application of the provision would impair investigations of illegal acts, violations of the rules of conduct, merit system and any other misconduct of the following reasons:

a. In certain instances the subject of an investigation cannot be required to supply information to investigators. In those instances, information relating to a subject's illegal acts, violations of rules of conduct, or any other misconduct, etc., must be obtained from other sources.

b. Most information colected about an individual under investigation is obtained from third parties such as witnesses and informers. It is not feasible to rely upon the subject of the investigation as a source for information regarding his activities.

c. The subject of an investigation will be alerted to the existence of an investigation if any attempt is made to obtain information from subject. This could afford the individual the opportunity to conceal any criminal activities to avoid apprehension.

d. In any investigation, it is necessary to obtain evidence from a variety of sources other than the subject of the investigation in order to verify the evidence necessary for successful litigation.

(6) 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(e)(3) requires that an agency must inform the subject of an investigation who is asked to supply information of:

a. The authority under which the information is sought and whether disclosure of the information is mandatory or voluntary,

b. The purposes for which the information is intended to be used,

c. The routine uses which may be made of the information, and

d. The effects on the subject, if any, of not providing the requested information. The reasons for exempting this system of records from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The disclosure to the subject of the investigation as stated in (b) above would provide the subject with substantial information relating to the nature of the investigation and could impede or compromise the investigation.

(ii) If the subject were informed of the information required by this provision, it could seriously interfere with undercover activities requiring disclosure of undercover agents' identity and impairing their safety, as well as imparing the successful conclusion of the investigation.

(iii) Individuals may be contracted during preliminary information-gathering in investigations before any individual is identified as the subject of an investigation. Informing the individual of the matters required by this provision would hinder or adversely affect any present or subsequent investigations.

(7) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5) requires that records be maintained with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in making any determination about an individual. Since the law defines "maintain" to include the collection of information complying with this provision would prevent the collection of any data not shown to be accurate, relevant, timely, and complete at the moment of its collection. In gathering information during the course of an investigation it is not possible to determine this prior to collection of the information. Facts are first gathered and then placed into a logical order which objectively proves or disproves criminal behavior on the part of the suspect. Material which may seem unrelated, irrelevant, incomplete, untimely, etc., may take on added meaning as an investigation progresses. The restrictions in this provision could interfere with the preparation of a complete investigative report.

(8) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(8) requires an agency to make reasonable efforts to serve notice on an individual when any record of such individual is made available to any persons; under compulsory legal process when such process becomes a matter of public record. The notice requirements of this provision could prematurely reveal an ongoing criminal investigation to the subject of the investigation.

Reasons for exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1):

(1) 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) requires that an agency make accountings of disclosures of records available to individuals named in the record at their request. These accountings must state the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure of the record and the name and address of the recipient. The application of this provision would alert subjects of an investigation to the existence of the investigation, and that such persons are subjects of that investigation, information which if known might cause damage to national security.

(2) 5 U.S.C. 552a (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), and (f) relate to an individual's right to be notified of the existence of records pertaining to such individual; requirements for identifying an individual who requests access to records; and the agency procedures relating to access to records, and the contest of information contained in such records. This system is exempt from the foregoing provisions for the following reasons: To notify an individual at the individual's request of the existence of records in an investigative file pertaining to such individual or to grant access to an investigative file could interfere with investigations undertaken in connection with national security; or could disclose the identity of sources kept secret to protect national security or reveal confidential information supplied by these sources.

(3) 5 U.S.C. 552a(3)(4)(I) requires the publication of the categories of sources of records in each system of records. The application of this provision could disclose the identity of sources kept secret to protect national security.

(4) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual that is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required by statute or Executive Order. An exemption from the foregoing is needed :

a. Because it is not possible to detect relevance or necessity of specific information in the early stages of an investigation involving national security matters.

b. Relevance and necessity are questions of judgment and timing. What appears relevant and necessary when collected may ultimately be determined to be unnecessary. It is only after the information is evaluated that the relevance and necessity of such information can be established.

c. In any investigation the Inspector General may obtain information concerning the violators of laws other than those within the scope of his jurisdiction. In the interests of effective law enforcement, the Inspector General should retain this information as it may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity, and provide leads for those law enforcement agencies charged with enforcing other segments of criminal or civil law.

d. In interviewing persons, or obtaining forms of evidence during an investigation, information may be supplied to the investigator which relate to matters incidental to the main purpose of the investigation but which may relate to matters under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. Such information cannot readily be segregated.

Reasons for exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5):

(1) 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3) requires that an agency make accountings of disclosures of records available to individuals named in the records at their request. These accountings must stated the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure of the record and the name and address of the recipient. The application of this provision would alert subjects of an investigation to the existence of the investigation and that such persons are subjects of that investigation. Since release of such information to subjects of an investigation would provide the subject with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation, it could result in the altering or destruction of documentary evidence, improper influencing of witnesses, and other activities that could impede or compromise the investigation.

(2) 5 U.S.C. 552a(d), (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f) relate to an individual's right to be notified of the existence of records pertaining to such individual; requirements for identifying an individual who requests access to records; and the agency procedures relating to access to records and the contest of information contained in such records. This system is exempt from the foregoing provisions for the following reasons: To notify an individual at the individual's request of the existence of records in an investigative file pertaining to such individual or to grant access to an investigative file could interfere with investigative and enforcement proceedings; co-defendants of a right to a fair trial; constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of others; disclose the identity of confidential sources and reveal confidential information supplied by these sources; and disclose investigative techniques and procedures.

(3) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(I) requires the publication of the categories of sources of records in each system of records. The application of this provision could disclose investigative techniques and procedures and cause sources to refrain from giving such information because of fear of reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentiality. This would compromise the ability to conduct investigations, and to make fair and objective decisions on questions of suitability for Federal employment and related issues.

(4) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual that is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required by statute or Executive Order. An exemption from the foregoing is needed:

a. Because it is not possible to detect relevance or necessity of specific information in the early stages of an investigation.

b. Relevance and necessity are questions of judgment and timing. What appears relevant and necessary when collected may ultimately be determined to be unnecessary. It is only after that information is evaluated that the relevance and necessity of such information can be established.

c. In any investigation the Inspector General may obtain information concerning the violations of laws other than those within the scope of his jurisdiction. In the interest of effective law enforcement, the Inspector General should retain this information as it may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity, and provide leads for those law enforcement agencies charged with enforcing other segments of criminal or civil law.

d. In interviewing persons, or obtaining other forms of evidence during an investigation, information may be supplied to the investigator which relate to matters incidental to the main purpose of the investigation but which may relate to matters under investigative jurisdiction of another agency. Such information cannot readily be segregated.

Violators and alleged violators of the criminal and/or civil provisions of certain laws (listed in the Authority Section of this notice) and the regulations issued thereunder, within the responsibility of the Secretary of Commerce.

Categories of records in the system:

1. Information compiled for the purpose of identifying individual criminal and/or civil offenders and alleged offenders and consisting of identifying data and notations of arrests, the nature and disposition of criminal or civil charges, sentencing, confinement, release, parole and probation status, and fines and penalties assessed;
2. Information compiled for the purpose of a criminal or civil investigation, including reports of informants and investigators, and associated with an identifiable individual;
3. Reports identifiable to an individual compiled at any stage of the process of enforcement of the criminal and civil laws from arrest or indictment through release from supervision, and the imposition of civil sanctions through administrative and/or judicial process; and
4. Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than the material covered above.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Reorganization Plan No. 4 of 1970; 5 U.S.C. 301; 28 U.S.C. 533–535; 44 U.S.C. 3101; E.0.10450; certain sections of Titles 15, 16, 18, and 22 of the United States Code; and relevant treaty, international convention, and/or agreements of which there are approximately 20 (Example: International Convention for the Regulation of Whaling (TIAS 1849) cf. 16 U.S.C. 916).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

1. Information is given to the Marine Mammal Commission for its use in making recommendations on the issuance of permits and the award of grants under the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972.

2. Disclosure may also be made to commercial contractors (debt collection agencies) for the purpose of collecting delinquent penalties as authorized by the Debt Collection Act (31 U.S.C. 3718).

3. Other routine uses for this system are identified at paragraphs 1–5, 8–10, and 13 of the Prefatory Statement.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Pursuant to the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12), disclosures may be made to "consumer reporting agencies" as defined in the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681a(f), or the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966 (3 U.S.C. 3701(a)(31)).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Both manual and machine-readable, and computer output records in file folders.

Retrievability:

Filed alphabetically by individual's name or by an identifying case number upon initiation of the case.

Safeguards:

Employees are informed of the Departmental rules of conduct regarding unauthorized disclosure of information contained in official records. All Special Agents receive a security clearance, granted by the Department of Commerce, after an investigation. The files of the Law Enforcement Division that relate to information concerning an identifiable individual are maintained in locked, metal file cabinets. The files of the Southeast Regional Counsel are maintained in metal locked file cabinets. Automated records are maintained on premises with access limited to those whose official duties require access.

Retention and disposal:

All records of this Division are subject to the retention and disposal procedures set forth in NOAA Directives Manual 62–10, et seq.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Enforcement Office, National Marine Fisheries Services, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce, 1825 Connecticut Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20235.

Southeast Regional Counsel, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce, 9450 Koger Blvd., Suite 102, St. Petersburg, FL 33702.

Notification procedure:

Information may be obtained from: Acting Director, Office of Administration, NOAA, Room H6863, Washington, DC 20230.

Requester should provide name, address, and case number pursuant to the inquiry provisions of the Department's rules which appear in 15 CFR Part 4b.

Record access procedures:

Requests from individuals should be addressed to: Same address as stated in the notification section above.

Contesting record procedures:

The Department's rules for access, for contesting contents, and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned appear in 15 CFR Part 4b. Use above address.

Record source categories:

Subject individual and those authorized by the individual to furnish information; NMFS investigators; Federal and state law enforcement personnel; foreign governments; special interest organizations, members of the general public, and all information sources that are open to the public at large.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), all information about an individual in the record which meets the criteria stated in the Act: 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempted from the notice, access and contest requirements of the agency regulations and from all parts of 5 U.S.C. 552a except subsections (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e)(4)(A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i), and pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), on condition that if the 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) exemption is held to be invalid, all investigatory material in the record which meet the criteria stated in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) are exempted from the notice access, and contest requirements (under 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f)) of the agency regulations because of the necessity to exempt this information and material in order to accomplish this law enforcement function of the agency, to prevent subjects of investigation from frustrating the investigatory process, to prevent the disclosure of investigative techniques, to fulfill commitments made to protect the confidentiality of sources, to maintain access to sources of information, and to avoid endangering these sources and law enforcement personnel. In addition, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), all materials qualifying for this exemption are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), (I), and (f) in order to prevent disclosure of classified information as required by Executive Order 12065 in the interest of the national defense and foreign policy.

COMMERCE/PAT-TM-6

System name:

Parties Involved in Patent Interference Proceedings—COMMERCE/PAT-TM-6.

System location:

Board of Patent Interferences, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, 2021 Jefferson Davis Highway, Arlington, Virginia 22202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Applicants for patent and patentees who become involved in a conflict involving the question of priority of invention.

Categories of records in the system:

All records relating to the declaration, conduct, and termination of interference proceedings, including, but not limited to: Preliminary statements, motions, testimony and settlement agreements. The data contained in the records may include information relating to the applicant's or patentee's name, age, citizenship, residence, educational and work background, physical and mental health, activities relating to conception and reduction to practice of the contested subject matter, and other matters which may arise during the conduct of the interference proceeding or in connection with any agreements made by the parties relative to the interference proceeding.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

35 U.S.C. 1, 6, 23, 24, and 135.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records relating to interferences which involve a patent are open to public inspection after an award of priority by the Board of Patent Interferences as to all parties, or, if none, after termination of the interference. Records relating to interferences which do not involve a patent are open to public inspection after the interference has terminated and one of the applications involved has issued a patent. Otherwise, information concerning these records is provided outside the Office only upon authorization of the applicants or owners of the applications or patents involved, or when necessary to carry out the provisions of any act of Congress or in such special circumstances as may be determined by the Commissioner. Copies of settlement agreements filed under 35 USC 135(c) are kept separate from other interference records if the party filing them so requests, and are made available, as provided in the statute, only to Government agencies on written request or to any person on a showing of good cause. Also see routine use paragraphs of the Prefatory Statement.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Paper records in file folders.

Retrievability:

Filed by Interference Number, cross-indexed to the names of the parties.

Safeguards:

This exemption is made to prevent disclosure of information which might be detrimental to national security and in accordance to agency rules which appear in 15 CFR Part 4b.

COMMERCE/PAT-TM-9

System name: Patent Assignment Records—COMMERCE/PAT-TM-9.

System location: Office of Patent and Trademark Services, Assignment Division, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, 2021 Jefferson Davis Highway, Arlington, Virginia 22202. Patent Examining Operation Group 220, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, 2021 Jefferson Davis Highway, Arlington, Va. 22202; and Office of ADP Administration, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, 2021 Jefferson Davis Highway, Arlington, Va. 22202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons who have given or received property rights under an application for patent or a patent by means of a written instrument recorded in the Patent and Trademark Office. Deceased or incapacitated inventors and their legal representatives.

Categories of records in the system: Assignments, grants, mortgages, liens, encumbrances, licenses, and other instruments affecting title. Letters testamentary and other court certificates and orders.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 35 U.S.C. 1, 6, and 261, and E.O. 9424.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Paper files, microfilm reels, index card files and magnetic storage media.

Retrievability: Filed by inventor's name, application serial number, assignee's name, assignor's name, and patent number.

Safeguards: Building employs security guards. Records subject to confidence requirements are maintained in areas accessible only to authorized personnel who are properly screened, cleared and trained. Records in the Secret Portion of the Government Register are, additionally, stored in a locked vault. Where information is retrievable by terminal, all safeguards appropriate to secure the ADP telecommunications system (hardware and software) are utilized.

Retention and disposal: Records retention and disposal is in accordance with the unit's Records Control Schedule.

System manager(s) and address: Recording Officer, Assignment Division, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Notification procedure: Information may be obtained from: Assistant Commissioner for Administration, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231. Requesters should provide assignee's or assignor's name(s) and application serial number, if known, in accordance with the inquiry provisions of the Department's rules which appear in 15 CFR Part 4b.

Record access procedures: Requests from individuals should be addressed to: Same address as stated in the notification section above.

Contesting record procedures: The Department's rules for access, for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned appear in 15 CFR Part 4b. Use above address.

Record source categories:

Persons who have submitted written instruments to the Patent and Trademark Office for recording.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), assignment records which are designated "Secret" and maintained in the Government Register pursuant to E.O. 9424 are exempted from the notification, access, and contest requirements of the agency procedures (under 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f)). This exemption is made to prevent disclosure of information which might be detrimental to national security and in accordance with agency rules which appear in 15 CFR Part 4b.

§ 4b.1 Purpose and scope.

(a) The purpose of this part is to establish policies and procedures for implementing the Privacy Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93–579), particularly 5 U.S.C. 552a as added by the Act. The main objectives are to facilitate full exercise of rights conferred on individuals under the Act and to ensure the protection of privacy as to individuals on whom the Department maintains records in systems of records under the Act. The Department accepts the responsibility to act promptly and in accordance with the Act upon receipt of any inquiry, request or appeal from a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence into the United States, regardless of the age of the individual. Further, the Department accepts the obligations to maintain only such information on individuals as is relevant and necessary to the performance of its lawful functions, to maintain that information with such accuracy, relevancy, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness in determinations made by the Department about the individual, to obtain information from the individual to the extent practicable, and to take every reasonable step to protect that information from unwarranted disclosure. The Department will maintain no record describing how an individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless expressly authorized by statute or by the individual about whom the record is maintained or unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity. An individual's name and address will not be sold or rented by the Department unless such action is specifically authorized by law; however, this provision shall not be construed to require the withholding of names and addresses otherwise permitted to be made public.

(b) This part applies to all units in the Department in order to assure the maximum amount of uniformity and consistency within the Department in its implementation of the Act. The units of the Department may promulgate supplementary orders and rules not inconsistent with this part.

(c) The Assistant Secretary for Administration is delegated responsibility for maintaining this part, for issuing such orders and directives internal to the Department as are necessary for full compliance with the Act, and for effecting publication of all required notices concerning systems of records.

(d) Matters outside the scope of this part include the following:

(1) Requests solely under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) and Part 4 of this title;

(2) Requests involving information pertaining to an individual which is in a record or file but not within the scope of a system of records notice published in the Federal Register;

(3) Requests to correct a record where a grievance procedure is available to the individual either by regulation or by provision in a collective bargaining agreement with the Department or a unit of the Department, and the individual has initiated, or has expressed in writing the intention of initiating, such grievance procedure. An individual selecting the grievance procedure waives the use of the procedures in this part to correct or amend a record; and,

(4) Requests for employee-employer services and counseling which were routinely granted prior to enactment of the Act, including, but not limited to, test calculations of retirement benefits, explanations of health and life insurance programs, and explanations of tax withholding options.

(e) The selection of the appropriate method for processing an individual's request for records depends on the status or capacity of the individual, the wording of the request and the character of the records requested. The Department anticipates the following situations and will undertake processing as indicated:

(1) Requester is the individual to whom the record pertains and the requester expressly states only that the request is under the Act—The request will be processed under the Act and this part;

(2) Requester is the individual to whom the record pertains and the requester expressly states only that the request is under the Freedom of Information Act—The request will be processed under the Freedom of Information Act and the Department's implementing regulations (Part 4 of this chapter);

(3) Requester is the individual to whom the record pertains and the requester expressly states that the request is under both the Act and the Freedom of Information Act—The request will be processed concurrently under both statutes and the Department's respective implementing regulations. For such dual requests the Department will follow the fee provisions under the Act and this part, and follow the time limits under the Freedom of Information Act and Part 4 of this title;

(4) Requester is the individual to whom the record pertains and the requester fails to specify whether the request is under the Act or the Freedom of Information Act or both—The Department will respond to the requester and ask for clarification of the requester's intention as to processing. The request will not be deemed to have been "received" for purposes of measuring time periods for response until the clarification actually has been received by the appropriate official of the Department; and,

(5) Requester (i) is not an individual or (ii) is an individual but not the individual to whom the record pertains or one asserting parentage or guardianship as permitted under the Act—The request will be processed under the Freedom of Information Act and the Department's implementing regulations or under other applicable procedures.

[40 FR 45621, Oct. 2, 1975, as amended at 53 FR 26236, Jul. 12, 1988]

§ 4b.2 Definitions.

(a) All terms used in this part which are defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a shall have the same meaning herein.

(b) As used in this part:

(1) The term "Act" means the "Privacy Act of 1974," Pub. L. 93–579.

(2) The term "appeal" means the request by an individual that an initial denial of a request for correction or amendment by that individual be reviewed and reversed.

(3) The term "Department" means the Department of Commerce.

(4) The term "inquiry" means either a request for general information regarding the Act and this part or a request by an individual (or that individual's parent or guardian) that the Department determine whether it has any record in a system of records which pertains to that individual.

(5) The term "person" means any human being and also shall include but not be limited to, corporations, associations, partnerships, trustees, receivers, personal representatives, and public or private organizations.

(6) The term "Privacy Officer" means those officials, identified in Appendix A to this part, who are authorized to receive and act upon inquiries, requests for access, and requests for correction or amendment.

(7) The term "request for access" means a request by an individual to see a record which is in a particular system of records and which pertains to that individual.

(8) The term "request for correction or amendment" means the request by an individual that the Department change (either by correction, amendment, addition or deletion) a particular record in a system of records which pertains to that individual.

(9) The term "unit of the Department" and "unit" means the office of the Secretary of Commerce and operating units of the Department as defined in Department Organization Order 1–1, "Mission and Organization of the Department of Commerce" (35 FR 19704, December 27, 1970).

[40 FR 45621, Oct. 2, 1975, as amended at 53 FR 26236, Jul. 12, 1988]

§ 4b.3 Procedures for inquiries pertaining to individual records in a record system.

(a) Any individual, regardless of age, who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence into the United States may submit an inquiry to the Department. The inquiry should be made either in person or by mail addressed to the appropriate Privacy Officer identified in Appendix A to this part or to the official identified in the notification procedures paragraph of the systems of records notice published in the Federal Register. If an individual believes the Department maintains a record pertaining to that individual but does not know which system of records might contain such a record and/or which unit of the Department maintains the system of records, assistance in person or by mail will be provided at the first address listed in Appendix A to this part. The offices of Privacy Officers are open to the public between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday (excepting holidays).

(b) The processing of inquiries submitted by mail will be facilitated if the words "PRIVACY ACT INQUIRY" appear in capital letters on the face of the envelope.

(c) The Department has an official form for making inquiries and requests, a facsimile of which is Appendix C to this part. Its use is urged. Copies may be obtained by contacting any of the officials in Appendix A to this part. Copies also may be obtained by contacting any facility of the Department which offers direct services to the public. Please consult your telephone directory under the listing "United States Government—Commerce Department."

(d) If, for some reason, an individual is unable to use the Department's official form, the letter should bear the words "PRIVACY ACT INQUIRY" in capital letters at the top. If the inquiry is for general information regarding the Act and this part, no particular information is required. If the inquiry is a request that the Department determine whether it has, in a given system of records, a record which pertains to the individual, the following information should be submitted:

(1) Name of individual whose record is sought;

(2) Individual whose record is sought is either a U.S. citizen or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence;

(3) Identifying data that will help locate the record (for example, maiden name, occupational license number, period or place of employment, etc.);

(4) Record sought, by description and by record system name, if known;

(5) Action requested (that is, send information on how to exercise rights under the Act; does requested record exist; access to requested record; or copy of requested record);

(6) Copy of court guardianship order or minor's birth certificate, as provided in § 4b.4(f)(3), but only if requester is guardian or parent of individual whose record is sought;

(7) Requester's name (printed), signature, address, and telephone number (optional);

(8) Date; and,

The Department reserves the right to require compliance with the identification procedures appearing at § 4b.4(f) where circumstances warrant.

(e) Any inquiry which is not addressed as specified in paragraph (a) of this section or which is not marked as specified in paragraphs (b) and (d) of this section will be so addressed and marked by Department personnel and forwarded immediately to the responsible Privacy Officer. An inquiry which is not properly addressed by the individual will not be deemed to have been "received" for purposes of measuring time periods for response until actual receipt by the Privacy Officer. In each instance when an inquiry so forwarded is received, the Privacy Officer shall notify the individual that his or her inquiry was improperly addressed and the date when the inquiry was received at the proper address.

(f) (1) Each inquiry received shall be acted upon promptly by the responsible Privacy Officer. Every effort will be made to respond within ten days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and holidays) of the date of receipt. If a response cannot be made within ten days, the Privacy Officer shall send an acknowledgment during that period providing information on the status of the inquiry and asking for such further information as may be necessary to process the inquiry. The first correspondence sent by the Privacy Officer to the requester shall contain the Department's control number assigned to the request, as well as a note that the requester should use that number in all future contacts in order to facilitate processing. The Department shall use that control number in all subsequent correspondence.

(2) If the Privacy Officer fails to send an acknowledgment within ten days, as provided above, the requester may ask the General Counsel, to take corrective action. No failure of a Privacy Officer to send an acknowledgment shall confer administrative finality for purposes of judicial review.

(g) An individual shall not be required to state a reason or otherwise justify his or her inquiry.

(h) Special note should be taken of the fact that certain agencies are responsible for publishing notices of systems of records having Government-wide application to other agencies, including the Department. The agencies known to be publishing these general notices and the types of records covered therein appear in Appendix B to this part. These general notices do not identify the Privacy Officers in the Department to whom inquiries should be presented or mailed. The provisions of this section, and particularly paragraph (a) of this section, should be followed in making inquiries with respect to such records. Such records in the Department are subject to the provisions of this part to the extent indicated in Appendix B to this part. The exemptions, if any, determined by the agency publishing a general notice shall be invoked and applied by the Department after consultation, as necessary, with that other agency.

§ 4b.4 Times, places, and requirements for identification of individuals making requests for access.

(a) Any individual, regardless of age, who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence into the United States may submit a request for access to records to the Department. The request should be made either in person or by mail addressed to the responsible Privacy Officer identified in Appendix A to this part. The offices of Privacy Officers are open to the public between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday (excluding holidays).

(b) The Department has an official form for making requests, a facsimile of which is Appendix B to this part. Its use is urged. Copies may be obtained by contacting any of the officials listed in Appendix A to this part. Copies also may be obtained by contacting any facility of the Department which offers direct services to the public. Please consult your telephone directory under the listing "United States Government—Commerce Department."

(c) The processing of requests submitted by mail will be facilitated if the words "PRIVACY ACT REQUEST" appear in capital letters on the face of the envelope. If, for some reason, an individual is unable to use the Department's official form the letter should bear the words "PRIVACY ACT REQUEST" in capital letters at the top.

(d) Any request which is not addressed as specified in paragraph (a) of this section or which is not marked as specified in paragraph (c) of this section will be so addressed and marked by Department personnel and forwarded immediately to the responsible Privacy Officer. A request which is not properly addressed by the individual will not be deemed to have been "received" for purposes of measuring time periods for response until actual receipt by the Privacy Officer. In each instance when a request so forwarded is received, the Privacy Officer shall notify the individual that his or her request was improperly addressed and the date when the request was received at the proper address.

(e) If the request follows inquiry under § 4b.3 in connection with which the individual's identity was established by the Department, the individual need only indicate the record to which access is sought, give the Department control number assigned to the request, and sign and date the request. If the request is not preceded by an inquiry under § 4b.3, the procedures of either § 4b.3(c) or § 4b.3(d) of this part should be followed.

(f) The requirements for identification of individuals seeking access to records are as follows:

(1) In person. Each individual making a request in person shall be required to present satisfactory proof of identity. The means of proof, in the order of preference and priority, are:

(i) A document bearing the individual's photograph (for example, driver's license, passport or military or civilian identification card);

(ii) A document, preferably issued for participation in a Federally sponsored program, bearing the individual's signature (for example, unemployment insurance book, employer's identification card, national credit card, and professional, craft or union membership card); and,

(iii) A document bearing neither the photograph nor the signature of the individual, preferably issued for participation in a Federally sponsored program (for example, Medicaid card).

In the event the individual can provide no suitable documentation of identity, the Department will require a signed statement asserting the individual's identity and stipulating that the individual understands the penalty provision of 5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(3) recited in § 4b.12(a). For the convenience of the public, and in addition to the Privacy Officers listed in Appendix A to this part, most facilities which are open to the public and operated by the Department outside Metropolitan Washington, D.C. have employees authorized to determine the identity of an individual. However, such employees are not authorized to take any other action with respect to a request except to transmit the request to the responsible Privacy Officer. In order to avoid any unwarranted disclosure of an individual's records, the Department reserves the right to determine the adequacy of proof of identity offered by any individual, particularly when the request involves a sensitive record.

(2) Not in person. If the individual making a request does not appear in person before a Privacy Officer or other employee authorized to determine identity, a certificate of a notary public or equivalent officer empowered to administer oaths must accompany the request under the circumstances prescribed in § 4b.3(d)(9). The Department's official form for requests contains a certificate. If, for some reason, the individual is unable to use the official form, the certificate within or attached to the letter must be substantially in accord with the following text:

City of ————
County of — ———— :ss

(Name of individual), who affixed (his) (her) signature below in my presence, came before me, a (title), in and for the aforesaid County and State, this ——— day of ————, 19—, and established (his) (her) identity to my satisfaction.

My commission expires ————.
(Signature)

(3) Parents of minors and legal guardians. An individual acting as the parent of a minor or the legal guardian of the individual to whom a record pertains shall establish his or her personal identity in the same manner prescribed in either paragraph (f)(1) or paragraph (f)(2) of this section. In addition, such other individual shall establish his or her identity in the representative capacity of parent or legal guardian. In the case of the parent of a minor, the proof of identity shall be a certified or authenticated copy of the minor's birth certificate. In the case of a legal guardian of an individual who has been declared incompetent due to physical or mental incapacity or age by a court of competent jurisdiction, the proof of identity shall be a certified or authenticated copy of the court's order. For purposes of the Act, a parent or legal guardian may represent only a living individual, not a decedent. A parent or legal guardian may be accompanied during personal access to a record by another individual, provided the provisions of § 4b.5(f) are satisfied.

(g) When the provisions of this part are alleged to have the effect of impeding an individual in exercising his or her right to access, the Department will consider, from an individual making a request, alternative suggestions regarding proof of identity and access to records.

(h) An individual shall not be required to state a reason or otherwise justify his or her request for access to a record.

[40 FR 45621, Oct. 2, 1975, as amended at 53 FR 26236, Jul. 12, 1988]

§ 4b.5 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.

(a) (1) Each request received shall be acted upon promptly by the responsible Privacy Officer. Every effort will be made to respond within ten days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and holidays) of the date of receipt. If a response cannot be made within ten days due to unusual circumstances, the Privacy Officer shall send an acknowledgment during that period providing information on the status of the request and asking for such further information as may be necessary to process the request. "Unusual circumstances" shall include circumstances where a search for and collection of requested records from inactive storage, field facilities or other establishments are required, cases where a voluminous amount of data is involved, instances where information on other individuals must be separated or expunged from the particular record, and cases where consultations with other agencies having a substantial interest in the determination of the request are necessary.

(2) If the Privacy Officer fails to send an acknowledgment within ten days, as provided above, the requester may ask the General Counsel to take corrective action. No failure of a Privacy Officer to send an acknowledgment shall confer administrative finality for purposes of judicial review.

(b) Grant of access. (1) Notification. An individual shall be granted access to a record pertaining to him or her, except where the provisions of paragraph (g)(1) of this section apply. The Privacy Officer shall notify the individual of a determination to grant access and provide the following information:

(i) The methods of access, as set forth in paragraph (b)(2) of this section;

(ii) The place at which the record may be inspected;

(iii) The earliest date on which the record may be inspected and the period of time that the records will remain available for inspection. In no event shall the earliest date be later than thirty days from the date of notification;

(iv) The estimated date by which a copy of the record could be mailed and the estimate of fees pursuant to section 4b.11 of this part. In no event shall the estimated date be later than thirty days from the date of notification;

(v) The fact that the individual, if he or she wishes, may be accompanied by another individual during personal access, subject to the procedures set forth in paragraph (f) of this section; and,

(vi) Any additional requirements needed to grant access to a specific record.

(2) Methods of access. The following methods of access to records by an individual may be available depending on the circumstances of a given situation:

(i) Inspection in person may be had in the office specified by the Privacy Officer granting access, during the hours indicated in § 4b.4(a);

(ii) Transfer of records to a Federal facility more convenient to the individual may be arranged, but only if the Privacy Officer determines that a suitable facility is available, that the individual's access can be properly supervised at that facility, and that transmittal of the records to that facility will not unduly interfere with operations of the Department or involve unreasonable costs, in terms of both money and manpower; and,

(iii) Copies may be mailed at the request of the individual, subject to payment of the fees prescribed in § 4b.11. The Department, at its own initiative, may elect to provide a copy by mail, in which case no fee will be charged the individual.

(c) Access to medical records is governed by the provisions of § 4b.6.

(d) The Department shall supply such other information and assistance at the time of access as to make the record intelligible to the individual.

(e) The Department reserves the right to limit access to copies and abstracts of original records, rather than the original records. This election would be appropriate, for example, when the record is in an automated data media such as tape or disc, when the record contains information on other individuals, and when deletion of information is permissible under exemptions (for example, 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2)). In no event shall original records of the Department be made available to the individual except under the immediate supervision of the Privacy Officer or his designee. Title 18, United States Code, section 2701(a) makes it a crime to conceal, mutilate, obliterate, or destroy any record filed in a public office, or to attempt to do any of the foregoing.

(f) Any individual who requests access to a record pertaining to that individual may be accompanied by another individual of his or her choice. "Accompanied" includes discussion of the record in the presence of the other individual. The individual to whom the record pertains shall authorize the presence of the other individual in writing and shall include the name of the other individual, a specific description of the record to which access is sought, the Department control number assigned to the request, the date and the signature of the individual to whom the record pertains. The other individual shall sign the authorization in the presence of the Privacy Officer. An individual shall not be required to state a reason or otherwise justify his or her decision to be accompanied by another individual during personal access to a record.

(g) Initial denial of access. (1) Grounds. Access by an individual to a record which pertains to that individual will be denied only upon a determination by the Privacy Officer that:

(i) The record is exempt under §§ 4b.13 and 4b.14 or exempt by determination of another agency publishing notice of the system of records, as described in § 4b.3(h);

(ii) The record is information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding;

(iii) The provisions of section 4b.6 pertaining to medical records temporarily have been invoked; or,

(iv) The individual unreasonably has failed to comply with the procedural requirements of this part.

(2) Notification. The Privacy Officer shall give notice of denial of access to records to the individual in writing and shall include the following information:

(i) The Privacy Officer's name and title or position;

(ii) The date of the denial;

(iii) The reasons for the denial, including citation to the appropriate section of the Act and this part;

(iv) The individual's opportunities, if any, for further administrative consideration, including the identity and address of the responsible official. If no further administrative consideration within the Department is available, the notice shall state that the denial is administratively final; and,

(v) If stated to be administratively final within the Department, the individual's right to judicial review provided under 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1), as limited by 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(5).

(3) Administrative review. When an initial denial of a request is issued by the Privacy Officer, the individual's opportunities for further consideration shall be as follows:

(i) As to denial under paragraph (g)(1)(i) of this section, two opportunities for further consideration are available in the alternative: (A) If the individual contests the application of the exemption to the records, review procedures in § 4b.5(g)(3)(ii) shall apply; or, (B) If the individual challenges the exemption itself, the procedure is a petition for the issuance, amendment, or repeal of a rule under 5 U.S.C. 553(e). If the exemption was determined by the Department, such petition shall be filed with the Assistant Secretary for Administration. If the exemption was determined by another agency, referred to in § 4b.3(h), the Department will provide the individual with the name and address of the other agency and any relief sought by the individual shall be that provided by the regulations of the other agency. Within the Department, no such denial is administratively final until such a petition has been filed by the individual and disposed of on the merits by the Assistant Secretary for Administration.

(ii) As to denial under paragraphs (g)(1)(ii), (g)(1)(iv) of this section or (to the limited extent provided in paragraph (g)(3)(i)(A) of this section) paragraph (g)(1)(i), the individual may file for review with the General Counsel, as indicated in the Privacy Officer's initial denial notification. The procedures appearing in § 4b.8 shall be followed by both the individual and the Department to the maximum extent practicable.

(iii) As to denial under paragraph (g)(1)(iii) of this section, no further administrative consideration within the Department is available because the denial is not administratively final until expiration of the time period indicated in § 4b.6(a).

(h) If a request is partially granted and partially denied, the Privacy Officer shall follow the appropriate procedures of this section as to the records within the grant and the records within the denial.

[40 FR 45621, Oct. 2, 1975, as amended at 53 FR 26236, Jul. 12, 1988]

§ 4b.6 Special procedures: Medical records.

(a) No response to any request for access to medical records by an individual will be issued by the Privacy Officer for a period of seven days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and holidays) from the date of receipt.

(b) The Department has published as a routine use, for all systems of records containing medical records, consultations with an individual's physician or psychologist if, in the sole judgment of the Department, disclosure could have an adverse effect upon the individual. The mandatory waiting period set forth in paragraph (a) of this section will permit exercise of this routine use in appropriate cases. The Department will pay no cost of any such consultation.

(c) In every case of a request by an individual for access to medical records, the Privacy Officer shall:

(1) Inform the individual of the waiting period prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section;

(2) Obtain the name and address of the individual's physician and/or psychologist, if the individual consents to give them;

(3) Obtain specific, written consent for the Department to consult the individual's physician and/or psychologist in the event that the Department believes such consultation is advisable, if the individual consents to give such authorization;

(4) Obtain specific, written consent for the Department to provide the medical records to the individual's physician or psychologist in the event that the Department believes access to the record by the individual is best effected under the guidance of the individual's physician or psychologist, if the individual consents to give such authorization; and,

(5) Forward the individual's medical record to the Department's medical officer for review and a determination on whether consultation with or transmittal of the medical records to the individual's physician or psychologist is warranted. If the consultation with or transmittal of such records to the individual's physician or psychologist is determined to be warranted, the Department's medical officer shall so consult or transmit. Whether or not such a consultation or transmittal occurs, the Department's medical officer shall provide instruction to the Privacy Officer regarding the conditions of access by the individual to his or her medical records.

(d) If an individual refuses in writing to give the names and consents set forth in paragraphs (c)(2) through (4) of this section and the Department has determined that disclosure could have an adverse effect upon the individual, the Department shall give the individual access to said records by means of a copy, provided without cost to the requester, sent registered mail return receipt requested.

§ 4b.7 Request for correction or amendment to record.

(a) Any individual, regardless of age, who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence into the United States may submit a request for correction or amendment to the Department. The request should be made either in person or by mail addressed to the Privacy Officer who processed the individual's request for access to the record, and to whom is delegated authority to make initial determinations on requests for correction or amendment. The offices of Privacy Officers are open to the public between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday (excluding holidays).

(b) The processing of requests submitted by mail will be facilitated if the words "PRIVACY ACT REQUEST" appear in capital letters on the face of the envelope. If, for some reason, the individual is unable to use the Department's official form, the letter should bear the words "PRIVACY ACT REQUEST" in capital letters at the top.

(c) Any request which is not addressed as specified in paragraph (a) of this section or which is not marked as specified in paragraph (b) of this section will be so addressed and marked by Department personnel and forwarded immediately to the responsible Privacy Officer. A request which is not properly addressed by the individual will not be deemed to have been "received" for purposes of measuring time periods for response until actual receipt by the Privacy Officer. In each instance when a request so forwarded is received, the Privacy Officer shall notify the individual that his or her request was improperly addressed and the date when the request was received at the proper address.

(d) Since the request, in all cases, will follow a request for access under § 4b.5, the individual's identity will be established by his or her signature on the request and use of the Department control number assigned to the request.

(e) A request for correction or amendment should include the following:

(1) A specific identification of the record sought to be corrected or amended (for example, description, title, date, paragraph, sentence, line and words);

(2) The specific wording to be deleted, if any;

(3) The specific wording to be inserted or added, if any, and the exact place at which to be inserted or added; and,

(4) A statement of the basis for the requested correction or amendment, with all available supporting documents and materials which substantiate the statement. The statement should identify the criterion of the Act being invoked, that is, whether the information in the record is unnecessary, inaccurate, irrelevant, untimely or incomplete.

§ 4b.8 Agency review of request for correction or amendment of record.

(a)(1) (i) Not later than ten days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and holidays) after receipt of a request to correct or amend a record, the Privacy Officer shall send an acknowledgment providing an estimate of time within which action will be taken on the request and asking for such further information as may be necessary to process the request. The estimate of time may take into account unusual circumstances as described in § 4b.5(a). No acknowledgment will be sent if the request can be reviewed, processed and the individual notified of the results of review (either compliance or denial) within the ten days. Requests filed in person will be acknowledged in writing at the time submitted.

(ii) If the Privacy Officer fails to send the acknowledgment within the ten days, as provided above, the requester may ask the General Counsel to take corrective action. No failure of a Privacy Officer to send an acknowledgment shall confer administrative finality for purposes of judicial review.

(2) Promptly after acknowledging receipt of a request, or after receiving such further information as might have been requested, or after arriving at a decision within the ten days, the Privacy Officer shall either:

(i) Make the requested correction or amendment and advise the individual in writing of such action, providing either a copy of the corrected or amended record or a statement as to the means whereby the correction or amendment was effected in cases where a copy cannot be provided (for example, erasure of information from a record maintained only in magnetically recorded computer files); or,

(ii) Inform the individual in writing that his or her request is denied and provide the following information:

(A) The Privacy Officer's name and title or position;

(B) The date of the denial;

(C) The reasons for the denial, including citation to the appropriate sections of the Act and this part; and,

(D) The procedures for appeal of the denial as set forth in § 4b.9, including the name and address of the General Counsel.

The term "promptly" in this subsection means within thirty days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and holidays). If the Privacy Officer cannot make the determination within thirty days, the individual will be advised in writing of the reason therefor and of the estimated date by which the determination will be made.

(b) Whenever an individual's record is corrected or amended pursuant to a request by that individual, the Privacy Officer shall see to the notification of all persons and agencies to which the corrected or amended portion of the record had been disclosed prior to its correction or amendment, if an accounting of such disclosure required by the Act was made. The notification shall require a recipient agency maintaining the record to acknowledge receipt of the notification, to correct or amend the record and to apprise any agency or person to which it had disclosed the record of the substance of the correction or amendment.

(c) The following criteria will be considered by the Privacy Officer in reviewing a request for correction or amendment:

(1) The sufficiency of the evidence submitted by the individual;

(2) The factual accuracy of the information;

(3) The relevance and necessity of the information in terms of purpose for which it was collected;

(4) The timeliness and currency of the information in light of the purpose for which it was collected;

(5) The completeness of the information in terms of the purpose for which it was collected;

(6) The degree of risk that denial of the request could unfairly result in determinations adverse to the individual;

(7) The character of the record sought to be corrected or amended; and

(8) The propriety and feasibility of complying with the specific means of correction or amendment requested by the individual.

(d) The Department will not undertake to gather evidence for the individual, but does reserve the right to verify the evidence which the individual submits.

(e) Correction or amendment of a record requested by an individual will be denied only upon a determination by the Privacy Officer that:

(1) The individual has failed to establish, by a preponderance of the evidence, the propriety of the correction or amendment in light of the criteria set forth in paragraph (c) of this section;

(2) The record sought to be corrected or amended is part of the official record in a terminated judicial, quasi-judicial or quasi-legislative proceeding to which the individual was a party or participant;

(3) The information in the record sought to be corrected or amended, or the record sought to be corrected or amended, is the subject of a pending judicial, quasi-judicial or quasi-legislative proceeding to which the individual is a party or participant;

(4) The correction or amendment would violate a duly enacted statute or promulgated regulation; or,

(5) The individual unreasonably has failed to comply with the procedural requirements of this part.

(f) If a request is partially granted and partially denied, the Privacy Officer shall follow the appropriate procedures of this section as to the records within the grant and the records within the denial.

[40 FR 45621, Oct. 2, 1975, as amended at 53 FR 26236, Jul. 12, 1988]

§ 4b.9 Appeal of initial adverse agency determination on correction or amendment.

(a) When a request for correction or amendment has been denied initially under § 4b.8, the individual may submit a written appeal within thirty days after the date of the initial denial. When an appeal is submitted by mail, the postmark is conclusive as to timeliness.

(b) An appeal shall be addressed to the General Counsel, Department of Commerce, Room 5882, Washington, DC 20230. The processing of appeals will be facilitated if the words "PRIVACY APPEAL" appear in capital letters on both the envelope and the top of the appeal papers. An appeal not addressed and marked as provided herein will be so marked by Department personnel when it is so identified, and will be forwarded immediately to the General Counsel. An appeal which is not properly addressed by the individual will not be deemed to have been "received" for purposes of measuring the time periods in this section until actual receipt by the General Counsel. In each instance when an appeal so forwarded is received, the General Counsel shall notify the individual that his or her appeal was improperly addressed and the date when the appeal was received at the proper address.

(c) The individual's appeal papers shall include a statement of the reasons why the initial denial is believed to be in error and the Department's control number assigned to the request. The appeal shall be signed by the individual. The record which the individual requests be corrected or amended and all correspondence between the Privacy Officer and the requester will be supplied by the Privacy Officer who issued the initial denial. While the foregoing normally will comprise the entire record on appeal, the General Counsel may seek additional information necessary to assure that the final determination is fair and equitable and, in such instances, the additional information will be disclosed to the individual to the greatest extent possible and an opportunity provided for comment thereon.

(d) No personal appearance or hearing on appeal will be allowed.

(f) If the appeal is determined in favor of the individual, the final determination shall include the specific corrections or amendments to be made and a copy thereof shall be transmitted promptly both to the individual and to the Privacy Officer who issued the initial denial. Upon receipt of such final determination, the Privacy Officer promptly shall take the actions set forth in §§ 4b.8(a)(2)(i) and 4b.8(b).

(g) If the appeal is denied, the final determination shall be transmitted promptly to the individual and state the reasons for the denial. The notice of final determination also shall inform the individual of the following:

(1) The right of the individual under the Act to file a concise statement of reasons for disagreeing with the final determination. The statement ordinarily should not exceed one page and the Department reserves the right to reject a statement of excessive length. Such a statement shall be filed with the General Counsel. It should provide the Department control number assigned to the request, indicate the date of the final determination and be signed by the individual. The General Counsel shall acknowledge receipt of such statement and inform the individual of the date on which it was received;

(2) The facts that any such disagreement statement filed by the individual will be noted in the disputed record, that the purposes and uses to which the statement will be put are those applicable to the record in which it is noted, and that a copy of the statement will be provided to persons and agencies to which the record is disclosed subsequent to the date of receipt of such statement;

(3) The fact that the Department will append to any such disagreement statement filed by the individual, a copy of the final determination or summary thereof which also will be provided to persons and agencies to which the disagreement statement is disclosed; and,

(4) The right of the individual to judicial review of the final determination under 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1)(A), as limited by 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(5).

(h) In making the final determination, the General Counsel shall employ the criteria set forth in § 4b.8(c) and shall deny an appeal only on the grounds set forth in § 4b.8(e).

(i) If an appeal is partially granted and partially denied, the General Counsel shall follow the appropriate procedures of this section as to the records within the grant and the records within the denial.

(j) Although a copy of the final determination or a summary thereof will be treated as part of the individual's record for purposes of disclosure in instances where the individual has filed a disagreement statement, it will not be subject to correction or amendment by the individual.

(k) The provisions of paragraphs (g)(1) through (3) of this section satisfy the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(3).

[40 FR 45621, Oct. 2, 1975, as amended at 53 FR 26236, Jul. 12, 1988]

§ 4b.10 Disclosure of record to person other than the individual to whom it pertains.

(a) The Department may disclose a record pertaining to an individual to a person other than the individual to whom it pertains only in the following instances:

(1) Upon written request by the individual, including authorization under § 4b.5(f);

(2) With the prior written consent of the individual;

(3) To a parent or legal guardian under 5 U.S.C. 552a(h);

(4) When required by the Act and not covered explicitly by the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(b); and

(5) When permitted under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(1) through (11), which read as follows:[1]

(i) To those officers and employees of the agency which maintains the record who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties;

(ii) Required under section 552 of this title;

(iii) For a routine use as defined in paragraph (a)(7) of this section and described under paragraph (e)(4)(D) of this section;

(iv) To the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity pursuant to the provisions of title 13;

(v) To a recipient who has provided the agency with advance adequate written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record, and the record is to be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable;

(vi) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, or for evaluation by the Administrator of General Services or his designee to determine whether the record has such value;

(vii) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the agency which maintains the record specifying the particular portion desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought;

(viii) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual if upon such disclosure notification is transmitted to the last known address of such individual;

(ix) To either House of Congress, or, to the extent of matter within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee thereof, any joint committee of Congress or subcommittee of any such joint committee;

(x) To the Comptroller General, or any of his authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office; or

(xi) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

[1] 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(4) has no application within the Department.

(b) The situations referred to in paragraph (a)(4) of this section include the following:

(1) 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(4) requires dissemination of a corrected or amended record or notation of a disagreement statement by the Department in certain circumstances;

(2) 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) requires disclosure of records to the individual to whom they pertain, upon request;

(3) 5 U.S.C. 552a(g) authorizes civil action by an individual and requires disclosure by the Department to the court;

(4) Section 5(e)(2) of the Act authorizes release of any records or information by the Department to the Privacy Protection Study Commission upon request of the Chairman; and

(5) Section 6 of the Act authorizes the Office of Management and Budget to provide the Department with continuing oversight and assistance in implementation of the Act.

(c) The Privacy Officer shall make an accounting of each disclosure by him of any record contained in a system of records in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (1) and (2). Except for a disclosure made under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(7), the Privacy Officer shall make such accounting available to any individual, insofar as it pertains to that individual, on request submitted in accordance with § 4b.4. The Privacy Officer shall make reasonable efforts to notify any individual when any record in a system of records is disclosed to any person under compulsory legal process, promptly upon being informed that such process has become a matter of public record.

§ 4b.11 Fees.

(a) The only fees to be charged to or collected from an individual under the provisions of this part are for copying records at the request of the individual.

(1) No fees shall be charged or collected for the following: Search for and retrieval of the records; review of the records; copying at the initiative of the Department without a request from the individual; transportation of records and personnel; and first-class postage.

(2) It is the policy of the Department to provide an individual with one copy of each record corrected or amended pursuant to his or her request without charge as evidence of the correction or amendment.

(3) As required by the United States Civil Service Commission in its published regulations implementing the Act, the Department will charge no fee for a single copy of a personnel record covered by that Commission's Government-wide published notice of systems of records.

(b) The copying fees prescribed by paragraph (a) of this section are:

$0.07	Each copy of each page, up to 8½" x 14", made by photocopy or similar process.
$0.25	Each copy of each microform frame printed on paper.
$0.25	Each aperture card.
$0.25	Each 105-mm fiche.
$7.00	Each 100' roll of 35-mm microfilm.
$6.00	Each 100' roll of 16-mm microfilm.
$0.20	Each page of computer printout without regard to the number of carbon copies concurrently printed.

Other copying forms (e.g., typing or printing) will be charged at direct cost, including personnel and equipment costs.

(c) All copying fees shall be paid by the individual before the copying will be undertaken. Payments shall be made in cash or, preferably, by check or money order payable to "U.S. Department of Commerce," and they shall be paid or sent to the office stated in the billing notice, or if none, to the Privacy Officer processing the request. Where appropriate, payment may be required in the form of certified check.

(d) A copying fee totaling $1 or less shall be waived, but the copying fees for contemporaneous requests by the same individual shall be aggregated to determine the total fee.

A copying fee shall not be charged or collected, or alternatively, it may be reduced, when it is determined by the Privacy Officer, based on a petition therefor, that the petitioning individual is indigent and that Department resources permit a waiver of all or part of the fee. An individual is deemed to be indigent when without income or resources sufficient to pay the fees.

(e) Special and additional services provided at the request of the individual, such as certification or authentication, postal insurance and special mailing arrangement costs, will be charged to the individual in accordance with other published regulations of the Department pursuant to statute (for example, 31 U.S.C. 483a).

(f) This section applies only to individuals making requests under this part. To the extent an individual makes a request under the Freedom of Information Act, as provided in § 4b.1(e) (2), (3) and (5), the fees provisions of Part 4 of this Chapter shall apply. All other persons shall remain subject to fees and charges prescribed by other and appropriate authorities.

§ 4b.12 Penalties.

(a) The Act provides, in pertinent part:

> Any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning an individual from an agency under false pretenses shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000. (5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(3)).

(b) A person who falsely or fraudulently attempts to obtain records under the Act also may be subject to prosecution under such other criminal statutes as 18 U.S.C. 494, 495 and 1001.

§ 4b.13 General exemptions.

(a) Individuals may not have access to records maintained by the Department but which were provided by another agency which has determined by regulation that such information is subject to general exemption under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j). If such exempt records are within a request for access, the Department will advise the individual of their existence and of the name and address of the source agency. For any further information concerning the record and the exemption, the individual must contact that source agency.

(b) The general exemptions determined to be necessary and proper with respect to systems of records maintained by the Department, including the parts of each system to be exempted, the provisions of the Act from which they are exempted, and the justification for the exemption, are as follows:

(1) Individuals identified in Export Administration compliance proceedings or investigations—COMMERCE/ITA-1. Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), these records are hereby determined to be exempt from all provisions of the Act, except 5 U.S.C. 552a (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i). These exemptions are necessary to insure the proper functioning of the law enforcement activity, to protect confidential sources of information, to fulfill promises of confidentiality, to maintain the integrity of the law enforcement process, to avoid premature disclosure of the knowledge of criminal activity and the evidentiary bases of possible enforcement actions, to prevent interference with law enforcement proceedings, to avoid disclosure of investigative techniques, and to avoid the endangering of law enforcement personnel. Section 7(c) of the Export Adminstration Act of 1969, as amended, also protects this information from disclosure.

(2) Fisheries Law Enforcement Case Files—COMMERCE/NOAA-11. Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), these records are hereby determined to be exempt from all provisions of the Act, except 5 U.S.C. 552a (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e) (4) (A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i). These exemptions are necessary to insure the proper functioning of the law enforcement activity, to protect confidential sources of information, to fulfill promises of confidentiality, to prevent interference with law enforcement proceedings, to avoid the disclosure of investigative techniques, to avoid the endangering of law enforcement personnel, to avoid premature disclosure of the knowledge of criminal activity and the evidentiary bases of possible enforcement actions, and to maintain the integrity of the law enforcement process.

(3) Investigative Records—Contract and Grant Frauds and Employee Criminal Misconduct—COMMERCE/DEPT.-12. Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), these records are hereby determined to be exempt from all provisions of the Act, except 5 U.S.C. 552a (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i). These exemptions are necessary to insure the proper functions of the law enforcement activity, to protect confidential sources of information, to fulfill promises of confidentiality, to prevent interference with law enforcement proceedings, to avoid the disclosure of investigative techniques, to avoid the endangering of law enforcement personnel, to avoid premature disclosure of the knowledge of criminal activity and the evidentiary bases of possible enforcement actions, and to maintain the integrity of the law enforcement process.

(5 U.S.C. 552a(f) and (k), sec. 3 of the Privacy Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93-579, 88 Stat. 1896))

[40 FR 45621, Oct. 2, 1975; 40 FR 50662, Oct. 30, 1975; 40 FR 51168, Nov. 3, 1975, as amended at 43 FR 43020, Sept. 22, 1978]

§ 4b.14 Specific exemptions.

(a) Some systems of records under the Act which are maintained by the Department contain, from time to time, material subject to the exemption appearing at 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), relating to national defense and foreign policy materials. The systems of records published in the Federal Register by the Department which are within this exemption are:

COMMERCE/ITA-1, COMMERCE/ITA-2, COMMERCE/ITA-3, COMMERCE/NOAA-11, COMMERCE/PAT-TM-4, COMMERCE/PAT-TM-6, COMMERCE/PAT-TM-7, COMMERCE/PAT-TM-8, COMMERCE/PAT-TM-9, COMMERCE/DEPT-12, COMMERCE/DEPT-13, and COMMERCE/DEPT-14.

The Department hereby asserts a claim to exemption of such materials wherever they might appear in such systems of records, or any systems of records, at present or in the future. The materials would be exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f). The reason therefor is to protect the materials required by Executive order to be kept secret in the interest of the national defense and foreign policy.

(b) The specific exemptions determined to be necessary and proper with respect to systems of records maintained by the Department, including the parts of each system to be exempted, the provisions of the Act from which they are exempted, and the justification for the exemption, are as follows:

(1) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). The systems of records exempt hereunder appear in paragraph (a) of this section. The claims for exemption of COMMERCE/DEPT-12, COMMERCE/ITA-1, and COMMERCE/NOAA-11 under this paragraph are subject to the condition that the general exemption claimed in § 4b.13(b)(3) is held to be invalid.

(2) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2). The systems of records exempt (some only conditionally), the sections of the Act from which exempted, and the reasons therefor are as follows:

(i) Individuals identified in Export Administration compliance proceedings or investigations—COMMERCE/ITA-1, but only on condition that the general exemption claimed in § 4b.13(b)(1) is held to be invalid;

(ii) Individuals involved in export transactions—COMMERCE/ITA-2;

(iii) Fisheries Law Enforcement Case Files—COMMERCE/NOAA-11, but only on condition that the general exemption claimed in § 4b.13(b)(2) is held to be invalid;

(iv) Investigative Records—Contract and Grant Frauds and Employee Criminal Misconduct—COMMERCE/DEPT-12, but only on condition that the general exemption claimed in § 4b.13(b)(3) is held to be invalid;

(v) Investigative Records—Persons Within the Investigative Jurisdiction of the Department—COMMERCE/DEPT-13;

(vi) Litigation, Claims and Administrative Proceeding Records—COMMERCE/DEPT-14; and,

(vii) Non-Registered Persons Rendering Assistance to Patent Applicants—COMMERCE/PAT-TM-5.

The foregoing are exempted from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f). The reasons for asserting the exemption are to prevent subjects of investigation from frustrating the investigatory process, to insure the proper functioning and integrity of law enforcement activities, to prevent disclosure of investigative techniques, to maintain the ability to obtain necessary information, to fulfill commitments made to sources to protect their identities and the confidentiality of information and to avoid endangering these sources and law enforcement personnel. Special note is taken of the fact that the proviso clause in this exemption imports due process and procedural protections for the individual. The existence and general character of the information exempted will be made known to the individual to whom it pertains.

(3) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (4). The systems of records exempt, the sections of the Act from which exempted, and the reasons therefor are as follows:

(i) Agricultural Census Records for 1964 (partial), 1969, and 1974—COMMERCE/CENSUS-1;

(ii) Individual and Household Statistical Surveys and Special Census Studies Records—COMMERCE/CENSUS-3;

(iii) Minority-Owned Business Enterprises Survey Records—COMMERCE/CENSUS-4;

(iv) Population and Housing Census Records for 1960 and 1970—COMMERCE/CENSUS-5;

(v) Population Census Personal Service Records for 1900 and All Subsequent Decennial Censuses—COMMERCE/CENSUS-6; and,

(vi) Special Censuses of Population Conducted for State and Local Government—COMMERCE/CENSUS-7.

The foregoing are exempted from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) (H), and (I), and (f). The reasons for asserting the exemption are to comply with the prescription of Title 13, United States Code, especially sections 8 and 9 relating to prohibitions against disclosure, and to avoid needless consideration of these records whose sole statistical use comports fully with a basic purpose of the Act, namely, no adverse determinations may be made from these records as to any identifiable individual.

(4) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5),(k)(4). The systems of records exempt (some only conditionally), the sections of the act from which exempted, and the reasons therefor are as follows:

(i) Applications to U.S. Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA)—COMMERCE/MA-1;

(ii) USMMA Midshipman Medical Files—COMMERCE/MA-17;

(iii) USMMA Midshipman Personnel Files—COMMERCE/MA-18;

(iv) USMMA Non-Appropriated Fund Employees—COMMERCE/MA-19;

(v) Applicants for the NOAA Corps—COMMERCE/NOAA-4;

(vi) Commissioned Officer Official Personnel Folders—COMMERCE/NOAA-7;

(vii) Conflict of Interest Records, Appointed Officials—COMMERCE/DEPT-3;

(viii) Investigative Records—Contract and Grant Frauds and Employee Criminal Misconduct—COMMERCE/DEPT-12, but only on condition that the general exemption claimed in § 4b.13(b)(3) is held to be invalid;

(ix) Investigative Records—Persons Within the Investigative Jurisdiction of the Department—COMMERCE/DEPT-13; and,

(x) Litigation, Claims, and Administrative Proceeding Records—COMMERCE/DEPT-14.

The foregoing are exempted from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f). The reasons for asserting the exemption are to maintain the ability to obtain candid and necessary information, to fulfill commitments made to sources to protect the confidentiality of information, to avoid endangering these sources and, ultimately, to facilitate proper selection or continuance of the best applicants or persons for a given position or contract. Special note is made of the limitation on the extent to which this exemption may be asserted. The existence and general character of the information exempted will be made known to the individual to whom it pertains.

(c) At the present time, the Department claims no exemption under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (3), (6) and (7).

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Routine Uses

Paragraph (b)(3) of section 552a permits disclosure for a routine use. A routine use is a use of a record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which the record was collected. Each routine use for which an agency may disclose a record must be published in the notice of the system of records for which the use will apply. Many of the systems of records maintained by the Department use standard routine uses. These standard routine uses were published in Appendix B to the Department's Privacy Act regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, May 9, 1980, 45 FR 30808). A system that adopts a standard routine use refers to Appendix B. For ease of reading, the routine uses listed in Appendix are appended to this document before the Index of Systems and System Numbers.

Appendix B of Departmental Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b)

Routine Uses Applicable To More Than One System of Records Maintained by ED

(1) In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

(2) Referrals may be made of assignments of research investigators and project monitors to specific research projects to the Smithsonian Institution to contribute to the Smithsonian Science Information Exchange, Inc.

(3) In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice.

(4) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a 'routine use' to a federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement records or other pertinent records, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain a record relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the record is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

(5) In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its function indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether state or local charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

(6) Where federal agencies having the power to subpoena other federal agencies' records, such as the Internal Revenue Service or the Civil Rights Commission, issue a subpoena to the Department for records in this system of records, the Department will make such records available.

(7) Where a contract between a component of the Department and a labor organization recognized under E.O. 11491 provides that the agency will disclose personal records relevant to the organization's mission, records in this system of records may be disclosed to such organization.

(8) Where the appropriate official of the Department, pursuant to the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation determines that it is in the public interest to disclose a record which is otherwise exempt from mandatory disclosure, disclosure may be made from this system of records.

(9) The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

(10) To individuals and organizations, deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out specific research solely for the purpose of carrying out such research.

(11) Disclosures in the course of employee discipline or competence determination proceedings.

System name: Secretary's Communications Control System. ED/OS/ES.

Security classification: None.

System location: Executive Secretary to the Department, Room 4181, FOB No. 6, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who have contacted the Secretary or Under Secretary or who have been contacted in writing by them.

Categories of records in the system: This system includes the Secretary's and Under Secretary's official files and Congressional correspondence within an Executive Secretariat, specifically hard copies of official documents signed or initialed by the Secretary or Under Secretary; also control information from the Secretary's and Under Secretary's correspondence to include a subject narrative, organization drafting the response, and type of action required from the Department. This information is also contained on computer magnetic tape, and computer disc units.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; (c) any Department employee!in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in hard copy filed in standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: Official files of the Secretary and Under Secretary are indexed by subject and name in addition to chronological cross-reference. Records are available to staff of the Executive Secretariat for reference purposes in staffing out issues of concern to the Secretary or Under Secretary. Certain other records are available to staff responsible for preparation of responses to inquiries, and are used for control purposes.

Safeguards: Direct access is limited to the staff of the Executive Secretariat. Access is limited during non-working hours to hard copy records to those individuals with access to file cabinets and areas where records are stored. Remote computer terminal locations are protected with individual user identification numbers and passwords to the computer system. Where possible, computer terminal locations are locked during non-working hours.

Retention and disposal: Hard copy records are maintained for three years and then retired to National Archives. Control and Congressional records are computer stored indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Executive Secretary to the Department, Room 4181, FOB No. 6, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager at the above address. The inquirer should indicate the name of the individual with whom the Secretary or Under Secretary corresponded, the date of the subject documents and should reasonably specify the subject matter of the issue involved.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR Part 5 and 5.13, Subtitle A, 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested.

Record source categories: Records are derived from documents signed or initialed by the Secretary or Under Secretary. Computer records are derived from the incoming correspondence for the Secretary and Under Secretary.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

18-01-0002

System name: Federal Advisory Committee Membership Files, ED-OASM-HR-CMO.

Security classification: None.

System location: See system manager below.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who have been or are presently members of or are being considered for membership on advisory committees within the jurisdiction of the Department of Education. Additionally the system of records contains information about members of the public who have requested that they receive various publications through the inclusion of their names and addresses on various mailing lists.

Categories of records in the system: Information maintained on those individuals who have requested participation on mailing lists is limited to name and mailing address. Information maintained on individuals who are past, present, or recommended members of advisory committees subject to this notice consists of one or more of the following: Name, title, sex, place and date of birth, home address, business address, organizational affiliation, phone number, degrees held, general educational background, ethnic background, resume, curriculum vitae, dates of term on advisory committee, status on advisory committee, reason for leaving advisory committee, previous or current membership on other advisory committees, special qualifications of the individual for the advisory committee membership, source who recommended the individual for membership on advisory committee and miscellaneous correspondence. Additionally, memoranda justifying the individual's selection are included in the file in cases in which the individual has served repetitively on advisory committees, has not had a one-year break in service on advisory committees, or where various statutory or other requirements for advisory committee membership cannot be met.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. Appendix I).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Annual Report to the President; administrative reports to OMB and GSA. In accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items 1 and 3). In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in hard-copy filed in file cabinets on index cards.

Retrievability: For the most part records are maintained in an alphabetical index by name of the individual. Certain files are based on other factors, e.g. Advisory Committee name, with a cross index based on an alphabetical listing of individuals. Records from the system are available to the staffs of the respective Advisory Committees and other Departmental staff on a need-to-know basis. Uses include special administrative reports; quarterly alphabetical listings of past, present and recommended members of Advisory Committees; and other administrative needs.

Safeguards: Direct access to records is restricted to authorized personnel through locked files, rooms, and buildings as well as building pass and security guard sign-in systems.

Retention and disposal: Retention is variable from one year to permanent retention depending upon the type of record, e.g., names of former members of advisory committees are retained permanently. Certain records are disposed of by referral to the Federal Records Center. Others are disposed of as trash by the system manager or office of security depending upon the confidentiality of the information contained on the record.

System manager(s) and address: Department of Education, Committee Management Officer, Room 2135, FOB No. 6, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: Same as above.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5(a)(2)), 45 FR 30809, May 9, 1980).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.7, 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980).

Record source categories: The vast majority of information contained in records on individuals is obtained directly from the individual. Other information in the form of references and recommendations is obtained from other private individuals, program personnel, biographical reference books, private organizations, former employers, regional office of ED, Members of Congress, and other government sources.

System name: Congressional Correspondence Control System ED/OLPA/CS.

Security classification:

None.

System location:

400 Maryland Avenue SW, FOB-6—Room 4119, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Members of Congress indexed by name.

Categories of records in the system:

Control information recording, direct inquiries and referrals of constituents' inquiries from Members of Congress, and responses to those inquiries, regarding the Department's activities, including, but not necessarily limited to:

a. General program activities of the Department;

b. Individual case problems of named persons, families or institutions;

c. Employment or appointment interests; and

d. Control slips identifying the correspondent, the constituent on whose behalf the inquiry is made and a summary of the subject of the inquiry.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301.

Purpose(s):

To provide response to inquiries from a member of Congress made on behalf of a constituent regarding the Department's activities, including, but not limited to general program activities of the Department.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Inquiries which do not pertain to ED, but fall under the jurisdiction of another Federal Agency, are transferred to the Agency with a request that a direct response be provided to the correspondent. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The records are maintained in hard copy filed in standard file cabinets.

Retrievability:

Records are indexed alphabetically by name of the members of Congress. Inquiries are forwarded to the ED office which has jurisdiction over the subject matter for preparation of a response.

Safeguards:

Records are kept in the responsible Department Office with access limited to those whose official duties require access. The computer terminal is protected with individual user identification numbers and passwords to the computer system.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained for two years.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Congressional Services, 400 Maryland Avenue SW, FOB-6, Room 4119, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager at the above address. The inquirer should indicate the name of the member of Congress who corresponded with the Department, the name of the referenced constituent, the subject matter, and the date of the correspondence.

Record access procedures:

Same as notification procedures. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5 and 5b.13, 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980).

Contesting record procedures:

Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested.

Record source categories:

The information in CCU files is provided by the correspondent and by the agency which prepares the final response.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the Act:

18-10-0002

System name:

Investigatory Material Compiled for Personnel Security and Suitability Purposes. ED/OIG.

Security classification:

None for the system; however, a portion of the records within the system is classified.

System location:

Office of the Inspector General; U.S. Department of Education, Room 4200, Switzer Building, 330 C Street SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Applicants, former employees, employees, and others doing business with the Department.

Categories of records in the system:

Security investigations case files.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Executive Order 10450, as amended.

Purpose(s):

Records in this system are maintained to assist the Inspector General and other responsible officials in determining whether the appointment and retention of ED employees is consistent with the national security and whether they are otherwise suitable for employment.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records may be used as follows: (1) In the event that this system of records indicates a violation or potential violation on law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (2) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, State or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement records or other pertinent records, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain a record relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit. A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the record is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter; (3) In the event that this system of records indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant therein, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use to the appropriate agency, whether State or local, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (4) Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual; (5) In the event of litigation where the defendant (one of the parties) is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The records are maintained in security-type vaults or safes or lock bar file cabinets with manipulation-proof combination locks.

Retrievability:

The records are alphabetically indexed by name of the individual subject of the file or by cross reference to another file. Access within ED is limited to the Secretary, and on a need-to-know basis to other officials having program management responsibility.

Safeguards:

Access is restricted to authorized staff members and other officials and employees on a need-to-know basis. Direct access to the safes in which the records are stored is limited to security personnel.

Retention and disposal:

Security investigative records on individuals who occupy sensitive positions are maintained during the term of their employment. Other security investigative records are maintained for ten years if subject to Executive Order 10450, as amended. All other files are destroyed after three years.

System manager(s) and address:

Inspector General/Assistant Inspector General for Policy, Planning, and Management Services, U.S. Department of Education, Room 4200 Switzer Building, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedures:

Exempt; however, consideration will be given requests addressed to the system manager. For general inquiries, include the name and date of birth of the individual.

Record access procedures:

Same as notification procedures. Requesters also should reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with the Department's Privacy Act Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5(a)(2)).

Contesting record procedures:

Contact the official at the address specified under system manager(s) and address above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with the Department's Privacy Act Regulations (34 CFR 5b.7)).

Record source categories:

Department and other Federal, State and local Government records; interview of witnesses; documents and other material furnished by non-Government sources. Sources may include confidential sources.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the Act:

As indicated in 34 CFR 5b.11(b)(2)(iv)(A) individuals will be provided information from this record system except when in accordance with the provisions of 5 USC 552a(k)(5): (1) Disclosure of such information would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or (2) if the information was obtained prior to September 27, 1975, disclosure of such information would reveal the identity of a source who provided information under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Pub. L. 95-452, October 12, 1978, as amended (5 U.S.C. Appendix I) and 5 U.S.C. 301.

Purpose(s):

Pursuant to Pub. L. 95-452, the system is maintained for the purposes of conducting and documenting criminal investigations by the OIG or other investigative agencies regarding ED programs and operations, documenting the outcome of OIG investigations, maintaining a record of the activities which were the subject of investigations, reporting the results of investigations; to other Departmental components for their use in operating and evaluating their programs and in imposition of civil or administrative sanctions, and acting as a repository and source for information necessary to fulfill the reporting requirements of Pub. L. 95-452, Section 8 (5 U.S.C., Appendix I).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (a) In the event that this system of records, maintained by this Agency to carry out its functions, indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto where such responsibility rests outside of OIG; (b) In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice; (c) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, State, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement records or other pertinent records, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain a record concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit; (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the record is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter (e) In the event that this system of records, maintained by this agency to carryout its function, indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use to the appropriate agency, whether State or local, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto where such responsibility rests outside of OIG; (f) Where Federal agencies having the power to subpoena other Federal agencies, records (such as the Internal Revenue Service or the Civil Rights Commission), issue a subpoena to the Department for records in this system of records, the Department will make such records available; (g) Where the appropriate official of the Department, pursuant to the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation, determines that it is in the public interest to disclose a record which is otherwise exempt from mandatory disclosure, disclosure may be made from this system of records; (h) When the Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining, records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records; (i) Disclosures may be made to ED organizations deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out quality assessment; (j) There may also be disclosures in the course of empoyee discipline or competence determination proceedings; (k) Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of the individual, (l) In event of litigation where the defendant is (1) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (2) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components or (3) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to present an effective defense, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected, (m) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, State, or local agency maintaining pertinent records, if necessary to obtain a record relevant to a Department decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records, which take the form of index cards, investigative reports, computer disk files, and computer printed listings are maintained under secure conditions. Computer disk files are off-line and are stored in fireproof safes when not in use.

Retrievability: The records are retrieved by manual or computer search of alphabetical indices or cross-indices. Indices list names of individuals, companies and organizations.

Safeguards: Access is restricted to authorized staff members of the Office of Inspector General and other officials and employees on a need-to-know basis.

Retention and disposal: Criminal investigative files are retained for 5 years after completion of the investigation and/or actions based thereon. Index and cross-reference cards are retained permanently. In instances of computer matching of files, only those records which meet predetermined criteria for investigation are maintained. Personnel security files will be maintained for 15 years after the subject terminates employment with the Department in accordance with OPM requirements. All records which do not meet these criteria are destroyed. All original source computer tapes are returned or destroyed once computer matching has been accomplished.

System manager(s) and address: Inspector General/Assistant Inspector General for Policy, Planning and Management Services, U.S. Department of Education, Room 4200, Switzer Building, 330 C Street, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: Exempt, however consideration will be given requests addressed to the system manager. For general inquiries include the name and date of birth of the individual.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5(a)(2)), 45 FR 30809, May 9, 1980).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under system manager(s) and address above, and reasonably indentify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulation (34 CFR 5b.7), 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980).

Record source categories: Departmental and other federal, state and local government records; interviewers of witnesses; documents and other material furnished by nongovernment sources. Sources may include confidential sources.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: General exemption (J)(2) under 34 CFR 5b.11(b)(2)(i)(A), 45 FR 30808, May 9, 1980, criminal investigation files are exempt from the following subsections of the Act (c)(3), (d) (1)–(4), (e)(3) and (e)(4) (G) and (H). This system was formerly known as the Investigatory Materials compiled for Law Enforcement Purposes System.

System name: Department of Education Motor Vehicle Operator Records, ED/OASM.

Security classification: None.

System location: Personnel offices of the Department shown in Applicants for Employment Records. Issuing Officers for Motor Vehicle Operator Identification Cards within the organizations serviced by the above personnel offices.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All Department employees who are required to operate motor vehicles regularly or incidentally in carrying out their official duties.

Categories of records in the system: The ED Motor Vehicle Operation Records System consists of a variety of records related to the issuance of a Government Motor Vehicle Operator's permit. In addition to the name of the employee, the system includes information about the employee's birthplace, SSN, employing organization, number of years driven, type of vehicles operated, current driver's license number, state issuing driver's license, date license expires, restrictions of state license, sex, date of birth, color of hair, color of eyes, weight, height, record of arrests, and record of accidents. These records also include expiration dates of Motor Vehicle Operator permit, any limitations imposed on its use and the results of the annual review of each driving record.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 40 U.S.C. 471.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Information in this system of records may be used: In accordance with Departmental Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b), Appendix B, Items 01,3,4,5,6,7,8,9. By the Office of Personnel Management in carrying out its functions. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Stored in Official Personnel Folder in file folders and index cards.

Retrievability: Records are retrievable by name. Information is used as a basis for issuing a SF-46 "U.S. Government Motor Vehicle Operator's Identification Card" and evaluating its use. It may also be used for production of summary descriptive statistics and analytical studies in support of the functions for which the records are collected and maintained and for related personnel management functions.

Safeguards: Access to and use of these records are limited to personnel whose official duties require such access. Personnel screening is employed to prevent unauthorized disclosure.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained for three years after the individual's government motor vehicle operator's permit expires, or the individual leaves the Department, and are then destroyed. (See DOE Personnel Instruction 293-1, Exhibit S293-1-1, item 24.)

System manager(s) and address: Personnel Officers of the Department shown in Applicants for Employment Records, DOE System 18-11—0007, Appendix 1.

Notification procedure: Issuing officers in organizational units in which employed or systems managers shown above. Individual should provide name and organization in which employed.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5(a)(2)), 45 FR 30809, May 9, 1980).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.7), 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980).

Record source categories: Information contained in this system of records is obtained: (1) From information supplied by the individual, or (2) derived from information supplied by the individual, or (3) from information supplied by officials of the Department.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

18-11-0002

System name: Departmental Parking Control Policy. ED/OASM/PARM.

Security classification: None.

System location: Director, Office of Administrative Resources Management, Room 1177, FOB No. 6. ED/OARM, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Offices of Manager for Parking Control at ED facilities where ED parking is provided.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All ED employees as well as any carpool member utilizing parking facilities.

Categories of records in the system: This system includes the following information on all persons applying for a parking permit: Name, office room number, office phone number, agency, home address, and automobile license number.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 63 Stat. 377; 41 CFR 101-20.111.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are stored in binders in file cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are filed alphabetically by location. The purpose of the Departmental Parking Policy is to provide standards for apportionment and assignment of parking spaces on Department-managed and Department-controlled property and on property assigned to the Department by GSA or any other Agency and to allocate and check parking spaces assigned to government vehicles, visitors, handicapped personnel, key personnel, car-pools, and others.

Safeguards: Access to and use of these records are limited to personnel whose official duties require access.

Retention and disposal: Superseded policy materials are maintained by the Director, OARM for historical purposes. Records at other ED locations are maintained until the Parking Control purpose has been met, and the records are then destoryed.

System manager(s) and address: Director, OARM, Room 1077, FOB No. 6, ED/Deputy Assistant Secretary Human Resources, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: Access to these records may be obtained by request in writing to: Office of Manager for Parking Control at ED facility where ED parking is provided.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5(a)(2)), 45 FR 30809, May 9, 1980).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.7), 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980).

Record source categories: Information in this system comes from reports from ED Staff, POC's and Regions, GSA-Federal Management circulars and Federal Property Management Regulations.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

18-11-0003

System name: Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act—School Recordkeeping Practices, Correspondence and Complaint System. ED-OASM-EPM-DEDC-FERPA.

Security classification: None.

System location: U.S. Department of Education, Room 4512 Switzer Building, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who have made inquiries or who have filed complaints alleging violations of the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974; and those who have commented to the Department on its proposed rules and practices.

Categories of records in the system: Name and address of individuals submitting correspondence, responses and exchanges of materials associated with investigations of complaints.

Authority for maintenance of the system: The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (20 U.S.C. 1232g).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: To Members of Congress who inquire on behalf of a constituent; to an educational agency or institution against which a complaint has been made. A disclosure may be made for the purposes described in Departmental Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, Items: 1, 3, 8). Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in hard-copy filed in standard lockable file cabinets.

Retrievability: For the most part records are indexed by name of individual signing incoming correspondence; when indexed chronologially, or by organization, they are cross-indexed by name of individual signer. Records are available to FERPA staff involved in correspondence and investigative processes, including members of the Office of General Counsel. Occasionally, personnel with special expertise in other program areas may be given records for the purpose of assisting FERPA staff in resolution of issues.

Safeguards: Direct access is restricted to authorized FERPA staff; access to rooms in which files are maintained is limited during nonworking hours to those with keys to rooms and the main files are left in locked file cabinets when not in use.

Retention and disposal: Inquiry records are maintained a minimum of three years; complaint and investigative records are maintained a minimum of five years past date of case closing.

System manager(s) and address: Director, FERPA Office, U.S. Department of Education, Room 4512 Switzer Building, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: System manager. For general inquiries, name and date of previous correspondence, if known, for complaint/investigative material, name and any I.D. number assigned. Address is same as above.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5(a)(2)), 45 FR 30809, May 9, 1980).

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.7, 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980).

Record source categories: Incoming correspondence, responses and material obtained during course of any investigation.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

18–11–0005

System name: Safety Management Information System. (ED Accident, Injury and Illness Reporting System). ED/ASM.

Security classification: None.

System location: At Departmental Regional and Headquarters facilities (see Appendix 1).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: (1) ED employees who are involved in an accident which arises in the course of their employment whether occurring on ED premises or not and results in: (a) A fatality; (b) lost workdays beyond the day in which the accident occurred; (c) nonfatal injuries which result in transfer to another job, termination of employment, medical treatment other than first aid, loss of consciousness or restriction of work or motion; (d) a possible tort claim; (e) a claim for compensation; (f) property damage in excess of 50.00 dollars; (g) interrupts or interferes with the orderly progress of work of other employees; (h) radiation overexposure; (1) biological exposure resulting in lost time or accidental release of biologicals where the public may be over-exposed. (2) Visiting educators, contractor personnel, employees of other Federal agencies, state or local governments or members of the public who suffer injury, illness or property damage on or in ED premises or as a result of ED activities.

Categories of records in the system: This system consists of a variety of information and supporting documentation resulting from the reporting and investigation of accidents which have resulted in injury, illness, property damage or the interruption or interference with the orderly progress of work. The records contain information about individuals involved in or experiencing accidents including but not limited to the severity of the injury, whether consciousness was lost, the type of injury, culmination of any injury, days lost from work if any, the nature of the injury, illness or disease, the body part affected, causal factors, weather factors, agency of accident, whether unsafe mechanical, physical, or personal acts or factors were involved, the accident's area of origin and if fire was involved, the type and form of materials involved. Property damage (both public and private) is noted through the property sequence number, who owned the property involved, property damage and actual or estimated monetary loss, the ED installation number if appropriate and the year of manufacture or construction if appropriate. Identifiers related to a paticular accident include the organization, case number assigned, date and time of occurrence, state of territory, site, type and classification of accident, estimated amount of tort claims if appropriate, name of individual(s) involved, the social security number, sex, age, grade, series and level, CSC series, address, other Departments notified of accident, duty status, activity at time of accident and time on duty before accident. Management's evaluation and corrective action taken or proposed is also noted.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 19 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (Pub. L. 91–596); U.S.C. 7902; 29 CFR Part 1960, Executive Order No. 12196.

Purpose(s):

The purpose of the system is to comply with the reporting and statistical analyses requirements of section 19 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (Pub. L. 91–596) as amended (29 U.S.C. 668); U.S.C. 7902; 29 CFR Part 1960; Executive Order 12196 and such other purposes as are described under routine uses of this system notice. The Safety Management Information System is a Department-wide system utilized by all organizational components of the Department. Thus, in addition to the routine uses subsequently noted in this system notice, there may be other ad hoc disclosures within the Department on an official business "need to know" basis.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

To the Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition.

To individuals and organizations, deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out specific research solely for the purpose of carrying out such research.

To organizations deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out quality assessment, medical audits or utilization review.

Disclosures in the course of employee discipline or competence determination proceedings.

To request from a Federal, State, local agency or private sources information relevant to the investigation of an accident and/or corrective action.

To respond to an inquiry from a member of Congress made on behalf of a constituent.

In the event of litigation where (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity were the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to present an effective defense, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, or foreign, state or local, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice.

A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, State or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement records or other pertinent records, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain a record relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the record is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

Where the Federal agencies having the power to subpoena other Federal agencies' records, such as the Internal Revenue Service or the Civil Rights Commission, issue a subpoena to the Department for records in this system of records, the Department will made such records available.

Where a contract between a component of the Department and a labor organization recognized under E.O. 12196 provides that the agency will disclose personal records relevant to the organization's mission, records in this system of records may be disclosed to such organization.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are or may be maintained on magnetic tapes, punchcards, lists, forms, disks, computer storage, in file folders, binders and index cards.

Retrievability: (1) At the Departmental level, the system is completely computerized with no other records normally maintained or retained in the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Management. While individual indentifiers such as name, case number, and social security number are within the computer storage banks, special programming would be required to extract individual records. Normal output consists of statistical reports and surveys based on case number including those required by the Department of Labor and Statistical Analysis in support of the Departmental occupational safety and health program for dissemination to the Principal Operating Components, Regions and Staff Offices.

(2) The Principal Operating Components of the Department, their sub-components, Regional Offices and Staff Offices may maintain original or copies of the accident reports and supporting documentation by name, social security number, case number or cross reference.

(3) Establish a written record of the causes of accidents.

(4) Provide information to initiate and support corrective or preventive action.

(5) Provide statistical information relating to accidents resulting in occupational injuries, illnesses, and/or property damage.

(6) Provide management with information with which to evaluate the effectiveness of safety management programs.

(7) Provide the means for complying with the reporting requirements of Section 19 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and such other reporting requirements as may be required by legislative or regulative requirements.

(8) Provide such other summary descriptive statistics and analytical studies as necessary in support of the function for which the records are collected and maintained including general requests for statistical information without personal identification of individuals.

(9) Information in these records is used by or may be disclosed to: (a) The Assistant Secretary for Management, Office of the Secretary, ED in the review of accident experience data to determine the adequacy of corrective actions, the effect of codes, standards and guides, the consolidation, summarization and dissemination of accident experience data throughout ED and other Government Departments and agencies as needed or required; (b) The supervisor, administrative officer or other official initiating an accident report, including each succeeding reviewing official in the chain of command through which the report passes to insure that corrective action, as needed and appropriate is taken; (c) Appropriately appointed Safety Directors, Officers, or others with safety responsibilities within the Department in the verifying, assembling, analyzing, summarizing and disseminating data concerning the accident experience in their areas of responsibility and the initiation of appropriate corrective action.

Note.— If this statement is published prior to the establishment of an ADP system within the Department to handle our SMIS reporting, the following should be inserted at this point.

(d) Employees of HHS responsible for the maintenance and retrieval of the above information pertinent to ED employees, as necessary to carry out this function.

Safeguards: Access to and use of these records is made available to those personnel having a legitimate need for the information (those whose duties require review or access) including inspecting or evaluating personnel. Records, which under the law, may not be disclosed such as information pertinent to national security or trade secrets are maintained separately, adequately safeguarded and released only in accordance with the law. When there is doubt regarding the release of information, the matter will be referred, in advance to the Office of the General Counsel, ED.

Retention and disposal: All accident reports, records, logs, and other information relating to an accident are retained by the Principal Operating Components and their agencies, the Regional Offices and the Office of the Secretary for at least ten years following the end of the calendar year in which the accident occurred. Specific occupational safety and health standards (such as the standards covering the handling of carcinogenic chemicals) may be required to be kept for up to twenty years. Records may be retained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: The SMIS system at the present time is being maintained by the Department of HHS under an Inter-Agency Agreement.

Notification procedure: Individuals wishing to inquire whether this system of records contains information about them should address their inquiries to one of the following as appropriate: (1) If employed or formerly employed in HEW Region Office, the Regional Occupational Safety and Health Manager of the Regional involved (see list and addresses under appendix at the end of this system (18–11–0005)). (2) If employed or formerly employed in a HEW Principal Operating Component or sub-agency, a staff office or the Office of the Secretary, the Occupational Safety and Health Manager of the component where employed (see list and addresses under appendix for this system (18-11-0005)). Individuals requesting information in this system of records should provide their full name, social security number (on a purely voluntary basis), name and address of office and agency in which currently or formerly employed, the accident(s) case number if known, and the time and a brief description of the accident in which they were involved.

Record access procedures: Individuals wishing to gain access to or contest their records should contact the following in person, or by writing, as appropriate (See "notification procedures" above). Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought. (These access procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5, 45 FR 30808, May 9, 1980.))

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested. (These procedures are in accordance with Department Regulations (34 CFR 5b.5(b)(7), 45 FR 30810, May 9, 1980)).

Record source categories: The information in this system is obtained from the following sources: (a) The individual to whom the record pertains; (b) witnesses to the accident; (c) investigation officials (Federal, State, local); (d) medical personnel seeing the individual as a result of the accident; (e) supervisory personnel; (f) reviewing officials; (g) personnel offices; (h) investigate material furnished by Federal, State, or local agencies; and (i) on-site observations.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

System name: Telephone Directory/Locator System. ED/OASM.

Security classification: None.

System location: Operating offices and Facility Complexes of the Department—Employee Locators and Offices of Administrative or Management Services.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Current employees of the Department and vendor or other Federal employees located in Department operating offices and facility complexes.

Categories of records in the system: Name, title, agency office address, agency mailing address, telephone number, standard administrative code, and social security number.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301, 40 U.S.C. 486(c).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Records are used to develop and maintain current employee locator and directory listings. The locator listings are used by the ED information centers, mail rooms, and others specifically for the purpose of locating employees and for routing of mail. The directory listings are used to produce departmental telephone directories on an as needed basis. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Disclosures pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12): The Department may disclose to a consumer reporting agency information regarding a claim which is determined to be valid and overdue as follows: (1) The name, address, taxpayer identification number and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual responsible for the claim; (2) the amount, status, and history of the claim; and (3) the program under which the claim arose. The Department may disclose the information specified in this paragraph under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) and the procedures contained in subsection 31 U.S.C. 3711(f). A consumer reporting agency to which these disclosures may be made is defined at 31 U.S.C.3701 (a)(3)

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Variously stored in card files, computer printouts, paper forms, magnetic tape.

Retrievability: Alphabetically by employee name, in certain instances also by agency and/or title. Some large systems use the SSN as control to update, change or delete information on individuals no longer within this system of records.

Safeguards: Only authorized personnel have access to master lists which contain social security numbers.

Retention and disposal: Retained as long as individual is employed by or associated with the Department, then information deleted from files by appropriate method.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Department Information Center,Room 1127, FOB—6, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D. C. 20202.

Notification procedure: Direct inquiries to the systems manager identified in Appendix.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All employees of U.S. Education Department, National Commission of Library and Information Sciences, Institute of Museum Services and Architectural Transportation Barriers Compliance Board, including permanent, temporary, or indefinite appointments.

Categories of records in the system:

This System consists of a variety of records relating to pay and leave determinations made about each employee of the Department of Education, the National Commission of Library and Information Sciences, the Institute of Museum Services, and the Architectural Transportation Barriers Compliance Board. The system contains information such as the name of the employee, the employee's date of birth, social security number, home address, grade, employing organization, timekeeper number, salary, Civil Service retirement fund contributions, pay plan, number of hours worked, annual and sick leave accrual rate and usage, annual and sick leave balance, FICA withholdings, Federal, state, and local tax withholdings, Federal Employees Government Life Insurance withholdings, garnishment documents, savings allotments, union and management association dues withholding, savings bonds allotments, and Combined Federal Campaign allotments.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purpose(s):

Records in this system are used to insure that each employee receives the proper pay and allowances; that proper deductions and authorized allotments are made from employees' pay; and that employees are credited and charged with the proper amount of sick and annual leave.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information in this system of records is used or may be used:

(1) To disclose information to the Department of the Treasury for preparation of payroll checks, payroll deductions, U.S. Saving bonds, and other checks to Federal, State, and local government agencies, non-governmental organizations and individuals;

(2) To prepare W-2 Forms to submit to the Internal Revenue Service and to disclose to state and local government agencies having taxing authority pertinent records relating to employees, including name, home address, social security number (in accordance with Section 7 of the Privacy Act of 1974), earned income, and amount of taxes withheld;

(3) By the Office of Personnel Management, Merit Systems Protection Board (including its Office of the Special Counsel), Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and the Federal Labor Relations Authority (including the General Counsel of the Authority and Federal Service Impasses Panel) to carry out their functions;

(4) To disclose to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual;

(5) By the Department of Labor to make a compensation determination in connection with a claim filed by an employee for compensation on account of a job-connected injury or disease;

(6) To respond to court orders for garnishment of an employee's pay for alimony or child support;

(7) To respond to orders from IRS for garnishment of an employee's pay for Federal income tax purposes;

(8) By State offices of unemployment compensation in connection with claims filed by former ED employees for unemployment compensation;

(9) By financial organizations designated to receive labor organization or management association dues withheld from an employee's pay, in order to account for the amounts of the withheld dues which they receive;

(10) In the event of defensive litigation, to disclose certain records as the Department deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to present an effective defense, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected, and the defendant is—

(a) The Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity;

(b) The United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to affect directly the operations of the Department or any of its components; or

(c) Any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee; and

(11) To disclose information to an exclusive representative where 5 U.S.C. Chapter 71 or a collective bargaining agreement between the Department and the exclusive representative recognized under 5 U.S.C. Chapter 71 provides that the Department shall disclose records relevant to the organization's mission; and

(12) To disclose to a State or local agency for the purpose of conducting computer matching programs designed to reduce fraud, waste, and abuse in Federal, State, and local public assistance programs and operations.

Also, the Department may disclose a record for certain purposes described in Appendix B of the Department's Privacy Act Regulations, 34 CFR Part 5b. The specific routine uses in Appendix B that apply to this system of records are (1), (4), (5), (6), and (9).

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Disclosures pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12): The Department may disclose to a consumer reporting agency information regarding a claim which is determined to be valid and overdue as follows: (1) The name, address, taxpayer identification number and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual responsible for the claim; (2) the amount, status, and history of the claim; and (3) the program under which the claim arose. The Department may disclose the information specified in this paragraph under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) and the procedures contained in subsection 31 U.S.C. 3711(f). A consumer reporting agency to which these disclosures may be made is defined at 31 U.S.C.3701 (a)(3).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Maintained on computer media, input forms and printed outputs in manual and report form.

Retrievability:

Indexed by name and Social Security number of the employee and other identifying numbers related to the employee.

Safeguards:

Access to and use of these records are limited to personnel whose official duties require such access. Personnel screening is employed to prevent unauthorized disclosure.

Retention and disposal:

Records submitted by the individual, such as allotment authorization forms, home address forms, and tax withholding forms are retained until superseded by new forms or until the individual leaves the Department. Some of these records must be retained for an additional period, or forwarded to the new employing agency. (Records may be retired to a Federal Records Center and subsequently disposed of in accordance with the Records Control Schedule of the Department of Education).

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Personnel Systems, Planning and Evaluation Division, Department of Education, P.O. Box 23578, Washington, D.C. 20024-0578.

Notification procedure:

An individual may inquire from the System Manager or the Head of the office at which the employee is (or was) employed, whether or not the system contains a record pertaining to him or her. The request must be in writing and be signed by the requester. The request must meet the requirements of 34 CFR 5b.5.

Record access procedures:

An individual may request access to the system of records in the same manner as described under the notification procedure. The request must meet the requirements of 34 CFR 5b.5.

Contesting record procedures:

An individual may contest the contents of his or her record by contacting the System Manager, identifying the record to be amended, the information to be contested, the corrective action sought, and the reasons for the correction. The request must meet the requirements of 34 CFR 5b.7.

Record source categories:

Individual employees, timekeepers and supervisors.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

System name: Discrimination Complaints Records System. ED/AS/EEOS.

Security classification: None.

System location: Office of the Director, Equal Employment Opportunity Staff, 400 Maryland Avenue SW, Room 2117, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals or organizations which have consulted an EEO Counselor regarding discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or handicap because of a determination or decision made by a Department official or which have filed a class allegation of discrimination.

Categories of records in the system: This system of records contains information or documents concerning pre-complaint processing and class allegations of discrimination. The records consist of counselors' reports, the initial allegations, letters or notices to the individual or organization, materials placed into the record to support or refute the decision or determination, statements to witnesses, investigative reports, instructions about action to be taken to comply with decisions, and related correspondence, opinions and recommendations.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Executive Order 11478; 42 U.S.C. 2000e and 29 U.S.C. 633a.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: These records and information in the records may be used:

(a) To respond to a request from a Member of Congress regarding the status of an appeal, complaint or grievance;

(b) To refer to Office of Personnel Management, Merit Systems Protection Board (including its Office of the Special Counsel), Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and the Federal Labor Relations Authority (including the General Counsel of the Authority and the Federal Service Impasses Panel) in carrying out their functions;

(c) Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual;

(d) In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

(e) The Department may disclose a record for the purposes described in Appendix B of the Departmental Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items (1), (3), (4), (5), (6), (7), (8), (9)).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: These records are maintained in file folders, binders, and index cards.

Retrievability: These records are indexed by the names of the individuals or organizations on whom they are maintained. They may be used: To adjudicate an appeal, complaint, or grievance; to provide a basis for a corrective action related to the discrimination situation; as a data source for management information for production of summary descriptive statistics and analytical studies in support of the function for which the records are collected and maintained, or for related personnel management functions or manpower studies; and to locate specific individuals for personnel research or other personnel management functions.

Safeguards: Access to and use of these records are limited to those persons whose official duties require access.

Retention and disposal: The records on class allegations of discrimination are retained after final disposition.

System manager(s) and address: Director, EEO Staff, 400 Maryland Avenue SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: Individuals and organizations which consulted an EEO counselor or filed a class allegation of discrimination are aware of that fact. They may write the system manager indicated above, regarding the existence of such records pertaining to them. The inquirers, as appropriate, should provide their name, date of birth, agency in which employed or agency in which the situation arose if different from employing agency, the approximate date, and the kind of action taken, when making inquiries about records.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought.

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested.

Record source categories: (a) Individual to whom the record pertains;

(b) Department or other officials;

(c) Statements from employees or other witnesses;

(d) Official documents relating to the counseling or class allegation; and

(e) Correspondence from specific organizations or persons.

System name: Employee Alcoholism, Drug Abuse and Emotional Problem Counseling and Referral Records. ED-ASM-DASHR-OPRM

Security classification: None.

System location: ED personnel offices or designated offices performing counseling functions for employees in organizational units serviced by these personnel offices.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Department employees who have been counseled for work adjustment, personal or emotional health problems and/or the abuse of alcohol or drugs.

Categories of records in the system: This system contains records of employees who have been referred but not counseled; records of employees who have been counseled for work adjustment, personal or emotional problems, and/or alcohol or drug abuse; and records of members of employees' families who have been counseled. Examples of information which may be found in this record system include the employee's name, SSN, date of birth, grade, job series, job title, leave record, service computation date, home address, home phone number, supervisor's name, name and address of the individual's personal physician, social history, educational background, and performance appraisals. Other documents which may also be found in the counselor's file are notes made by the counselor, copies of admonishments and reprimands received by the employee, and a record of the supervisor's referral (if the employee was referred by the supervisor).

Authority for maintenance of the system: 44 U.S.C. 3101, 42 U.S.C. 4561, 21 U.S.C. 1180, and 5 U.S.C. 7901.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: In unusual circumstances, it may be appropriate to disclose information from this system of records. The Department of Justice or other appropriate Federal agencies in defending claims against the United States when the claim is based upon an individual's mental or physical condition and is alleged to have arisen because of activities of components of the Department in connection with such individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. Such disclosure will be restrictively made; in particular, disclosures of information pertaining to an individual with a history of alcohol or drug abuse will be limited in compliance with the restrictions of the Confidentiality of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Patient Records regulations, 42 CFR Part 2. Also, the Department may disclose a record for the purposes described in item 7 of Appendix B of the Departmental Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Employee records are maintained in file folders and on index cards.

Retrievability: Records are filed by name or by case number cross indexed with the employee's name. The records are used to document the nature of the individual's problem and progress and when necessary to refer individuals to appropriate community or private resources for treatment or rahabilitation. Anonymous information from these records may also be used to produce summary descriptive statistics and analytical studies in support of the funtions for which the records are collected and maintained.

Safeguards: During the employment of the individual, records are maintained in confidential files separate from the Official Personnel Folder and are located in lockable metal containers or in secured rooms with access limited to those whose official duties require access. Disclosure of the contents of records which pertain to an individual's alcohol or drug abuse is restricted under the provisions of the Confidentiality of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Patient Records regulations, 42 CFR Part 2, as authorized by 21 U.S.C. 1175 and 42 U.S.C. 4582, as amended by Pub. L. 93-282.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained until 3 years after the individual has ceased contact with the counselor, or until the individual leaves the Department, and are then destroyed.

System manager(s) and address: The Personnel Officer servicing the installation in which counseling was provided.

Notification procedure: Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager at the office where counseling was provided. Individual should provide name, grade, organization in which employed, date of birth, and location and approximate date of counseling. When applicable, the special procedures for access to medical records will be followed. An individual who requests notification of or access to a medical/dental record shall, at the time the request is made, designated in writing a responsible representative who will be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. When the records pertain to an individual's alcohol or drug use, the procedures in 42 CFR 2.40 will also be followed.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought.

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested.

Record source categories: Information in this system of records is: (1) Supplied directly by the individual, or (2) supplied by a member of the individual's family, or (3) derived from information supplied by the individual, or (4) supplied by sources to whom the employee has been referred for assistance, or (5) supplied by Department officials, or (6) supplied by program counselors.

In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determined that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee is his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Departmnt to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. Also, the Department may disclose a record for the purposes described in the Departmental Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in file folders, binders and index cards for supervisors.

Retrievability: For supervisors, records are indexed by name of individual filing the grievance. For personnel office, records are indexed by order of receipt and organization. Records are used to consider and resolve informal grievances and to provide background data to further consideration of grievances if later pursued through formal grievance procedures.

Safeguards: Access to and use of these records are limited to those persons whose official duties require such access. Personnel screening is employed to prevent unauthorized disclosure.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained for 3 years after the grievance case is closed, and are then destroyed.

System manager(s) and address: Heads of personnel offices which service organizational units in which employees who submit informal grievances are located.

Notification procedure: Individuals who have filed grievances are aware of that fact and have been provided information in writing concerning the disposition of the grievance. They may contact the official who signed the written notice, or the System Manager indicated above. They should provide their name, organization in which employed and date of birth and approximate date of the filing of the informal grievance.

Record access procedures: Same as notification procedures. Requesters should also reasonably specify the record contents being sought.

Contesting record procedures: Contact the official at the address specified under notification procedures above, and reasonably identify the record and specify the information to be contested.

Record source categories: Information in this system of records is: (1) Supplied directly by the individual, or (2) derived from information supplied by the individual, or (3) supplied by testimony of witnesses, or (4) supplied by union officials, or (5) supplied by Department officials.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

The Secretary's designated debarring/suspending official makes information contained in this system of records available to the General Services Administration for inclusion in the Lists of Parties Excluded from Federal Procurement or Nonprocurement Programs.

(3) Enforcement Disclosure. In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, particular program statute, or executive order, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether foreign, Federal, State, or local, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or executive order or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

(4) Subpoena Disclosure. Where Federal agencies having the power to subpoena other Federal agencies' records, such as the Internal Revenue Service or the Civil Rights Commission, issue a subpoena to the Department for records in this system of records, the Department will make such records available.

(5) Litigation Disclosure.

(a) Disclosure to the Department of Justice. If the Department determines that disclosure of certain records to the Department of Justice is relevant and necessary to litigation and is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected, the Department may disclose those records as a routine use to the Department of Justice. Such a disclosure may be made in the event that one of the parties listed below is involved in the litigation, or has an interest in the litigation:

(i) The Department, or any component of the Department;

(ii) Any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity;

(iii) Any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent the employee; or

(iv) The United States where the Department determines that the litigation is likely to affect the Department or any of its components.

(b) Disclosure to a Court or Adjudicative Body. If the Department determines that disclosure of certain records to a court of adjudicative body before which this Department is authorized to appear is relevant and necessary to litigation and is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected, the Department may disclose those records as a routine use to the court or adjudicative body. Such disclosure may be made in the event that one of the parties listed below is a party to litigation, or has an interest in such litigation:

(i) The Department or any component thereof; or

(ii) Any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity, or

(iii) Any employee of the Department in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee; or

(iv) The United States, where the Department determines that litigation is likely to affect the Department or any of its components.

(6) FOIA Advice Disclosure. In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice.

(7) FOIA Disclosure. Where the appropriate official of the Department, pursuant to the Department's Freedom of Information Regulations, determines that it is in the public interest to disclose a record which is otherwise exempt from mandatory disclosure, disclosure may be made from this system of records if the disclosure is also consistent with the purpose for which the record was collected.

(8) Contract Disclosure. When the Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating, or otherwise refining records in this system, relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

(9) Research Disclosure. Where the appropriate official of the Department determines that an individual or organization is qualified to carry out specific research, that official may disclose information from this system of records to that researcher solely for the purpose of carrying out that research. The researcher shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

(10) Congressional Member Disclosure. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

System name: Participant Waiting List for Projects Serving Severely Handicapped Children and Youth. ED/OSERS.

Security classification: None.

System location: (See Appendix II—18-40-0006.)

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Severely handicapped children and youth waiting to be included in services provided by project.

Categories of records in the system: Name, address, and telephone numbers of children and youth; student educational, social, psychological, and relevant medical information.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Education of the Handicapped Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: To State and local educational agencies for coordinating services to potential participants; to other relevant State and local public and private agencies providing services to such potential participants, for coordination of services; to members of the project advisory boards and parent-teacher type organizations for coordinating and augmenting services to potential participants. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Information is in folders and stored in file cabinets.

Retrievability: File alphabetically by potential student surname. Records are cross indexed with listings of students by county/district. Records are available to project staff involved in planning for services to be provided.

Safeguards: Direct access is restricted to authorized project staff; access to room in which file cabinets are maintained is limited during nonworking hours to those with keys to room. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Student files are maintained in potential student category until the enrollment of a student, or for two years following possible enrollment age of student. Disposal—records put into trash.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Special Needs Section/OSERS, Room 3135, Donohoe Building, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: System manager; for general inquiries, provide name and possible matriculation date of student. Address is project director as cited in Appendix II (18-40-0006).

Record access procedures: If an individual wishes to gain access to a record in this system, he or she should contact the system manager and provide information as described in the notification procedure.

Contesting record procedures: If an individual wishes to change the content of a record in the system of records, he or she should contact the system manager with the information described in the notification procedure, identify the specific items to be changed, and provide a written justification for the change.

Categories of records in the system:

Name, Social Security number, and date of birth of students who have indicated in the Statement of Registration Compliance that they are registered with the Selective Service System.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

50 U.S.C. App. 462

Purpose(s):

This system of records will be used to evaluate the degree of student compliance with the Selective Service Registration requirement. This compliance data is used to determine if the requirement that institutions document the Selective Service registration status of students who receive financial assistance under Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended, should be modified.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

This information will be furnished to the Director of the Selective Service System to verify compliance with 50 U.S.C. App. 462, as amended September 8, 1982. Disclosure of information in this system of records may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is—

(a) The Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity;

(b) The United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or

(c) Any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Also, the Department may disclose a record for the purposes described in the Department's Privacy Act regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items, 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, and 9).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained in hard copy. The database used to generate this system of records will be maintained on a microcomputer.

Retrievability:

Records are indexed by name and Social Security number.

Safeguards:

Hard copy files are maintained in locked cabinets. The microcomputer database will only be accessible through the use of a password and will be archived. Access is restricted to authorized staff in the performance of official duties.

Retention and disposal:

Records will be retained for one year after conclusion of the study, and then destroyed.

On request, information is provided to parents and spouses who provide information on the application form. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. The information may be released for the routine uses in 34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, including contractors.

Any information from this system of records, including personal information obtained from other agencies through computer matching programs, may be disclosed to any third party through a computer matching program in connection with an individual's application or participation in any grant or loan program administered by the Department of Education. Purposes of these disclosures may be to determine program eligibility and benefits, enforce the conditions and terms of the loan or grant, permit the servicing and collecting of the loan or grant, counsel the individual in repayment efforts, investigate possible fraud and verify compliance with program regulations, locate a delinquent or defaulted debtor, and initiate legal action against an individual involved in program fraud or abuse.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Disclosures pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12): The Department may disclose to a consumer reporting agency information regarding a claim which is determined to be valid and overdue as follows: (1) The name, address, taxpayer identification number and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual responsible for the claim; (2) the amount, status, and history of the claim; and (3) the program under which the claim arose. The Department may disclose the information specified in this paragraph under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) and the procedures contained in subsection 31 U.S.C. 3711(f). A consumer reporting agency to which these disclosures may be made is defined at 31 U.S.C.3701 (a)(3).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Original applications are maintained in standard file cabinets in Pell Grant processing center. Micro-fiche records are maintained in Washington office in standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name of applicant with a cross-index file by social security number. Records are available to all Division of Pell and State Student Grant staff (including appropriate contract support).

Safeguards: Only designated program officials and contract staff have access to file. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Original records are maintained until end of academic year and then stored in Federal Records Center.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Division of Program Operations, Room 4636, ROB No. 3, 7th and D Street SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: In an individual wishes to determine whether a record exists for him or her in the system of records, the individual should provide to the system manager his or her name and social security number.

Record access procedures: If an individual wishes to gain access to a record in this system, he or she should contact the system manager and provide information as described in the notification procedure.

Contesting record procedures: If an individual wishes to change the content of a record in the system of records, he or she should contact the system manager with the information described in the notification procedure, identify the specific items to be changed, and provide a written justification for the change.

Record source categories: Information may be provided directly to the Department of Education by applicants, or, at the request of an applicant, may be provided by the following agenicies: American College Testing Program, Iowa City, IA 52240; Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency, Harrisburg, PA 17102; College Scholarship Service, Princeton, NJ 08541; and College Scholarship Service, Berkeley, CA 94701.

The purpose of this approach is to permit students to apply for Pell Grant Assistance without being required to submit a Pell Grant Application, but instead to provide data needed by the Pell Grant Program on other forms by which they apply for State and/or institutional aid.

Disclosure may be made to organizations deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out quality assessment, medical audits or utilization review. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained on paper and on magnetic tape and are filed in a standard file cabinet.

Retrievability: By name by the system manager or staff for the purpose of obtaining the approval of former Commissioners; after approval and release by former Commissioners the records may be retrieved as historical documents by system manager or staff.

Safeguards: Records may be placed in the National Archives under seal upon threat of disclosure. Exceptions: Subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: All background material will be disposed of 5 years after publication of the final document. These records may be destroyed by maceration, burning, or other appropriate means.

System manager(s) and address: Office of Legislation, Room 4119, FOB No. 6, 400 Maryland Avenue SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: System manager (address in preceding paragraph) will respond to inquiries. Individual must provide system I.D. number and name.

Record access procedures: Contact system manager.

Contesting record procedures: Same as "Notification Procedures."

Record source categories: Information provided by the individual Commissioner and records and documents provided by the Commissioner during interviews. Information is transcribed as approved by individual.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

System name: Guaranteed Loan Program—Insurance Claim File. ED/OPE/OSFA

Security classification: None.

System location: See Appendix EOE 2 of this system(18—40—0044).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Borrowers under Higher Education Act of 1965, Title IV–B on whose accounts the Federal Government has been requested to pay a claim by lenders, because of default, bankruptcy, death or disability.

Categories of records in the system: Loan history, including name, social security number, and last known address of borrower, date borrower ceased at least half-time study, reason for claim, date first payment due, date and amount of loan, and amount of claim. Loan documents, including promissory notes, disclosures statement, repayment agreements, payment history, loan application and copies of correspondence between lender and borrower.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Higher Education Act of 1965, Title IV–B, as amended (20 USC 1071–1087–4).

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Disclosures pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12): The Department may disclose to a consumer reporting agency information regarding a claim which is determined to be valid and overdue as follows: (1) The name, address, taxpayer identification number and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual responsible for the claim; (2) the amount, status, and history of the claim; and (3) the program under which the claim arose. The Department may disclose the information specified in this paragraph under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) and the procedures contained in subsection 31 U.S.C. 3711(f). A consumer reporting agency to which these disclosures may be made is defined at 31 U.S.C.3701 (a)(3).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Retrievability: By name and batch number. The files are used by the Claims Examiners to provide documentation on insurance claims by lenders of the Federal Government. The copies are retained for recordkeeping and cross-referencing purposes. Records are available to regional collection staff to aid them in locating borrowers and setting up repayment schedules. They are also available to ED auditors checking program operations.

Safeguards: Records are stored in locked file cabinets or in locked rooms after working hours with access by authorized agency personnel. Exception: Subject to disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal: Claim files are retained pending payment of claims which usually takes 60 to 90 days. When paid, the files are transferred to the collection staff in the appropriate regional office, depending on the present location of the borrower. The alphabetical and batch files are retained for five (5) years beyond payment of claim. Disposal by maceration.

System manager(s) and address: See Appendix EOE 2 of this system (18–40–0044).

Notification procedure: See system manager, address as indicated to Appendix EOE 2, (18–40–0044), inquiries should be addressed to the system manager in the region in which the inquirer resides (e.g., Florida resident will address Region IV system manager). Provide system I.D. number and system name. Also provide the name, address and social security number of the individual inquiring about his/her record.

Record access procedures: Contact system manager.

Contesting record procedures: Contact system manager.

Record source categories: Participating lenders and individual borrowers.

Student Financial Assistance Collection Files ED/OPE/OSFA.

Security classification:

None.

System location:

(See the appendix to this system notice.)

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Defaulted borrowers and individuals owing refunds and monies under student financial assistance programs administered by the Office of Student Financial Assistance (OSFA).

Categories of records in the system:

Name, address, social security number, postsecondary school, student application, collection and repayment history with both lender and the Department of Education (ED), skip tracing information, borrower's financial ability and willingness to pay, claim for insurance reimbursement, disclosures, forebearance and deferment documents, promissory notes; correspondence between lender and borrower, borrower and ED, borrower or debtor and school, ED and school, and between ED and relatives; collector's notes, Department of Motor Vehicles reports, Internal Revenue Service listing of last known address, and reports of credit investigations.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Higher Education Act of 1965, Title IV; Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962, Section 2.

Purpose(s):

The system is maintained for the following purposes:

1. Documenting the amounts owed to the Department when the Department makes payments on a guarantee or reinsurance agreement, accepts an assignment or referral of a student loan, or determines that an overpayment of student financial assistance has been made;
2. Establishing correct balances by posting borrower payments, adjustments and interest accrual;
3. Maintaining a payment history for each borrower for use in credit reports, repayment negotiations, salary offset hearings, and collection litigation;
4. Documenting changes in a borrower's name, address or status,
5. Identifying areas of responsibility within the Department's collection units; and
6. Acting as a source of data for statistical analysis and management reports.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The information may be furnished to Federal, State, or local agencies, to private parties such as relatives, present and former employers, business and personal associates, to guarantee agencies, to educational and financial institutions, to credit bureaus and collection agencies, and to agency contractors, in order to verify the identity of the applicant, to determine program eligibility and benefits, to enforce the conditions or terms of the loan, to permit servicing or collecting of the loan, to counsel the borrower in repayment efforts, to investigate possible fraund and verify compliance with program regulations, or to locate a delinquent or defaulted borrower. The information may also be furnished to computer contractors for issuance of computerized collection letters; to credit company contractors for skip tracing, in-file history information, assets and ability to pay; to U.S. Internal Revenue Service to determine last known address; to U.S. Postal Service to determine last known address; General Accounting Office for possible pre-litigation collection service; to a hearing official to conduct a salary offset hearing under 34 CFR Part 31; to U.S. Department of Justice for possible legal action; to U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation in performance of investigation into possible fraud cases; to State Departments of Motor Vehicles to determine last known address; to State Bureaus of Vital Statistics for verification of death; to financial institutions, including mortgage companies, for credit checks; to educational agencies or institutions against which a complaint has been made; to other guaranteed student loan lenders making inquiries concerning the defaulted students; to other Federal agencies requesting information as to the repayment history of the defaulted account; to the General Accounting Office for discharge of authorized functions and for routine uses contained in Departmental Regulations at 34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 11. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional Office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent the employee, the Department may disclose records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent the party, provided the disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Paper files, stored in file cabinets.

Retrievability:

By name. Records are available to OSFA staff for administration of collection responsibilities, and used as feeder information in skip tracing; to ED auditors for possible audit; to ED Counsels to resolve legal questions; and to ED Investigators for investigation of fraud possibilities.

Safeguards:

Records are stored in locked file cabinets or in locked rooms after working hours with access by authorized agency personnel. Exception: Subject disclosure requirements of the Privacy Act.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained five (5) years beyond the closing of the case. Disposal by shredding.

18-40-0077

System name:

Records of Educationally Disadvantaged Students Attending Private Schools Served Through Bypass Contracts. ED/OESE/CEP.

Security classification:

None.

System location:

See the Appendix to this system notice.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Selected elementary and secondary school students who—

(1) Attend private schools;

(2) Reside in target areas of bypassed local educational agencies; and

(3) Participate in the program for educationally disadvantaged students under Chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981.

Categories of records in the system:

Contains documents, identified by name and number, of students participating in programs under Chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act, such as pre-and post-achievement test scores, report cards, and reports from Chapter 1 teachers to regular classroom teachers and to parents.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Section 557(b), Chapter 1, Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981 (Pub. L. 97-35) (20 U.S.C. 3806(b)).

Purpose(s):

The purpose of the standardized test scores obtained at the beginning of a year is to determine the eligibility of students for participation in the Chapter 1 program. The purpose of report cards and reports of Chapter 1 teachers to regular classroom teachers and to parents is to report the progress students are making during the school year. The purpose of the scores made on achievement tests given at the end of a school year is to measure the progress students have made during the year and to measure to degree to which the objectives of the Chapter 1 program have been met.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Chapter 1 teachers make information contained in this system or records available to regular classroom teachers and to the record subjects' parents to explain to those persons the eligibility of students and their progress in the Chapter 1 program. Supervisors of the Chapter 1 teachers use information contained in this system of records as a part of the monitoring process to measure progress being made toward achieving program objectives.

The Department may disclose a record for the purposes described in the Department's Privacy Act regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items (1), (3), (4), (5), (6), (8), (9), (10), and (11)).

Disclosure of information in this system of records may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

In the event of litigation involving one of the parties listed below or in which one of these parties has an interest, the Department may disclose those records that it deems relevant and necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent that party, if the disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. The parties to which this routine use applies are—

(a) The Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity;

(b) The United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of it components; and

(c) Any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent such employee.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Each student's records are kept in a separate file folder. All folders are filed in locked filing cabinet in the Chapter 1 classroom. After a student no longer participates in the program, his or her records are transferred to the contractor's office where they are stored in locked filing cabinets.

Retrievability:

The records are indexed by the name and identification number of students participating in the Chapter 1 program.

Safeguards:

The records are secured in a locked filing cabinet. The key is kept by the Chapter 1 teacher. After a student no longer participates in the program, the records are transferred to the contractor's office where they are stored in a locked filing cabinet. Direct access is restricted to the Chapter 1 teacher and aide during the day-to-day program operation. The instructional supervisor, representatives of the contractor, and Department of Education staff have access during monitoring visits.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained in the contractor's office for at least three years after final payment on the contract. Disposal of records follows the requirements of the Federal Records Disposal Act.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Compensatory Education Programs, U.S. Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW (Room 5102, ROB-3), Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure:

For information about a student in a program in a bypassed local educational agency in a State listed in the Appendix to this notice, the student or his or her parent or guardian (authorized individual) must notify the appropriate contractor for the State served by the bypass contract. The Appendix to this notice provides the name and address of the appropriate contractor.

For identification, the authorized individual seeking information should provide the name, home address, and school of the student for whom information is being requested. The request must meet the requirements in the Department's Privacy Act regulations at 34 CFR 5b.5.

Record access procedures:

An authorized individual must contact the appropriate contractor to obtain bypass information about a student who is or has been in a bypass program.

The authorized individual should provide the appropriate contractor with information listed in the notification procedure of this notice and reasonably specify the record contents being sought. If the authorized individual is unable to obtain satisfaction from the contractor, he or she may seek access through the system manager. The request must meet the requirements of the Department's Privacy Act regulations at 34 CFR 5b.5.

Contesting record procedures:

An authorized individual who wishes to contest the content of the record of a participating Chapter 1 student should contact the appropriate contractor for the State served by the bypass contract. See the Appendix to this notice for the name and address of the appropriate contractor. The authorized individual should identify himself or herself and state, in writing, which portion of the record the individual desires changed and provide a justification and authorization for the change. The appropriate contractor will forward the request to the system manager. The request must meet the requirements of 34 CFR 5b.7.

Record source categories:

The contractor obtains test score information from public and private schools where achievement tests for program eligibility are administered, and obtains class performance information from Chapter 1 teachers.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Indian Education Act of 1972, as amended, Pub. L. 92-318, Part B, Section 423.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Information may be released to members of the National Advisory Council on Indian Education. For routine uses contained in the Departmental Regulations (34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items 1 through 9); for Field Readers for the purpose of determining eligibility and recommending awardees; selected data for developing brochures describing the Fellows and their career goals for public information purposes; and to Congressional officers in response to inquiries from those offices made at the request of individuals on whom records are kept. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent such party, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in hard-copy, filed in locked standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are accessed by individual names only by ED authorized staff and Field Readers for the purposes of determining eligibility; selecting Fellows: Establishing allowances for stipends, dependents, tuition, and other expenses; determining continued eligibility; and developing profile information regarding recipients of fellowships for program evaluation, planning, reporting and publicity purposes.

Retention and disposal: Records on fellowship holders are sent to the Federal Records Center six months after final payment. They are destroyed by the Federal Records Center three years after final payment. Records on alternates are maintained for one year. They are then sent to the Federal Records Center where they are destroyed one year later. Application forms from applicants not selected as Fellows or alternates are returned to the applicant. Other records on these applicants, containing information on the selection procedure, are maintained for one year and then sent to the Federal Records Center where they are destroyed three years later.

System manager(s) and address: Deputy Assistant Secretary, Office of Indian Education, ATTN: Education Program Specialist for Fellowships, Room 2177, FOB No. 6, 400 Maryland Avenue SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: Contact Education Program Specialist for Fellowships.

System name: Training and Development Awards for Vocational Education Personnel—Applications and Awards. ED/OVAE.

Security classification: None.

System location: ROB No. 3, Room 5636, 7th and D Streets SW, Washington, D.C. 20202

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons who wish to participate in Federal vocational education fellowship programs and who voluntarily submit personal information.

Categories of records in the system: Name, address, phone number, date of birth, sex, educational background, employment background, educational transcript, references, test scores, minority group membership, State board recommendations, communication skills; for Leadership Development Awards, special leadership qualifications, management skills, leadership potential; for Teacher Certification Awards, certification requirements, certification status, human relation skills, and vocational skills.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Vocational Education Act of 1963, Title I, Part B. Subpart 2, Section 172, as amended by the Education Amendments of 1976, Pub. L. 94-482, Title II.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: For routine uses contained in 34 CFR Part 5b, Appendix B, items 1 through 9; for Field Readers for the purposes of determining eligibility and recommending awardees; selected data for developing brochures describing the Fellows and their career goals for public information purposes; and to Congressional offices in response to inquiries from those offices made at the request of individuals on whom records are kept. A copy of the application is forwarded for review purposes to the institution of higher education to which the awardee is assigned and to the State Board of the State in which the applicant resides. In the event of litigation where one of the parties is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to affect directly the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent the employee, the Department may disclose the records as it deems desirable or necessary to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to effectively represent the party, provided the disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in hard-copy, filed in locked standard file cabinets.

Retrievability: Records are accessed by individual names only by authorized ED staff and Field Readers for the purposes of: Determining eligibility; selecting Fellows; establishing allowances for stipends, dependents, tuition, and other expenses; determining continued eligibility; and the developing profile information regarding recipients of fellowships for program evaluation, planning, reporting and publicity purposes.

Safeguards: Direct access is restricted to authorized ED staff.

Retention and disposal: Records on fellowship holders are sent to the Federal Records Center six months after final payment. They are destroyed by the Federal Records Center three years after final payment. Records on alternates are maintained for two years for Teacher Certification Awards and three years for Leadership Development Awards. They are then sent to the Federal Records Center where they are destroyed one year later. Application forms from applicants not selected as Fellows or alternates are returned to the applicant. Other records on these applications, containing information on the selection procedures, are maintained for one year and then destroyed.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Personnel Development Branch, Office of Vocational and Adult Education, ROB-3, Room 5636, 400 Maryland Avenue SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: An individual should provide his or her name to the system manager in order to verify whether his or her application is in the system.

Record access procedures: An individual who is interested in seeing his or her application should contact the system manager, and be prepared to verify his or her identify to the system manager.

Contesting record procedures: An individual who wishes to contest the contents of an application file in his or her system should contact the system manager, identify the portion of the application to be changed, and provide written justification and authorization for the change.

Record source categories: Information is submitted by the individual applicant on approved forms. References are attached to applications.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

18-40-0081

System name: Women Administrators in Vocational Education. ED/OVAE.

Security classification: None.

System location: The National Center for Research in Vocational Education, The Ohio State University, 1960 Kenny Road, Columbus, Ohio 43210.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Women administrators of vocational education programs who voluntarily submit personal information to be published in a Directory of Women Administrators in Vocational Education. A panel of six vocational education administrators representing two State educational agencies, two local educational agencies, universities/colleges, and junior/community colleges/technical institutes will choose which individuals to invite to submit information for publication in the directory.

Categories of records in the system: Name, job title; employing organization; size of budget administered; number of vocational programs, students, and teachers supervised; school district serving; percentage of time devoted to administering a vocational-technical education program; number of years in present position; highest level of education; specialized training in administration; area of expertise; experience in policymaking and decisionmaking; and membership in professional administration associations. All information in this system will become public information.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Section 171(a)(1) and (2) of the Vocational Education Act of 1963 as amended by Section 202(a) of Pub. L. 94-482. Information is provided voluntarily. Failure to provide the information would result in the individual not being included in the directory.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: As all information in this system will be public, and not subject to disclosure accounting (34 CFR 5b.9(c)), there are no routine use disclosures.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The directory will be printed and distributed to the Department of Education, members of the Directory Selection Criteria Panel, ERIC, and staff of the National Center for Research in Vocational Education. The directory will also be made available to the vocational education community and other interested persons on a cost-recovery basis through the National Center for Research in Vocational Education Publication Department. Survey forms will be stored in standard file cabinets and on magnetic tape.

Retrievability: ED, its contractor, and other users retrieve information by name of an individual. The users will utilize information to identify and contact respondents whose skills and experience might qualify them for job opportunities, or to participate in meetings on vocational education.

Safeguards: Only authorized contractor employees, or employees of ED, will have access to individual data in the system. The contractor will maintain information in accordance with NBS and departmental ADP security standards. This limited access will serve to protect the integrity of individual data in the system.

Retention and disposal: ED will maintain hard copy until the information is obsolete. ED will maintain magnetic tapes until the contractor updates the directory. Then, the tapes are destroyed.

System manager(s) and address: Project Director for Director of Women Administrators, Research Branch, Office of Vocational and Adult Education, Room 5018, ROB No. 3, 7th and D Streets, SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

Notification procedure: In order to determine whether a record exists in the system of records under her name an individual should either consult the directory or contact the system manager at the above address, and provide her name.

Record access procedures: An individual interested in seeing her record should contact the system manager, provide her name, and reasonably specify the record contents being sought.

Contesting record procedures: An individual who wishes to contest the content of a record in the system should contact the system manager, identify herself, and state, in writing, which portion of the record should be changed. The individual should also provide a justification and authorization for the change.

Record source categories: Individuals will provide necessary information directly to the Department of Education and its contractor on a voluntary basis.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 301, 5 U.S.C. 552a.

Source: 45 FR 30808, May 9, 1980, unless otherwise noted.

§ 5b.1 Definitions.

As used in this part:

(a) "Access" means availability of a record to a subject individual.

(b) "Agency" means the Department of Education.

(c) "Department" means the Department of Education.

(d) "Disclosure" means the availability or release of a record to anyone other than the subject individual.

(e) "Individual" means a living person who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence. It does not include persons such as sole proprietorships, partnerships, or corporations. A business firm which is identified by the name of one or more persons is not an individual within the meaning of this part.

(f) "Maintain" means to maintain, collect, use, or disseminate when used in connection with the term "record"; and, to have control over or responsibility for a system of records when used in connection with the term "system of records."

(g) "Notification" means communication to an individual whether he is a subject individual.

(h) "Record" means any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by the Department, including but not limited to the individual's education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history and that contains his name, or an identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph. When used in this part, record means only a record which is in a system of records.

(i) "Responsible Department official" means that officer who is listed in a notice of a system of records as the system manager for a given system of records or another individual listed in the notice of a system of records to whom requests may be made, or the designee of either such officer or individual.

(j) "Routine use" means the disclosure of a record outside the Department, without the consent of the subject individual, for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which the record was collected. It includes disclosures required to be made by statute other than the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552. It does not include disclosures which are permitted to be made without the consent of the subject individual which are not compatible with the purpose for which it was collected such as disclosures to the Bureau of the Census, the General Accounting Office, or to Congress.

(k) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Education.

(l) "Statistical record" means a record maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only and not maintained to make determinations about a particular subject individual.

(m) "Subject individual" means that individual to whom a record pertains.

(n) "System of records" means any group of records under the control of the Department from which a record is retrieved by personal identifier such as the name of the individual, number, symbol or other unique retriever assigned to the individual. Single records or groups of records which are not retrieved by a personal identifier are not part of a system of records. Papers maintained by individual employees of the Department which are prepared, maintained, or discarded at the discretion of the employee and which are not subject to the Federal Records Act, 44 U.S.C. 2901, are not part of a system of records; Provided, That such personal papers are not used by the employee or the Department to determine any rights, benefits, or privileges of individuals.

[45 FR 30808, May 9, 1980; 45 FR 37426, June 3, 1980]

§ 5b.2 Purpose and scope.

(a) This part implements section 3 of the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a (hereinafter referred to as the Act), by establishing agency policies and procedures for the maintenance of records. This part also establishes agency policies and procedures under which a subject individual may be given notification of or access to a record pertaining to him and policies and procedures under which a subject individual may have his record corrected or amended if he believes that his record is not accurate, timely, complete, or relevant or necessary to accomplish a Department function.

(b) All components of the Department are governed by the provisions of this part. Also governed by the provisions of this part are advisory committees and councils within the meaning of the Federal Advisory Committee Act which provide advice to (1) any official or component of the Department or (2) the President and for which the Department has been delegated responsibility for providing services.

(c) Employees of the Department governed by this part include all regular and special government employees of the Department; experts and consultants whose temporary (not in excess of 1 year) or intermittent services have been procured by the Department by contract pursuant to section 3109 of title 5, United States Code; volunteers where acceptance of their services are authorized by law; those individuals performing gratuitous services as permitted under conditions prescribed by the Office of Personnel Management; and, participants in work-study or training programs.

(d) This part does not:

(1) Make available to a subject individual records which are not retrieved by that individual's name or other personal identifier.

(2) Make available to the general public records which are retrieved by a subject individual's name or other personal identifier or make available to the general public records which would otherwise not be available to the general public under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552, and Part 5 of this title.

(3) Govern the maintenance or disclosure of, notification of or access to, records in the possession of the Department which are subject to regulations of another agency, such as personnel records subject to the regulations of the Office of Personnel Management.

(4) Apply to grantees, including State and local governments or subdivisions thereof, administering federally funded programs.

(5) Make available records compiled by the Department in reasonable anticipation of court litigation or formal administrative proceedings. The availability of such records to the general public or to any subject individual or party to such litigation or proceedings shall be governed by applicable constitutional principles, rules of discovery, and applicable regulations of the Department.

§ 5b.3 Policy.

It is the policy of the Department to protect the privacy of individuals to the fullest extent possible while nonetheless permitting the exchange of records required to fulfill the administrative and program responsibilities of the Department, and responsibilities of the Department for disclosing records which the general public is entitled to have under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552, and Part 5 of this title.

§ 5b.4 Maintenance of records.

(a) No record will be maintained by the Department unless:

(1) It is relevant and necessary to accomplish a Department function required to be accomplished by statute or Executive Order;

(2) It is acquired to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual when maintenance of the record may result in a determination about the subject individual's rights, benefits or privileges under Federal programs;

(3) The individual providing the record is informed of the authority for providing the record (including whether the providing of the record is mandatory or voluntary, the principal purpose for maintaining the record, the routine uses for the record, what effect his refusal to provide the record may have on him), and if the record is not required by statute or Executive Order to be provided by the individual, he agrees to provide the record.

(b) No record will be maintained by the Department which describes how an individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless expressly authorized (1) by statute, or (2) by the subject individual, or (3) unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

§ 5b.5 Notification of or access to records.

(a) Times, places, and manner of requesting notification of or access to a record. (1) Any individual may request notification of a record. He may at the same time request access to any record pertaining to him. An individual may be accompanied by another individual of his choice when he requests access to a record in person; Provided, That he affirmatively authorizes the presence of such other individual during any discussion of a record to which access is requested.

(2) An individual making a request for notification of or access to a record shall address his request to the responsible Department official and shall verify his identity when required in accordance with paragraph (b)(2) of this section. At the time the request is made, the individual shall specify which systems of records he wishes to have searched and the records to which he wishes to have access. He may also request that copies be made of all or any such records. An individual shall also provide the responsible Department official with sufficient particulars to enable such official to distinguish between records on subject individuals with the same name. The necessary particulars are set forth in the notices of systems of records.

(3) An individual who makes a request in person may leave with any responsible Department official a request for notification of or access to a record under the control of another responsible Department official; Provided, That the request is addressed in writing to the appropriate responsible Department official.

(b) Verification of identity—(1) When required. Unless an individual, who is making a request for notification of or access to a record in person, is personally known to the responsible Department official, he shall be required to verify his identity in accordance with paragraph (b)(2) of this section if:

(i) He makes a request for notification of a record and the responsible Department official determines that the mere disclosure of the existence of the record would be a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy if disclosed to someone other than the subject individual; or,

(ii) He makes a request for access to a record which is not required to be disclosed to the general public under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552, and Part 5 of this title.

(2) Manner of verifying identity. (i) An individual who makes a request in person shall provide to the responsible Department official at least one piece of tangible identification such as a driver's license, passport, alien or voter registration card, or union card to verify his identity. If an individual does not have identification papers to verify his identity, he shall certify in writing that he is the individual who he claims to be and that he understands that the knowing and willful request for or acquisition of a record pertaining to an individual under false pretenses is a criminal offense under the Act subject to a $5,000 fine.

(ii) Except as provided in paragraph (b)(2)(v) of this section, an individual who does not make a request in person shall submit a notarized request to the responsible Department official to verify his identity or shall certify in his request that he is the individual who he claims to be and that he understands that the knowing and willful request for or acquisition of a record pertaining to an individual under false pretenses is a criminal offense under the Act subject to a $5,000 fine.

(iii) An individual who makes a request on behalf of a minor or legal incompetent as authorized under § 5b.10 of this part shall verify his relationship to the minor or legal incompetent, in addition to verifying his own identity, by providing a copy of the minor's birth certificate, a court order, or other competent evidence of guardianship to the responsible Department official; except that, an individual is not required to verify his relationship to the minor or legal incompetent when he is not required to verify his own identity or when evidence of his relationship to the minor or legal incompetent has been previously given to the responsible Department official.

(iv) An individual shall further verify his identity if he is requesting notification of or access to sensitive records. Any further verification shall parallel the record to which notification or access is being sought. Such further verification may include such particulars as the individual's years of attendance at a particular educational institution, rank attained in the uniformed services, date or place of birth, names of parents, or an occupation.

(v) An individual who makes a request by telephone shall verify his identity by providing to the responsible Department official identifying particulars which parallel the record to which notification or access is being sought. If the responsible Department official determines that the particulars provided by telephone are insufficient, the requester will be required to submit the request in writing or in person. Telephone requests will not be accepted where an individual is requesting notification of or access to sensitive records.

(c) Granting notification of or access to a record. (1) Subject to the provisions governing exempt systems in § 5b.11 of this part, a responsible Department official, who receives a request for notification of or access to a record and, if required, verification of an individual's identity, will review the request and grant notification or access to a record, if the individual requesting access to the record is the subject individual.

(2) If the responsible Department official determines that there will be a delay in responding to a request because of the number of requests being processed, a breakdown of equipment, shortage of personnel, storage of records in other locations, etc., he will so inform the individual and indicate when notification or access will be granted.

(3) Prior to granting notification of or access to a record, the responsible Department official may at his discretion require an individual making a request in person to reduce his request to writing if the individual has not already done so at the time the request is made.

§ 5b.7 Procedures for correction or amendment of records.

(a) Any subject individual may request that his record be corrected or amended if he believes that the record is not accurate, timely, complete, or relevant or necessary to accomplish a Department function. A subject individual making a request to amend or correct his record shall address his request to the responsible Department official in writing; except that, the request need not be in writing if the subject individual makes his request in person and the responsible Department official corrects or amends the record at that time. The subject individual shall specify in each request:

(1) The system of records from which the record is retrieved;

(2) The particular record which he is seeking to correct or amend;

(3) Whether he is seeking an addition to or a deletion or substitution of the record; and,

(4) His reasons for requesting correction or amendment of the record.

(b) A request for correction or amendment of a record will be acknowledged within 10 working days of its receipt unless the request can be processed and the subject individual informed of the responsible Department official's decision on the request within that 10 day period.

(c) If the responsible Department official agrees that the record is not accurate, timely, or complete based on a preponderance of the evidence, the record will be corrected or amended. The record will be deleted without regard to its accuracy, if the record is not relevant or necessary to accomplish the Department function for which the record was provided or is maintained. In either case, the subject individual will be informed in writing of the correction, amendment, or deletion and, if accounting was made of prior disclosures of the record, all previous recipients of the record will be informed of the corrective action taken.

(d) If the responsible Department official does not agree that the record should be corrected or amended, the subject individual will be informed in writing of the refusal to correct or amend the record. He will also be informed that he may appeal the refusal to correct or amend his record § 5b.8 of this part.

(e) Requests to correct or amend a record governed by the regulation of another government agency, e.g., Office of Personnel Management, Federal Bureau of Investigation, will be forwarded to such government agency for processing and the subject individual will be informed in writing of the referral.

§ 5b.8 Appeals of refusals to correct or amend records.

(a) Processing the appeal. (1) A subject individual who disagrees with a refusal to correct or amend his record may appeal the refusal in writing. All appeals shall be made to the Secretary.

(2) An appeal will be completed within 30 working days from its receipt by the appeal authority; except that, the appeal authority may for good cause extend this period for an additional 30 days. Should the appeal period be extended, the subject individual appealing the refusal to correct or amend the record will be informed in writing of the extension and the circumstances of the delay. The subject individual's request to amend or correct the record, the responsible Department official's refusal to correct or amend, and any other pertinent material relating to the appeal will be reviewed. No hearing will be held.

(3) If the appeal authority agrees that the record subject to the appeal should be corrected or amended, the record will be amended and the subject individual will be informed in writing of the correction or amendment. Where an accounting was made of prior disclosures of the record, all previous recipients of the record will be informed of the corrective action taken.

(4) If the appeal is denied, the subject individual will be informed in writing:

(i) Of the denial and the reasons for the denial;

(ii) That he has a right to seek judicial review of the denial; and,

(iii) That he may submit to the responsible Department official a concise statement of disagreement to be associated with the disputed record and disclosed whenever the record is disclosed.

(b) Notation and disclosure of disputed records. Whenever a subject individual submits a statement of disagreement to the responsible Department official in accordance with paragraph (a)(4)(iii) of this section, the record will be noted to indicate that it is disputed. In any subsequent disclosure, a copy of the subject individual's statement of disagreement, will be disclosed with the record. If the responsible Department official deems it appropriate, a concise statement of the appeal authority's reasons for denying the subject individual's appeal may also be disclosed with the record. While the subject individual will have access to this statement of reasons, such statement will not be subject to correction or amendment. Where an accounting was made of prior disclosures of the record, all previous recipients of the record will be provided a copy of the subject individual's statement of disagreement, as well as the statement, if any, of the appeal authority's reasons for denying the subject individual's appeal.

§ 5b.9 Disclosure of records.

(a) Consent to disclosure by a subject individual. (1) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section authorizing disclosures of records without consent, no disclosure of a record will be made without the consent of the subject individual. In each case the consent, whether obtained from the subject individual at the request of the Department or whether provided to the Department by the subject individual on his own initiative, shall be in writing. The consent shall specify the individual, organizational unit or class of individuals or organizational units to whom the record may be disclosed, which record may be disclosed and, where applicable, during which time frame the record may be disclosed (e.g., during the school year, while the subject individual is out of the country, whenever the subject individual is receiving specific services). A blanket consent to disclose all of a subject individual's records to unspecified individuals or organizational units will not be honored. The subject individual's identity and, where applicable (e.g., where a subject individual gives consent to disclosure of a record to a specific individual), the identity of the individual to whom the record is to be disclosed shall be verified.

(2) A parent or guardian of any minor is not authorized to give consent to a disclosure of the minor's medical record.

(b) Disclosures without the consent of the subject individual. The disclosures listed in this paragraph may be made without the consent of the subject individual. Such disclosures are:

(1) To those officers and employees of the Department who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties. The responsible Department official may upon request of any officer or employee, or on his own initiative, determine what constitutes legitimate need.

(2) Required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552, and Part 5 of this title.

(3) For a routine use as defined in paragraph (j) of § 5b.1. Routine uses will be listed in any notice of a system of records. Routine uses published in Appendix B are applicable to more than one system of records. Where applicable, notices of systems of records may contain references to the routine uses listed in Appendix B. Appendix B will be published with any compendium of notices of systems of records.

(4) To the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity pursuant to the provisions of title 13 U.S.C.

(5) To a recipient who has provided the agency with advance written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record; Provided, That, the record is transferred in a form that does not identify the subject individual.

(6) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, or for evaluation by the Administrator of General Services or his designee to determine whether the record has such value.

(7) To another government agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of such government agency or instrumentality has submitted a written request to the Department specifying the record desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought.

(8) To an individual pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of any individual if a notice of the disclosure is transmitted to the last known address of the subject individual.

(9) To either House of Congress, or to the extent of matter within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee thereof, any joint committee of Congress or subcommittee of any such joint committee.

(10) To the Comptroller General, or any of the Comptroller General's authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office.

(11) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

(c) Accounting of disclosures. (1) An accounting of all disclosures of a record will be made and maintained by the Department for 5 years or for the life of the record, whichever is longer; except that, such an accounting will not be made:

(i) For disclosures under paragraphs (b) (1) and (2) of this section; and,

(ii) For disclosures made with the written consent of the subject individual.

(2) The accounting will include:

(i) The date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure; and

(ii) The name and address of the person or entity to whom the disclosure is made.

(3) Any subject individual may request access to an accounting of disclosures of a record. The subject individual shall make a request for access to an accounting in accordance with the procedures in § 5b.5 of this part. A subject individual will be granted access to an accounting of the disclosures of a record in accordance with the procedures of this part which govern access to the related record. Access to an accounting of a disclosure of a record made under paragraph (b)(7) of this section may be granted at the discretion of the responsible Department official.

§ 5b.10 Parents and guardians.

For the purpose of this part, a parent or guardian of any minor or the legal guardian or any individual who has been declared incompetent due to physical or mental incapacity or age by a court of competent jurisdiction is authorized to act on behalf of an individual or a subject individual. Except as provided in paragraph (b)(2) of § 5b.5, of this part governing procedures for verifying an individual's identity, an individual authorized to act on behalf of a minor or legal incompetent will be viewed as if he were the individual or subject individual.

§ 5b.11 Exempt systems.

(a) General policy. The Act permits certain types of specific systems of records to be exempt from some of its requirements. It is the policy of the Department to exercise authority to exempt systems of records only in compelling cases.

(b) Specific systems of records exempted. (1) Those systems of records listed in paragraph (b)(2) of this section are exempt from the following provisions of the Act and this part:

(i) 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and paragraph (c)(2) of § 5b.9 of this part which require a subject individual to be granted access to an accounting of disclosures of a record.

(ii) 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) (1) through (4) and (f) and §§ 5b.6, 5b.7, and 5b.8 of this part relating to notification of or access to records and correction or amendment of records.

(iii) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) (G) and (H) which require inclusion of information about Department procedures for notification, access, and correction or amendment of records in the notice for the systems of records.

(iv) 5 U.S.C. 552(e)(3) and paragraph (a)(3) of § 5b.4 of this part which require that an individual asked to provide a record to the Department be informed of the authority for providing the record (including whether the providing of the record is mandatory or voluntary, the principal purposes for maintaining the record, the routine uses for the record, and what effect his refusal to provide the record may have on him), and if the record is not required by statute or Executive Order to be provided by the individual, he agrees to provide the record. This exemption applies only to an investigatory record compiled by the Department for criminal law enforcement purposes in a system of records exempt under subsection (j)(2) of the Act to the extent that these requirements would prejudice the conduct of the investigation.

(2) The following systems of records are exempt from those provisions of the Act and this part listed in paragraph (b)(1) of this section.

(i) Pursuant to subsection (j)(2) of the Act:

The Investigatory Material Compiled for Law Enforcement Purposes System, ED.

(ii) Pursuant to subsection (k)(2) of the Act: Complaint Files and Log, Office for Civil Rights.

(iii) [Reserved]

(iv) Pursuant to subsection (k)(5) of the Act:

(A) The Investigatory Material Compiled for Security and Suitability Purposes System, ED; and.

(B) The Suitability for Employment Records, ED.

(c) Notification of or access to records in exempt systems of records. (1) Where a system of records is exempt as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, any individual may nonetheless request notification of or access to a record in that system. An individual shall make requests for notification of or access to a record in an exempt system of records in accordance with the procedures of §§ 5b.5 and 5b.6 of this part.

(2) An individual will be granted notification of or access to a record in an exempt system but only to the extent such notification or access would not reveal the identity of a source who furnished the record to the Department under an express promise, and prior to September 27, 1975 an implied promise, that his identity would be held in confidence, if:

(i) The record is in a system of records which is exempt under subsection (k)(2) of the Act and the individual has been, as a result of the maintenance of the record, denied a right, privilege, or benefit to which he would otherwise be eligible; or,

(ii) The record is in a system of records which is exempt under subsection (k)(5) of the Act.

(3) If an individual is not granted notification of or access to a record in a system of records exempt under subsections (k) (2) and (5) of the Act in accordance with this paragraph, he will be informed that the identity of a confidential source would be revealed if notification of or access to the record were granted to him.

(d) Discretionary actions by the responsible Department official. Unless disclosure of a record to the general public is otherwise prohibited by law, the responsible Department official may in his discretion grant notification of or access to a record in a system of records which is exempt under paragraph (b) of this section. Discretionary notification of or access to a record in accordance with this paragraph will not be a precedent for discretionary notification of or access to a similar or related record and will not obligate the responsible Department official to exercise his discretion to grant notification of or access to any other record in a system of records which is exempt under paragraph (b) of this section.

[45 FR 30808, May 9, 1980, as amended at 48 FR 38820, Aug. 26, 1983]

(a) All contracts entered into on or after September 27, 1975 which require a contractor to maintain or on behalf of the Department to maintain, a system of records to accomplish a Department function must contain a provision requiring the contractor to comply with the Act and this part.

(b) All unexpired contracts entered into prior to September 27, 1975 which require the contractor to maintain or on behalf of the Department to maintain, a system of records to accomplish a Department function will be amended as soon as practicable to include a provision requiring the contractor to comply with the Act and this part. All such contracts must be so amended by July 1, 1976 unless for good cause the appeal authority identified in § 5b.8 of this part authorizes the continuation of the contract without amendment beyond that date.

(c) A contractor and any employee of such contractor shall be considered employees of the Department only for the purposes of the criminal penalties of the Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a(i), and the employee standards of conduct listed in Appendix A of this part where the contract contains a provision requiring the contractor to comply with the Act and this part.

(d) This section does not apply to systems of records maintained by a contractor as a result of his management discretion, e.g., the contractor's personnel records.

§ 5b.13 Fees.

(a) Policy. Where applicable, fees for copying records will be charged in accordance with the schedule set forth in this section. Fees may only be charged where an individual requests that a copy be made of the record to which he is granted access. No fee may be charged for making a search of the system of records whether the search is manual, mechanical, or electronic. Where a copy of the record must be made in order to provide access to the record (e.g., computer printout where no screen reading is available), the copy will be made available to the individual without cost.

(b) Fee schedule. The fee schedule for the Department is as follows:

(1) Copying of records susceptible to photocopying—$.10 per page.

(2) Copying records not susceptible to photocopying (e.g., punch cards or magnetic tapes)—at actual cost to be determined on a case-by-case basis.

(3) No charge will be made if the total amount of copying does not exceed $25.

Appendix A—Employee Standards of Conduct

(a) General. All employees are required to be aware of their responsibilities under the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a. Regulations implementing the Act are set forth in 34 CFR 5b. Instruction on the requirements of the Act and regulation shall be provided to all new employees of the Department. In addition, supervisors shall be responsible for assuring that employees who are working with systems of records or who undertake new duties which require the use of systems of records are informed of their responsibilities. Supervisors shall also be responsible for assuring that all employees who work with such systems of records are periodically reminded of the requirements of the Act and are advised of any new provisions or interpretations of the Act.

(b) Penalties. (1) All employees must guard against improper disclosure of records which are governed by the Act. Because of the serious consequences of improper invasions of personal privacy, employees may be subject to disciplinary action and criminal prosecution for knowing and willful violations of the Act and regulation. In addition, employees may also be subject to disciplinary action for unknowing or unwillful violations, where the employee had notice of the provisions of the Act and regulations and failed to inform himself sufficiently or to conduct himself in accordance with the requirements to avoid violations.

(2) The Department may be subjected to civil liability for the following actions undertaken by its employees:

(a) Making a determination under the Act and §§ 5b.7 and 5b.8 of the regulation not to amend an individual's record in accordance with his request, or failing to make such review in conformity with those provisions;

(b) Refusing to comply with an individual's request for notification of or access to a record pertaining to him;

(c) Failing to maintain any record pertaining to any individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is necessary to assure fairness in any determination relating to the qualifications, character, rights, or opportunities of, or benefits to the individual that may be made on the basis of such a record, and consequently a determination is made which is adverse to the individual; or

(d) Failing to comply with any other provision of the Act or any rule promulgated thereunder, in such a way as to have an adverse effect on an individual.

(3) "An employee may be personally subject to criminal liability as set forth below and in 5 U.S.C. 552a (i):

(a) Any officer or employee of an agency, who by virtue of his employment or official position, has possession of, or access to, agency records which contain individually identifiable information the disclosure of which is prohibited by the Act or by rules or regulations established thereunder, and who, knowing that disclosure of the specific material is so prohibited, willfully discloses the material in any manner to any person or agency not entitled to receive it, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000."

(b) "Any officer or employee of any agency who willfully maintains a system of records without meeting the notice requirements [of the Act] shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000."

(c) Rules Governing Employees Not Working With Systems of Records. Employees whose duties do not involve working with systems of records will not generally disclose to any one, without specific authorization from their supervisors, records pertaining to employees or other individuals which by reason of their official duties are available to them. Notwithstanding the above, the following records concerning Federal employees are a matter of public record and no further authorization is necessary for disclosure:

(1) Name and title of individual.

(2) Grade classification or equivalent and annual rate of salary.

(3) Position description.

(4) Location of duty station, including room number and telephone number.

In addition, employees shall disclose records which are listed in the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation as being available to the public. Requests for other records will be referred to the responsible Department official. This does not preclude employees from discussing matters which are known to them personally, and without resort to a record, to official investigators of Federal agencies for official purposes such as suitability checks, Equal Employment Opportunity investigations, adverse action proceedings, grievance proceedings, etc.

(d) Rules governing employees whose duties require use or reference to systems of records. Employees whose official duties require that they refer to, maintain, service, or otherwise deal with systems of records (hereinafter referred to as "Systems Employees") are governed by the general provisions. In addition, extra precautions are required and systems employees are held to higher standards of conduct.

(1) Systems Employees shall:

(a) Be informed with respect to their responsibilities under the Act;

(b) Be alert to possible misuses of the system and report to their supervisors any potential or actual use of the system which they believe is not in compliance with the Act and regulation;

(c) Make a disclosure of records within the Department only to an employee who has a legitimate need to know the record in the course of his official duties;

(d) Maintain records as accurately as practicable.

(e) Consult with a supervisor prior to taking any action where they are in doubt whether such action is in conformance with the Act and regulation.

(2) Systems Employees shall not:

(a) Disclose in any form records from a system of records except (1) with the consent or at the request of the subject individual; or (2) where its disclosure is permitted under § 5b.9 of the regulation.

(b) Permit unauthorized individuals to be present in controlled areas. Any unauthorized individuals observed in controlled areas shall be reported to a supervisor or to the guard force.

(c) Knowingly or willfully take action which might subject the Department to civil liability.

(d) Make any arrangements for the design development, or operation of any system of records without making reasonable effort to provide that the system can be maintained in accordance with the Act and regulation.

(e) Contracting officers. In addition to any applicable provisions set forth above, those employees whose official duties involve entering into contracts on behalf of the Department shall also be governed by the following provisions:

(1) Contracts for design, or development of systems and equipment. No contract for the design or development of a system of records, or for equipment to store, service or maintain a system of records shall be entered into unless the contracting officer has made reasonable effort to ensure that the product to be purchased is capable of being used without violation of the Act or regulation. Special attention shall be given to provision of physical safeguards.

(2) Contracts for the operation of systems and equipment. No contract for the design or development of a system of whom he feels appropriate, of all proposed contracts providing for the operation of systems of records shall be made prior to execution of the contracts to determine whether operation of the system of records is for the purpose of accomplishing a Department function. If a determination is made that the operation of the system is to accomplish a Department function, the contracting officer shall be responsible for including in the contract appropriate provisions to apply the provisions of the Act and regulation to the system, including prohibitions against improper release by the contractor, his employees, agents, or subcontractors.

(3) Other service contracts. Contracting officers entering into general service contracts shall be responsible for determining the appropriateness of including provisions in the contract to prevent potential misuse (inadvertent or otherwise) by employees, agents, or subcontractors of the contractor.

(f) Rules Governing Responsible Department Officials. In addition to the requirements for Systems Employees, responsible Department officials shall:

(1) Respond to all requests for notification of or access, disclosure, or amendment of records in a timely fashion in accordance with the Act and regulation;

(2) Make any amendment of records accurately and in a timely fashion;

(3) Inform all persons whom the accounting records show have received copies of the record prior to the amendments of the correction; and

(4) Associate any statement of disagreement with the disputed record, and

(a) Transmit a copy of the statement to all persons whom the accounting records show have received a copy of the disputed record, and

(b) Transmit that statement with any future disclosure.

Appendix B—Routine Uses Applicable to More Than One System of Records Maintained by DE

(1) In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

(2) Referrals may be made of assignments of research investigators and project monitors to specific research projects to the Smithsonian Institution to contribute to the Smithsonian Science Information Exchange, Inc.

(3) In the event the Department deems it desirable or necessary, in determining whether particular records are required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act, disclosure may be made to the Department of Justice for the purpose of obtaining its advice.

(4) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement records or other pertinent records, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain a record relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the record is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

(5) In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its function indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether state or local charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

(6) Where federal agencies having the power to subpoena other federal agencies' records, such as the Internal Revenue Service or the Civil Rights Commission, issue a subpoena to the Department for records in this system of records, the Department will make such records available.

(7) Where a contract between a component of the Department and a labor organization recognized under E.O. 11491 provides that the agency will disclose personal records relevant to the organization's mission, records in this system of records may be disclosed to such organization.

(8) Where the appropriate official of the Department, pursuant to the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation determines that it is in the public interest to disclose a record which is otherwise exempt from mandatory disclosure, disclosure may be made from this system of records.

(9) The Department contemplates that it will contract with a private firm for the purpose of collating, analyzing, aggregating or otherwise refining records in this system. Relevant records will be disclosed to such a contractor. The contractor shall be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

(10) To individuals and organizations, deemed qualified by the Secretary to carry out specific research solely for the purpose of carrying out such research.

(11) Disclosures in the course of employee discipline or competence determination proceedings.
